William Stetter Scooped Up and Carried Two Hundred Feet by a Fender on North Main Avenue.

That the Scranton Traction company's present fenders fend was realistically shown last evening by an episode on North Main avenue. William Stetter, age 25, who is slightly deaf, was crossing the North Main avenue street car age 25, who is slightly deaf, was crossing the North Main avenue street car tracks at 9.30 o'clock, Car 113, bound for the central city struck him and Stetter heavilly sat in the fender and was carried about 200 feet. He sprang out when the car had slackened its moud sufficiently. and sufficiently.

spood sufficiently.

It was the first clear test of the new fender and it resulted wholly in the company's favor. Stetter was badly frightened and has a small bruise on the arm, from contact with the fender. After alighting from his iron nest he began to abuse the conductor and was seemingly none the worse off for his escapade. A fact which shows that the fender is a gentle receptacle is that Stetter held a pipe in his mouth when struck and when he regained the pipe still complacently rested between his teeth.

The motorman claims that he rang the bell but Stetter's deafness pre-vented him from hearing the warning and he was picked up and carried.

THE BOILERS WERE DRY.

Explanation of the Awful Catastrophe in Which Forty Lives Were Lost. In Which Forty Lives Were Lost.

Detroxt, Mich., Nov. 7.—A dry boiler, not a drop of water—tell the whole story of yesterday's terrible catastrophe, caused by an explosion of the easterny boiler and may be both.

This fact was definitely settled this morning when A. H. Whitmore, one of the best boiler experts in the city, crawled under the wet and twisted timbers, and dug out the debris to timbers, and dug out the debris to the place where the battery of boilers was located. The westerly boiler was not in place, and it is believed that it was also exploded. Boiler Inspector McGregor inclines to the theory that both bo'ers went out, and is emphatic in his statement that there was not a drop of water in the east boiler when she went out.

"It was as dry as a powder mill, and when we find the whole business the conditions will prove this. I think that both botlers were split across at the seams; if they had opened lengthwise there would have teen a side force that would have taken the walls in both directions," was the boller inspector's explanation.

Engineer N. R. Thompsan, who was in charge of the boilers, says there was plenty of water in the boilers, but his statement is not believed. He will, undoubtedly, be held by the coroner's jury.

LANCASTER'S BLUE LAWS.

Movement to Close Stores and Places of Amusement on Sunday.

Amnsement on Sunday.

Lancaster, Nov. 7.—At the meeting of city councils last evening an ordinance was presented, which if it passes will compel the mayor to close all clubs, places of amusement, barber shops, cigar stores, ice cream saloons and similar places, and prohibit the sale of newspapers on the streets or at stands on Sunday.

The ordinance is being pushed by a number of ministers and church people, and tonight it was referred to the police committee. The members of

MY FINANCIAL CAREER.

Here is the eleverest short story printed in many a day. It was origin-ally published in "The Bookkeeper." and is written by E. A. Nash, whose name is new to story readers. When I go into a bank I get rattled.

When I go into a bank I get rattled. The clerks rattle me; the wickets rattle me; the sight of the money rattles me; everything rattles me. The moment I cross the threshold of a bank I am a hesitating jay. If I attempt to transact business there I become an irresponsible fdict. I knew this beforehand, but my salary had been raised $50 a month, and I felt that the bank was the only place for it. So I shambled $50 a month, and I felt that the bank was the only place for it. So I shambled in and looked timidly around at the clerks. I had an idea that a person about to open an account must needs consult the manager. I went up to a wicket marked "Accountant." The accountant was a tall, cool devil. The very sight of him rattled me. My voice was sepulchral. ce was sepulchral.

voice was sepulchral.

"Can I see the manager," I said, and added solemnly, "alone?" I don't know why I said "alone."

"Certainly," said the accountant, and fetched him. The manager was a grave, calm man. I held my $56 clutched in a crumpled ball in my pocket.

"Are you the manager?" I asked. God knows I didn't doubt it.

"Yes," he said.

"Can I see you," I asked, "alone?" I didn't want to say "alone" again, but didn't want to say "alone" again, but without it the thing seemed self-evi-dent. The manager looked at me in some alarm. He felt that I had an "Come in here," he said, and led the way to a private room. He turned the key in the lock.

We are safe from interruption here, he said. "Sit down." We both sat found no voice to speak.

