TRIAL

The Prosecution Upset by Ruling Out of Important Evidence.

SCENE CAUSED BY MISS YOKE

Holmes Weeps When His Alleged Wife Appears to Testify--Detective Geyer's Story Cut Short--The Case Nearing an End.

Philadelphia, Oct. 31.--The first gleam of hope that has come to Holmes since he was arraigned for the murder of Benjamin F. Pitzeel today broke through the rift of the dark cloud of damaging evidence in which he has been enveloped. His attorneys this afternoon succeeded in keeping from the jury all evidence bearing directly upon the murder of the Pitzeel children. The decision of the court ruling this evidence out left the prosecution in confusion and, in consequence, the district attorney asked for time in which to rearrange his case. The court granted the request and the regular night session was not held, and the case went over until tomorrow morning. Despite the decision of the court in refusing to admit testimony showing that Holmes killed Pitzeel children, District Attorney Graham is convinced that the evidence already presented to the jury will convict Holmes. Although the direct evidence possessed by the commonwealth that Holmes killed Pitzeel is circumstantial, so strong is this chain of presumptive testimony that, to any one who has followed it, there can hardly remain a doubt that on that Sunday in September, a year ago, Holmes killed Pitzeel in the house at 1316 Callowhill street.

Notwithstanding the decision of Judge Arnold today, much indirect evidence has been introduced showing that Holmes unquestionably made way with the Pitzeel children, and this, in every probability, will weigh with the jury, and even if unconsciously, will, in all likelihood, influence his mind in arriving at a verdict in the case before him.

When Holmes Broke Down. The decision of Judge Arnold and the confrontation in the witness box of Holmes by the person whom he deceived into believing she was his legal wife, and the break-down of the prisoner that followed were the leading features of the proceedings today. After several witnesses testified this morning the name of "Miss Yoke" was called. Holmes had expected that the woman whom he had lured into marriage with the belief that he was single would be called upon to give testimony against him, but the prospects of her appearance on the witness stand completely unnerved him. He called her name and she came forward with eagerness to object to the witness. In the meanwhile, however, Miss Yoke had taken her place in the witness stand. From his behavior as she did so it would seem as if Holmes really loved this woman. As she came forward his pallid face flushed to the cheeks and then turned blood red, leaving him ghastly white. He looked appealingly at her, but she carefully avoided glancing in his direction. When the girl so evidently avoided seeing so much as looking at him, Holmes bowed his head and struggled with a sob that shook his frame, while he wiped the tears from his face.

He appealed pitifully to his lawyers to have the witness taken from the stand. They combated as well as they could the evidence of the district attorney that Miss Yoke was not his legal wife and was therefore competent under the statutes of this state to testify against the prisoner. The testimony that there was at least one and probably two other women with whom Holmes had gone through a legal marriage ceremony was convincing, and Judge Arnold allowed Miss Yoke to testify.

Miss Yoke a Star Witness. Before she began her testimony Holmes counsel stated to the court that the prisoner would cross-examine the witness himself. Miss Yoke was one of the star witnesses for the commonwealth, but beyond proving that Pitzeel called on Holmes the night before the day he was killed, and that Holmes told her that he had an engagement with the next day, she was absent from the house from 10.30 in the morning until 4.30 in the afternoon on Sunday, her evidence was not so damaging to the prisoner as those in the court room expected.

She seemed to have no knowledge of any of the events bearing directly upon the murder of Pitzeel or the children. Throughout the period in which these events occurred she was constantly with Holmes, but he readily deceived her as to the reason for their hurried movements from city to city by specious lies.

During Miss Yoke's testimony Holmes recovered his composure, and when he arose to cross-examine her his voice was louder than that which has been at any time since the trial began. His examination of the witness was not long, and he succeeded in abstracting from her some statements that were favorable to himself, namely, that at this afternoon's session, Detective Geyer, who traced Holmes' movements with the Pitzeel children, and discovered their bodies, was placed upon the stand by Geyer to be the chief witness of the prosecution. He told of the conflicting stories related to him by Holmes of the manner of Pitzeel's death. One of these stories was that the body found in the house on Callowhill street was a bogus corpse and the last one, and the one to which Holmes has since stuck to, was that Pitzeel committed suicide, and that he discovered the body, and with it carried out the scheme to defraud the insurance company.

When Mr. Graham started to have the witness tell of the finding of the bodies of the Pitzeel children, the defense made the most stubborn fight that it has waged since the trial began. Judge Arnold, without hesitation, decided that the killing of the children had no direct bearing upon the murder of Pitzeel. He said that if Holmes was acquitted here he could be taken either to Toronto or Indianapolis to be tried for the murders committed there, and that he ruled the evidence out. Holmes had watched the face of the judge attentively while he spoke, and when he rendered his decision a gleam of relief passed over his countenance, and there came a sudden gulping in his throat.

