The hearing in the Foran habeas corpus case to have taken place yesterday before Judge Quinter, was continued until next Monday.
All the members of the State Liquor league are requested to attend a special meeting Thursday afternoon at 8 o'clock at 230 p. m.
Bible class for study of the International Sunday school lesson at Grace Reformed Episcopal church meeting at 7:30. Every one invited. Bring your Bibles.
The funeral of the late Mrs. Edward A. Jones, of Archbald, will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the house on South Main street. Interment will be made in the Protestant cemetery.

The 50th anniversary of the Black Sheep opens this morning at the box office of the Academy of Music at 9 o'clock. It should be remembered Mr. Hoyt sends his full original New York company in his greatest success, "A Black Sheep."
Marriage licenses were granted yesterday to John Egan, of Freeport, and Nellie Judge, of this city; to John E. Cummings and Nellie Hopkins, of this city; John C. Buckingham, Dunmore, and Harriet B. Dowd, Scranton; to George J. Starnes, of Newton, and Edna Savits, of Scranton.
At St. Luke's church, All Saints' Day, Friday, Nov. 1, will be observed by two celebrations of the holy communion at 8 a. m. and 8 p. m. This evening J. H. Mace, the blind evangelist, will give his famous lecture, "The Dark and Bright Side of Washington," in the Green Ridge United Evangelical church. This lecture consists of a graphic description of Washington as a city and as the nation's capital, given in an interesting and humorous manner. The fact that some desperate opposition to this lecture has been made in certain circles by politicians and officeholders ought to be sufficient to warrant its merit.
The annual social of the cadet corps will be held tonight in Fuller's hall, on Lackawanna avenue. Refreshments will be served, and the following will take part in an entertainment: Misses Josephine and Alice Gilmartin, Miss Jennie Alexander, Mrs. Limer, Columbus Glee club, M. J. Coyne, James Harber, David Wilson, James Langan, William Jones, Andrew Smith, Dr. James Egan, William Cuneo and John Simpson. Miss Belinda Messtet will be accompanist.

ARE NOT WANTED HERE.

That is All That Detective Barring Would Say About His Prisoners.
But little information would be given yesterday by the Barring & McSweeney detective agency regarding the two mysterious persons who were brought here from New York city by the firm's detectives Tuesday night.
Mr. Barring said the men are wanted in a state other than Pennsylvania and are only two of several who will be arrested.
Any detailed report of the case, he said, would impede the work of the detectives and for this reason he declined to discuss the matter.

WAS WEDDED TUESDAY.

Miss Helen McDermott became the Bride of Carlos Raymond Vidal.
The marriage ceremony which united Miss Helen McDermott, formerly superintendent of the Lackawanna hospital, to Carlos Raymond Vidal of New York, was performed at the metropolitan Tuesday afternoon in the presence of many friends. The groom is a prominent and wealthy gentleman.
The bride's numerous friends in Scranton have extended their congratulations, and every possible wish for the couple's happiness.

Water colors, etchings and photographs, with or without frames, half price, Pratt's Book Store.

DIRECTORS MEET TODAY

Will Discuss Topics That Are Linked with Educational Work.

INSTRUCTING THE TEACHERS

Subjects That Were Brought to the Attention of the County Instructors at Yesterday's Sessions of the Institute.

This will be the busiest day of the institute, as the School Directors' association of the county will meet in the arbitration room. The officers very President, Thomas Hunter, of Jersey; first vice-president, John L. Stone, of Weavertown; second vice-president, T. J. Johnson, of Scranton; secretary, Horace Scamatta, of LaPlume.
The morning session will convene at 10 o'clock. The president, Mr. Hunter, will deliver an address and after a routine preliminary business a discussion will ensue on the question, "School vocal music should be added to the curriculum of the common schools." Directors: P. Brundage, Thomas J. Evans, John B. Daniels, and John W. Cure will enter into the discussion. Dr. George M. Phillips will answer the queries of directors.
At the opening of the afternoon session which will be at 1:30, Superintendent Taylor will address the directors. Election of officers and reports of committees will be next in order and after that a discussion will occur on the duties imposed by the compulsory educational law on directors. Mr. Neary, C. D. Sanders, George W. Beemer and Dr. N. C. Mackey will take part in it. Deputy State Superintendent Henry Houck will deliver an address. Mr. Phillips' remarks will be made by the directors.