"You are one of Pinkerton's men, I presume," he said. He had gathered from my mysterious manner that I was a detective. I knew what he was thinking, and it made me worse.

"You not from Pinkerton's" I said.

"No, not from Pinkerton's," I said, seemingly to imply that I came from a rival agency. "To tell the truth," I went on, as if I had been prompted to lie about it, "I'm not a detective at all. I've come to open an account. I've come to open an account. to keep all my money in this bank."
The manager looked relieved, but still serious; he concluded now that I was a son of Baron Rothschild, or a young Gould.

"A large amount I suppose" he said. "Fairly large," I whispered, "I pro-pose to deposit fifty-six dollars now and fifty dollars a month regularly." manager got up and opened r. He called to the accountant.

"Mr. Montgomery," he said unkindly loud, "this gentleman is opening an account; he will deposit $56. Good morning." I rose. A big iron door stood open at the side of the room.

"Good morning," I said, and stepped into the safe. into the safe.
"Come out," said the manager coldly, and showed me the other way. I went up to the accountant's wicket and poked the ball of money at him with a quick, conclusive movement, as if I were doing a conjuring trick. My face was ghastly pale.

"Here." I said, "deposit it." The tone of the words seemed to mean, "let us do this painful thing while the fit is on to another clerk. He made me write the sum on a slip of paper and sign my name in the book. I no longer knew what I was doing. The bank swam be-what I was doing. The bank swam before my eyes.

"Is it deposited?" I asked in a hollow, vibrating voice.

"It is," said the accountant.

"Then I want to draw a check."

My idea was to draw out $6 for present use. Sone one gave me a ch-clbook through a wicket, and some one e'a: began telling me how to write it out. The people in the bank had the impression that I was an invalid mil lionaire. I wrote something on thcheck and thrust it in at the clerk. He check and thrust it in at the clerk. He looked at it.

"What! Are you drawing it all out again?" he asked in surprise. Then I realized that I had written $56 instead of $6. I had a feeling that it was impossible to explain the thing. All the clerks had stopped writing to look at me. Reckless with misery, I made a plunge.

"Yes, the whole thing."
"You withdraw your money from the bank?"

bank?"
"Every cent of it."
"Are you not going to deposit any more?" asked the clerk, astonished.
"Never," An idiotic hope struck me that they might think something had insulted me while I was writing the check, and that I had changed my mind. I made a wretched atempt to look like a man with a fearfully quick remner. The clerk prepared to pay the temper. The clerk prepared to pay the

"What?"
"How will you have it?"
"How will you have it?"
"Oh." I caught his meaning and answered, without even trying to think,
"In fiftles." He gave me a fifty-dollar bill.

"And the six? he asked, dryly.

"In sixes," I said. He gave it to me and I rushed out. As the hig doors swung behind me I caught the echo of a roar of laughter that went up to the ceiling of the bank. Since then I bank no more. I keep my money in cash in my trousers pocket and my savings in silver dollars in a sock.

H. P. SIMPSON THE OWNER

Bought the Base Ball Pranchise from President Betts Yesterday.

HE WILL HAVE ASSOCIATES

Thomas H. Brooks and Edward Wade Will Join Mr. Simpson-They Will Associate ex-President Betts with Them-Liberal Policy Outlined.

The Eastern league franchise, ball park lease and other property of the Scranton Base Ball association was Scranton Base Ball association was bid in at sheriff's sale yesterday by W. L. Betts, president of the association, through his attorney, Robert J. Murray. Within an hour President Betts sold his interest to Harry P. Simpson, the young and well-to-do coal operator, who, during the next few days, will associate with him Thomas H. Brooks, another young coal man, and Edward Wade, secretary of the Finch Manufacturing company. President Betts will retain a one-quarter interest in the reorganization. This interest in the reorganization. This will be done according to previous arrangement, the new owners wanting the benefit of the ex-president's experience and advice, although by his own stipulation he will not enter into the active or detailed management of the new venture. The property was bid in for $2,180.50 which sum will have to satisfy Judgments amounting to about $2,800, and held by seven of the directors. Obligations that seven of the directors. Obligations that will have to go unsatisfied are a note of $900 held by a Scranton bank, a sum approximating $900, due President Betts, and separate from his judgment, and various other debts which will total about $4,700. However, the only creditors to be benefited by the sale are the seven who held judgments amounting to $2,800, and they will be paid their proportionate share of the $2,180,50 realized from the sale.