Attorneys for Defense Rejoice. The attorneys of the defense were joyful over the decision of Judge Arnold and they now affect to believe that there is a prospect of the jury returning a verdict of acquittal against Holmes as they claim no evidence has been presented showing directly that the prisoner killed Pitzeel. On the contrary, Mr. Graham is equally confident that he has placed a noose around Holmes' neck by the evidence he has already presented.

for the commonwealth from Indianapolis, Toronto and other places, and in consequence the prosecution will call but two more witnesses. One of these will be Dr. Lettman, an expert chemist who will testify to the effect produced by the inhalation of chloroform upon the system of a human being. The defense has no witnesses except those of the commonwealth that they gave notice that they would call in their behalf. These will probably be disposed of in a comparatively short time and the closing argument in the case may be made tomorrow, and the trial will be over by the jury tomorrow night. At all events there now seems no likelihood that the trial will extend beyond Saturday at the furthest.

Rain Is Welcomed in Various Sections Where Drought Has Caused Suffering.

Bellefonte, Oct. 31.--A steady, hard rain has been falling here since morning, with indications of continuing another twenty-four hours. The drought has been the most severe ever known in central Pennsylvania, causing great loss in crops and much sickness. Altoona, Pa., Oct. 31.--The long continued drought has at last been broken in this section and everybody is rejoicing. Early this morning snow and rain poured began to fall, and this was shortly succeeded by a steady down-pour of rain, which is still descending and bids fair to keep up indefinitely.

York, Pa., Oct. 31.--The drought in this section has been broken for the day and evening there was a steady downpour of rain. Although the city was not affected materially by the want of rain, in various parts of the country farmers and others suffered considerably. Flagler, who is charged with the murder of Ernest Green, a young colored boy, last August, while he was picking up a pear from under a tree in the yard surrounding the Flagler residence. Miss Flagler is now under bail in the sum of $10,000, based upon the proceedings before the coroner's jury. No new process will be necessary, the district attorney states, to secure her presence in court to plead to the indictment, and until a day is fixed for the trial, no proceedings will occur in the case.

Albert Fox, a prominent farmer of that vicinity, married Miss Fox's wife, for whom parents had arranged a betrothal. LIZZIE McMILLAN TALKS

Assistant at Anti-Cruelty Society's Home Unburdens Her Mind.

CONTRARY TO LEGAL ADVICE

She Tells Her Side of the Story of Life at the Home for Waifs--Claims to Have Built Up the Institution.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 31.--Commissioner Francis J. Torrence, of the state board of charities, continued his investigation of the scandals connected with the Pittsburg anti-cruelty society today. Mrs. M. J. Crawford was matron of the temporary home for waifs two months. She testified that Miss McMILLAN was tyrannical and that Secretary Dorente hampered her authority. This was the cause of her leaving. She saw nothing immoral at the home. Lizzie McMILLAN, at one time inmate of the house and a servant about the office, had never seen anything wrong about the place. C. M. Zimmers, father of Lizzie Zimmers, who was her stepmother, testified that she was a good woman, and that she was a good mother to the children of the society and spoke with bitterness against Dorente who took charge of the home.

Lizzie McMILLAN, Secretary Dorente's assistant, and who had attempted to horsewhip Executive Chairman Dr. Flower for talking about her, was then examined.

Attorney McGarry responded by saying that he would offer a book showing her connection with the society. Mr. McGarry also testified that he had been testifying since it had been intimated that she is about to be indicted for her assault on Dr. Flower.

Mr. McGarry also testified that he had advised her not to appear. Commissioner Torrence, however, ruled her a competent witness and insisted upon her testimony being offered. After the court had decided to accept her testimony she was asked to testify further.

"So your refusal to testify further?" said Mr. Torrence.

She could not keep quiet. Miss McMILLAN looked hard at her attorney's expressions, and it was evident she was struggling with conflicting emotions. Finally she chose to satisfy her desire to talk, and said deliberately: "No, sir, I do not refuse."

The story regarding the elaborate menu served was narrated by the state board of charities. It was stated that all of those delicacies were donated by members and others without cost to the society. Witness dramatically asserted that she was the daughter of a Mason, and was being hounded and dragged down by Masons. She was summoned to testify to her care of the home and the children. She then handed Commissioner Torrence letters from Henry C. Fritch, who is a prominent attorney and a solicitor, her personal care for and improvement of the home, having built it up from a home of three rooms to a home of twelve rooms, and how she had cared for the many little outcasts that had been sheltered and protected. She had been given authority by a director, other than Secretary Dorente, and had stamped her name on the authority vested in her.