Met in Sections in the Morning.

The morning session yesterday was, as on the day previous, in two sections. The primary and intermediate teachers concluded their sessions at 9:30 and the principals adjourned to No. 2 room. Miss Margaret McCloskey took up her talk on numbers and gave an interesting blackboard exercise. She is very popular with the teachers and her talks are very instructive, for she has an aptitude of making her hearers readily understand her meaning, and this, with her free flow of language, combines to make her lectures most entertaining.
Professor Twitmyer addressed the primary teachers on their opportunities. Sixty per cent. of the boys and girls of the county leave school at 10 years of age and go to the workshop. Their narrow scope in the school room comes under the training and discipline of the primary teacher. He ardently maintained that only men and women of the clearest wisdom and ripe experience should be allowed to enter upon the work of a primary teacher.
Miss McCloskey followed with a bright talk on reading. Three classes of readers, she said, are to be found among the American people; those who read rapidly and sentimentally; those who read because it is fashionable to do so; and those who read with a purpose. The latter class is that which we most desire to reach. If it became known they had not read Trilby than they were discovered ignorant of Shakespeare; or that they could not read a book on the science of agriculture; or that they could not read a good book with pleasure and profit.
Teachers in a Degree Responsible.
She said the American people are behind the Germans, Italians and French in literature. The teachers are in a certain degree responsible for this state of affairs and it is incumbent on them to do something speedily to bring about a change in this condition.
The principals' section in the other room was presided over by M. W. Cummings, of Olyphant. Professor William Taggart read a paper on "The Corollary of Psychology." He believes that all teachers should study this subject thoroughly. Attention is the main thing in the school room. When the teacher succeeds in riveting the minds of his children on all that is necessary; the mind of the child will do the rest.

THE TURNERS' EXHIBITION.

Given at Their Hall on Seventh Street Last Evening.
The active members of the Scranton Turn Verein gave the first of a series of exhibitions at their hall on Seventh street last evening in the presence of the older members and their families and many who are not in any way identified with the organization. Music was furnished by Guth's orchestra and Professor Seitz.
At 9 o'clock the exercises began with an exhibition by the junior class ranging in age from 9 to 12 years of age. The work of the boys elicited much applause and an exhibition on the parallel bars by the active turners was the next feature and it showed that those who took part in it were skilled in that branch of gymnastics.
Calisthenics by a class of girls ranging from 9 to 13 years was an interesting feature. Others were the high jumping and wrestling. The exhibition concluded at 11 o'clock after which dancing was indulged in.

MINE BOLE SUPERSEDED

Electricity as Underground Motive Power Is a Success.

TEST MADE IN BELLEVUE SHAFT

Motor Weighing Nine Tons Can Haul Twenty Cars a Mile in Four Minutes—It Works on the Principle of the Trolley.

Electricity as a motive power in the coal mines was demonstrated to be a success, by the introduction of a motor in the Bellevue shaft of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western. This motor was tested Monday and Tuesday. It proved yesterday to be capable not only of supplanting the patient mule, but also to be capable of accomplishing quicker, more satisfactory all around and much more work than the long-endured animal.
The motor in the Bellevue mine is but three feet in height, and it extends six inches on each side beyond the rails. The mine is 400 feet deep and the weight of it is about nine tons. It runs on the same principle involved in the operation of the trolley car. The trolley is suspended from the roof by means of wedges, the trolley pole, controlling handles and brakes. A motorman has a perch of his own, and a master of the shaft is in command. A large headlight throws its rays into the darkness.
The machine was built at the shops of the General Electric company of Schenectady, N. Y., and is the first one to prove successful. It is said that the system is defective, or anything like it, will be necessary, these machines have been introduced some hitch or another appears to have attended the test, necessitating a reshipping of them back to the factory for overhauling.