McDermott for Manager.

Last night a message was sent to McDermott, this season's manager of Fall River, of the New England league, instructing him to come to Scranton tomorrow and close a contract for next year. Mr. Simpson will at once pro-cure estimates for a new grandstand, bleachers, gates and fence, and will negotiate with the Delaware, Lacka-wanna and Western company for wide-ning and lengthening the park, possibly fity feet in each direction.

fifty feet, in each direction.

Twenty minutes before 4 o'clock, the hour advertised for the sale, there had gathered at the park President Hanlon, gathered at the park President Hanlon, of the State league; Marty Swift, the Carbondale manager; President Betts, Treasurer Swayze and Directors Jordan and Coleman, of the Scranton association; Alex Dunn, ir., and Morris Davidow, of the pawnbroking firm of Davidow Brothers, and several reporters and spectators. The presence of Mr. Dunn and Mr. Davidow was not clearly understood until after the sale clearly understood until after the sale opened, and then they bore an important part in what transpired Previous to the sale, Mr. Hanlon the State league president, who had reached the city at I o'clock, made a conditional offer of $2,500. This sum was refused and Deputy Ferber proceeded to cry the sale, announcing that the franchise and lease would first be sold jointly and independent of the grand stand, bleech-ers, two sets of uniforms, tickets, chairs and other almost useless things Davidow Bld $700. The pawnbroker quite appropriately The pawnbroker quite appropriately started the ball a-rolling by bidding $700, and Attorney Murray proceeded to go him 50 cents better. Mr. Davidow increased his bids at $100 a clip until $1,700 was reached. Then a recess was taken while Mr. Davidow and Mr. Dunn whispered in one another's ear, and President Betts, Attorney Murray. Treasurer Swayze, Director Jordan and Director Coleman got in their corner Director Coleman got in their corner and carried on another whispering bee. Then the attorney and the pawn-broker came together and the one told the other that $5,000 was about the sum required to fatten the base ball confer.

required to fatten the base ball confer.

Mr. Davidow said something about seeing himself in a warm climate and the game was resumed.

From $1,700 the bidding match between the two went on to $2,175, when
Mr. Davidow suggested a call of time, and another conference was bell The and another conference was held. The prospective buyers here learned that the attorney would continue to bid to a very high figure in order to have the property knocked down at a proper property snocked down at a proper sum and they forthwith decided to withdraw, Attorney Murray raising the pawnbroker's bid from $2,175 to $2,175.-50, at which figure the sale was made. The rest of the property went to the attorney for a bid of $5, making $2,180.50 in all. Mr. Murray immediately announced that he had made the purchase as "attorney," but whose attorney was not mentioned. And the crowd buttoned its coats, drew a long breath of relief, smiled and left the grounds in the belief that the association had bid in its own property. On this point there was either a prearranged un-derstanding or misunderstanding, as Lawyer Murray really bid as attor-ncy for President Betts, and not for the association, which fact transpired durng the next hour. Went to the Sheriff's Office.

Soon after 5 o'clock Mr. Simpson, accompanied by President Betts, emerged from the former's office and proceeded to the court house, where, in the sheriff's office, the sale was recorded to President Betts, and the other financial settlements made which made Mr. Simpson the owner. Within the next few days Mr. Simpson and the men he will associate with him will decide upon a definite course of proceedure. At will associate with him will decide upon a definite course of proceedure. At all events, McDermott will become manager after his arrival here tomorrow, and will at once be sent on a akirmish for a dozen and a half or more players from among whom next season's team will be selected, during practice play in the spring, as it is not probable that the Scranton players on the reserve list will be retained, pat Meaney excepted, and possibly Pete Eagan.

Pat Meaney excepted, and possibly Pete Eagan.

Mr. Simpson was unwilling last night to discuss at length his new venture. He intimated, however, that a broad policy would be established; that the comfort of the public would be well looked after; that the grounds would be modernized and made up-to-date, and that as good a club as money can procure will be brought here. He believes that the more liberal the policy and outlay, the more liberal will be and outlay, the more liberal the policy and outlay, the more liberal will be public appreciation and support. He said he makes the investment chiefly from pride in Scranton and the sport, and that he and his associates will be satisfied if their effort brings them a fair profit to pay for their work and trouble.
