Mr. William Thornton, of 127 W. Market Street, Explains How and Why He Did It.

From the Elmira Gazette.

Old age has many infirmities, none of which are more prevalent than kidney disorders. Have you ever noticed how the old people complain of backache, lame back, and general listlessness? And there are many other symptoms of which they do not speak, such as bloating of the limbs, painful and infrequent urination or excesspennius and request trinition of excessiveness of the urinary discharge. Most people think they are too old to find relief and cure, but this is not so. No better evidence than the following, which comes from an Elmira citizen, who has been from an Elmira citizen, who has been cured of a very severe case at 77 years of age. Mr. William Thornton, of 127 West Market street, speaks of his case in this way: "I am 77 years old. I have been afflicted with that dreadful complaint (kidney disease) for over ten years, making my old age a burden. I was so had as to be forced to carry a belt at all times, and, when my suffering became beyond ensurance, I would put on the belt, drawing it tightly around me and buckle it. ing it tightly around me and buckle it, thus bringing an extreme pressure over the kidneys; this, undoubtedly, forced the urine out, a function which the kidneys themselves had become too diseased to perform. My condition I put down to a strain I received, I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. I was much surprised, as the silment was so severe and so long standing, while I had tried many remedies without any relief whatever. The pain I have experienced at times from straining in my efforts to discharge the urine was simply hwful. I have done away with the use of my leather belt, and the pain has all gone, and I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all afflicted with kidney and urinary disorders." ing it tightly around me and buckle it.

GATHERING SPRUCE GUM.

Tons of It Collected Each Winter, and Millions of Chews in a Ton. From the Daily Kennebec Journal.

Gathering gum is quite a business by itself, and is carried on much more systematically than is generally supposed. The gum picker is a busy fel-low, and, like the hotel proprietor at some pleasant seaside resort, has only a few months for his business. When the woodsmen enter the forests in the fall the gum pickers follow and continue in the woods till springtime. There are men who make a practice of nipping from the spruce this material known as gom and do nothing else. They follow the choppers through the woods, and when the trees are felled pluck from the trunk all the gum they

Besides gathering it from the trees cut down to make logs the picker shells it from the standing tree; but this is a much barder method, although in many cases a larger quantity is procurred, because none is lost, as in the case where the spruce is falling and rolls against other giants of the forest, stripping it at times of several quarts of its gum deposits, providing there is a well-filled seam in the tree. In collecting the lumps of gum from the standing spruce the picker has an apparatus especially arranged for the purpose. It consists of a long pole, purpose, it consists of a tong pole, upon the top of which is a little sack that will hold about two quarts of gum. Back of this sack is a piece of iron or steel made like a hamer and working upon a pivot, while a cord is attached to the end and extends to the foot of the role. The ricker places the attached to the end and extends to the foot of the pole. The picker places the top of this picking machine along the gummy seam of the spruce, and by operating the little hammer by means of the cord is able to clip off the lumps of gum into the sack located under the top of the hammer. Sometimes from one tree a bushel of gum is picked, but not very often is the gatherer fortunate in finding so productive a spruce, and in finding so productive a spruce, and he is quite contented in plucking from a pint to half a bushel from each. When the day's picking is finished all return to camp, and, sitting around the open fire in the evening, clean this the open fire in the evening, clean this gum piece by piece, some requiring quite a large amount of scraping while other pieces need but little. Quite often the picker will find a spruce with a large seam from the trunk to over half the length of the tree, while builging from each side will be bright, clear lumps of choice gum. He also finds trees with large lumps projecting from the side, while in the spruce not a seam can be found. Great bunches of gum are frequently found on the trunk gum are frequently found on the trunk of the tree.

There are different kinds of gum. The choice is the clear and best lumps, what the picker terms bright. Then comes the second grade, consisting of the assortment next to the choice, while the third grade is disposed of at a low figure, and is made into a patent gum. A figure-head of the gum pickers is the middleman, who is general manager, superintends the work, and sells the gum. From one posse of pickers this middleman often handles 4,000 pounds in a season. Often he makes a deal with the pickers, by supplying them with food and clothing and finding a market, the profits being shared. You will understand that the gum is always toted several miles through the woods to reach a point of transportation. The most gum handled by dealers in The most gum handled by dealers in this section is received from Aroostook county, Canada, and New York state. Gum, not being a manufactured article, is free of duty. An Augusta firm handled over 2,290 pounds hast year. When candy sold for fourteen cents a pound an even exchange was made for a pound of gum. During the summer, if you have ever visited the forest and observed the spruce, you have doubtless noticed that the gum was of a sticky nature; it is then that it forms for the next winter's gum gatherer, and when the cold weather comes it gradually hardens. No patent gum has as yet surpassed the flavor of the spruce, and as long as these trees the spruce, and as long as these trees stand will the gum chewer cling to its

PLATINUM DEPOSITS. The Only Ones in the World Found in the

Ural Mountains. The Ural platinum deposits in Russia are the only ones in the world, as this metal is worked nowhere else, and is known simply as a mineral finely disseminated in certain rocks. Platinum occurs in the Ural government of Perm, where it is found on various private properties and state islands, in the district of Gorobladgst, there are seventy allotments for the exploitation of platinum under different private individuals.

The metal is found in the form of allovial deposits, or platinum-bearing sands, which frequently also contain gold. These deposits vary in thickness, and are rarely less than three and often reach seven feet. The grains are usually small in size, but occasionally small nuggets are found, weighing one or more kilogrammes.