AN EXCITING RUNAWAY.

Frank Hannis and E. J. Goodwin Thrown from a Carriage on Washington Avenue, but Fortunately Escaped Without Injury.
That good horsemen are not immune against runaway nowadays was shown yesterday morning. Frank Hannis and E. J. Goodwin, respectively, in the front rank of professional and gentleman drivers of this city, had a miraculous escape from serious accident and furnished no little excitement for pedestrians and drivers on Washington avenue.
The runaway horses were a newly matched pair which had but a few months been hitched together for trial. The horse that caused the trouble belonged to a dealer who keeps his stock in Cusick's livery. It's mate was owned by Mr. Goodwin and was hitched with the other with the prospect of a sale to the dealer.
Mr. Hannis held the reins and on his left Mr. Goodwin was seated when they set off on their trip. The pair drove quietly to Vine street, where Mr. Hannis turned the team and headed them toward the stable. At the point the horse plunged forward carrying his quiet mate with him and when Mulberry street was reached were going on a road run, not understanding all the wiles and strength of so good a driver as Mr. Hannis.

The Speed Was Terrific.

The speed was terrific. Each occupant of the buggy knew it was suicidal to jump. Mr. Hannis, realizing the futility of trying to stop the maddened pair unaided asked Mr. Goodwin to aid him. The two sawed and tugged at the reins and the horse seemed only to go the faster, and when passing The Tribune building were flying at race track speed.
Fortunately the avenue was not crowded with vehicles, but in going over the Linden street car tracks the forward axle broke near the left wheel. Mr. Goodwin tried to remain in the buggy, but the lurching of his companion crowded him out and he was rolled and slid about forty feet on the smooth half pave, landing near the curbstone. Meanwhile the other horse, crazed horses was unslacked and Mr. Hannis made a forced exit from the buggy in much the same fashion as did Mr. Goodwin. Neither sustained a cut or bruise.

One Horse Badly Injured.

The team collided with a dray at the corner of Spruce street and came to a halt on the sidewalk of the new Mears building between two of its windows. The pole snapped and was forced into the chest of the dealer's horse injuring him so badly that he may not live. Mr. Goodwin's horse was uninjured and on being driven later in the day gave no sign of having remembered the runaway.
Persons who witnessed the runaway and the lightning speed of the horses are so excited about the incident that they are unable to give a correct account of the incident.

DANCED IN HIS HONOR.

Pitcher Mullarkey, of the Washington Club, Given a Party.
John E. Mullarkey, the well-known pitcher of the Washington National league club, who is at present a guest of his cousin, John Mullarkey, of this city, was tendered a dancing party at the home of Mrs. J. Williams, of Dunmore, Tuesday evening. A very large assemblage was present and the evening was most enjoyable. The grand march was led by John E. Mullarkey and his cousin, John Mullarkey. It was participated in by 100 couples. Music was furnished by Pianist Joseph McDermott.
Among those present from out of town were: John Cohen, Mame Cohen, Maggie Barrett, Leslie and Sarah Flannery, Katie Kelly, Belinda Render and Belinda Carroll, of Pittston; Patrick Peetery, of Scranton; William Carbondale; John O'Malley, Olyphant; Misses Cooney and Haggerty, of Dunmore; Frank Pickering, Peckville; Dr. Mulholland, West Pittston.

THERE WAS NO CONFERENCE.