GREASE IN HIS CREAMERY.

Some 1 he began mixing the oleo with the creamery butter and selling it all as creamery. He was arrested, the butter analyzed and he was fined $1,000 and warned not to do so again. The butter, amounting to 3,000 pounds, was seized and found to be oleo. The man is under arrest and the case will be pushed. The department is determined to live up to the laws as they exist.

TWO INDIANS IN DEMAND.

They Are Badly Wanted by Lynchers for a Fiendish Crime. Spokane, Wash., Oct. 31.--Chief Deputy United States Marshal Vinson returned here today from the Okanagon reservation, bringing news of a most horrible crime perpetrated by two Indians, named Chuk-wah-kie and Plicker.

The story is a little 12-year-old girl, Mary, daughter of James Pole--and, taking her out in the mountains, they tied her up like upon a cayuse and turned her adrift on the way country to the north. For nearly two days the cayuse wandered aimlessly about the wilderness with the senseless victim firmly strapped upon its back. The child was restored to consciousness with great difficulty, when she related the story of her capture. The country is being scoured for the Indians, and if caught a terrible revenge is in store for them.

THE TROUBLE ENDED.

Philadelphia Stock Exchange Recovers from the Recent Collapse. Philadelphia, Oct. 31.--The break in the Philadelphia stock exchange yesterday in the local industrial was followed today by a reaction, shortly after the opening today heavy selling or ders in the Electric Storage Battery stocks made their appearance and before 11 o'clock the common stock had declined from 55 to 49 and the preferred, which in the first five minutes had jumped from 86 to 82, had also dropped to 49. These were the only extensive losses recorded during the brief period of renewed fright, for Welsbach light stock, dropped only from 86 to 82, and the Welsbach lamp company from 87 to 85 and Pennsylvania Heat, Light and Power from 18 to 16.

SHERIFF CARES FOR FITZ.

Governor Clarke Is Pleasedly Happy and Insists That There Will Be No Fight. Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 31.--From all appearances, both the state and the city are likely to be at liberty to participate in a prize fight for several days to come. Today's legal proceedings were brief and inconclusive, but they indicate that while Judge Martin will not strain the law against the lanky Australian, neither will he hurry the proceedings along in order to oblige the pugilistic contingent.

At 2 o'clock the pugilist and his manager appeared before Judge Martin in the circuit court. Mayor Waters, of the Hot Springs Athletic Club, had scribbled Julian, that the attorneys of the club could not reach Little Rock until tomorrow, and consequently when the assistant attorney general Mr. Benningway requested a continuance until tomorrow afternoon because of the absence of Attorney General Kinsworthy, there was no opposition. The court then ordered the pugilist to be in the custody of a deputy sheriff.

Under the law Fitzsimmons and Julian may be held in bonds not exceeding $5,000 each, until the peace, should the court decide if they contemplate a breach thereof.

Governor Clarke was mildly and placidly happy this afternoon. "I have declared my opinion as to the prize fight to a question, that there would be no prize fighting in Arkansas on Oct. 31. As you see, there has been none. You will also see that there has been no prize fighting in Arkansas on any other day so long as I am governor of the state. The resources at my disposal are fully equal to any emergency, and prize money will be kept out of the state."

Hot Springs, Ark., Oct. 31.--Froth and vapor have been the principal characteristics of the day which will witness the great pugilistic combat for the world's championship between Corbett and Fitzsimmons. Corbett and his manager, William A. Brady, have declared to submit to the governor's authority by surrendering to the police in Little Rock tomorrow morning.

At a conference tonight between Stutz, Brady and Vendig, the purse for the O'Donnell-Maher fight was fixed at $4,000, winner to take all. The fight is announced to take place at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The action of the authorities in relation to the prize fight will decide the question whether Corbett and Fitzsimmons may fight in public on Arkansas soil. Manager Brady's word must be taken for the prize money, which this morning Corbett was driven from a private house, where he is stopping, to Whittington park, where he is waiting about the time of the fight.

Corbett and Brady, accompanied by Attorney General Kinsworthy and Colonel Martin, will leave for Little Rock at 7 o'clock tomorrow, and surrender themselves before the chancellor for a hearing on Wednesday afternoon. The information attached to which sets forth that the fight in which the men proposed to engage may result in the killing of one or the other.

He confessed his guilt to Chief Desmond, saying that he had been stealing for three years, covering up his crime by false entries in his books and taking the company's money in small amounts as often as a prelude for funds demanded. EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS WEST

Hundreds of Citizens Rush from Their Homes in Alarm.