Reese G. Brooks Denies the Published Stories About the Pottsville Meetings.
Reese G. Brooks and D. M. and T. H. Jones, who were reported as being among the participants in a meeting at Pottsville Monday night, said yesterday to a Tribune reporter that they had no conference of any kind.
"The two Mr. Jones and I went to Pottsville Monday night to look after our interests in that region. On our return, on Tuesday, we met with several agents from Philadelphia who were in the town, and as is often the case, a large number of coal men, who, like ourselves, have property in that region, but live in other cities. We with them talked with many of them during the day and evening, but to my knowledge there was no meeting, nor do I believe the coal men congregated there for any such purpose."
Mr. Brooks pronounced the story published in Tuesday's Pottsville Miner as a caricature, and said the following except from the article is a fabrication:
What the Journal Said.
"While no inside information as to the meaning of last night's gathering could be obtained, one thing is certain that Pottville and her surroundings will enjoy a new era of prosperity by the time the landed interests of these gentlemen are made to yield their dusky treasures."
Mr. Brooks said that if the remarks overheard by a reporter have any significance, the meeting last night may have formulated plans which will not only multiply the number of our coal industries, but diversify our manufacturing and banking interests.
"They were to the effect that the big coal concerns of this section were going to concentrate against the Reading and control most of the anthracite output, not only in the Luzerne and Lackawanna regions but in the Schuylkill region as well. The beggarly low price of coal during the past summer is attributed by some to the Reading, whether well-founded or not, and to prevent further losses caused by such a fall in prices these gigantic corporations are going to band together and combat the former company. The Lehigh, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western and a number of others are in the deal, it is said.
Big Coal Metropolitan.
"Pottsville will be the big coal metropolitan of the battle ground and will bear the same relation to this mighty revival of industrial activity that Scranton holds with the phenomenal development of the Lackawanna coal fields. A bank is being organized at Pottsville, a better system of banking may be provided, Frank Howell is at present the heaviest stockholder in the Mechanical bank at Scranton, and most of the others are directors in similar institutions."
"It all seems plausible enough that these capitalists mean what they say,

FOR WITH THE TISSUE OF WEALTH WHICH IS SETTING TOWARD THIS PART OF THE COUNTRY, GREATER BANKING FACILITIES WILL BE NEEDED.

They Delighted a Large Audience at the Frothingham.

THEY DELIGHTED A LARGE AUDIENCE AT THE FROTHINGHAM.

One of Frothingham's most talented companies with Clissey Fitzgerald as the particular attraction, ought to give satisfaction to any audience. This it did unaccountably to every backer house which greeted "The Foundling" at the Frothingham last night. The company and Clissey are certainly delightful entertainers and the play is a very appropriate vehicle for the delivery of their entertainment, but no one will take the trouble to sit down to think out the lesson it teaches or the moral it points out.
It is one of those plays, the action of which is so circumstanced at times that a great many things may be said and done without appearing offensive, but which, if robbed of their occasions, would be decidedly raw. It's story is nothing more or less than a cleverly linked chain of ludicrous complications along the marital line, in the unraveling of which the author takes all the liberty the present elevated tone of the stage allows.
After seeing Clissey Fitzgerald one can easily understand how New York adopted her as a proper fact. She is graceful and pretty, but does not by any means deserve the superlative when comparing her with others of her school.
She smiles and winks after her own peculiar and winsome fashion, but these achievements do not put her in the van of the modern actresses. There is a something about her, however, that is new and different from anything else of that kind and it is this new something which New Yorkers are always on the lookout for that made Clissey Fitzgerald their idol for a season.
The leaders among the mortals who comprise the company are Thomas Burns, who played the part of Major Colton, a henpecked but sturdy old boy; S. Miller Kent, as Dick Pennell, the unfortunate young lover, who bears the brunt of the disaster; the eccentric comedian; Clara Inker Post as Mrs. Colton, of strong will, and Maggie Holden as Elsie, the Miss Uscher, a prime old maid.
A sort skill called "The Man Upstairs," of the same style as "The Foundling," was given as a curtain raiser.