VIBRATIONS NORTH AND SOUTH

Clocks Are Stopped and Houses Are Moved from Their Foundations--Disturbances Felt in Many Cities. But Little Damage Is Done.

Washington, Oct. 31.--The Seismograph at the weather bureau headquarters recorded an earthquake shock of at least forty-five seconds duration here this morning at three minutes and fifteen seconds after 6 o'clock. The instrument is not sufficiently elaborate to indicate the exact extent of the vibrations or their direction, and makes no distinction between tremors in vertical and horizontal planes, but Professor Marvin, the expert in charge, says there is no doubt from the duration of the shocks as shown by the instrument that they were of sufficient magnitude to have been plainly perceptible to residents in this city. This is borne out by the fact that a number of Washingtonians discussed the novel sensations they experienced early this morning, long before it was generally known that a great seismic wave had traversed a considerable area of the United States.

In many homes dishes were broken and pictures fell from the walls, but, as far as can be ascertained, no damage has occurred to any of the public or private property. The shocks were generally felt throughout the south and west also in Canada.

Shook in Indiana. Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 31.--Startling news was received here from different points over the state regarding the severe earthquake shock of this morning. The vibrations were from north to south. Hundreds of people ran from their homes in fright, but little damage was done.

At Noblesville people left their beds which were rocking like cradles and remained awake until daylight. Northern Indiana was severely shaken. The shock at Anderson was severe enough to throw people off lousers, throw articles out of cupboards and stop clocks in every part of the city. Several small structures were moved off their foundations and many large buildings were cracked.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 31.--Several distinct shocks of earthquakes were felt in this vicinity and other parts of Ohio just before daylight this morning. The city hall was severely shaken, the furniture being thrown about and several persons on duty ran out. Reports from Springfield and Columbus say the shock was felt there for a minute or less.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 31.--Slight earthquake shocks were felt in this city, Beatrice and other points in the eastern part of the state this morning, no damage was done.

McKeessport, Pa., Oct. 31.--This town was shaken by an earthquake this morning shortly after 6 o'clock. Two distinct shocks were felt. The vibrations were from west to east. The shock was also felt at Gettysburg.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 31.--An earthquake, the first noticeable in this vicinity in many years, was felt about 5.44 this morning. A few windows, it is said, were stopped and windows shaken.

FORTUNE TELLER'S TRIAL.

Lancaster Women Charged with Putting Spell on a Family. Lancaster, Oct. 31.--The case of Mrs. Fanny Cosgrove, of this city, who was charged with fortune telling, was heard today and attracted a great deal of attention. The prosecutor is John Herr, son of Jacob Herr, a well-known farmer of Bird-in-Hand, and a nephew of John Herr, whom the woman was charged with surrounding with spells.

The prosecutor testified that he went to Mrs. Cosgrove's house and she told him that his uncle, John Herr, had paid her a large sum of money to do harm to John Herr. She said she and John had been in Jacob's house after night and had put quicksilver in the well and done other harm. The prosecutor and his father called on the woman several times and for money she gave them a tallman to protect themselves against harm from enemies. The elder Herr corroborated his son and said that all the harm the woman had done was to put quicksilver in the well and done other harm.

The jury found the defendant not guilty, but directed her to pay the costs.

CHAIN OF PRAYER.

Christian Endeavorers May Take Up a Unique Idea. Boston, Oct. 31.--President Clark, of the Christian Endeavor society, a week or more ago, suggested in a letter, the starting of a "chain of prayer," to reach around the world, in which every Endeavorer who chose, might form a link. The plan was for the members to offer at least one short petition every day for each other, and for the Christian Endeavorer cause. It was also suggested that special objects presented from time to time might be included.

The only condition in joining this "prayer chain" is that one shall believe in prayer. The idea is being accepted rapidly by the members of the society.

NOT STRONG ENOUGH.

Ruling That Marriage by Telegraph Doesn't Go. New York, Oct. 31.--Immigration Commissioner Scener said today that there would be no marriage by telegraph or telephone for Albert Corbi, of Chicago, and Katrina Jaeger, nor with her three children at Ellis Island. Corbi telegraphed to the commissioner Monday asking if such a ceremony might be performed.

"Marriage by telephone is too flimsy a sort of bond for a couple about to run up against such a divorce town as Chicago," said the commissioner.

Closing of Durant's Case.

San Francisco, Oct. 31.--District Attorney Barnes continued his closing argument for the prosecution in the Durant trial this morning. WEATHER REPORT. For Eastern Pennsylvania, showers in the early hours of the morning, with weather; winds shifting to westerly, cooler near the coast.
