OUR DEFENCELESS COASTS

Unpleasant Facts Pointed Out by General Miles.

THE NEED OF MORE BATTERIES

Principal Forces Upon the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts Would Be at the Mercy of a Strong Naval Power in Time of War.

Washington, Nov. 11.—The report of Major General Miles, commanding the United States Army, which was made public today, differs in many material respects from statements in regard to its contents previously published.

General Miles believes that the peaceable condition now existing among the various Indian tribes is largely attributable to the presence of troops at strategic points, and that the admirable conduct of the experienced army officials, who have been placed in charge of the principal agencies, while it is economical and desirable to have the reserve forces of the army at the great centers of communication, General Miles urgently contends that these points should be selected only for their strategic value, and that the tendency towards concentration should not be carried to the point of depriving the western settlements of proper protection.

Under the head of coast defence, General Miles states that the condition of these defenses is such as to require decided and immediate action for their improvement. Some progress has been made toward defending San Francisco and a few modern guns and rifles have been placed there. These, however, are but a small part of what is needed for the defence of the harbor while San Diego is in the same condition as Puget Sound, entirely at the mercy of a strong naval power, which could blockade every important port on the Pacific coast within ninety days.

While the railroads might transport a million brave men to the coast they would be useless without appliances to come with the modern engines of war, and with all our intelligence, pride, inventive genius and enterprise we are as far behind in the modern appliances of war as China or Japan. Such were the conditions, says General Miles, as stated by him in his report six years ago, and such are the conditions today, with the exception of slight progress made at San Francisco.

Atlantic Coast Unprotected. The entire gulf coast and all the great cities of the Atlantic coast northward to Philadelphia are entirely without modern appliances of war as China or Japan. Such were the conditions, says General Miles, as stated by him in his report six years ago, and such are the conditions today, with the exception of slight progress made at San Francisco.

He strongly recommends the construction of all the high power guns and systems of defense called for in the general plan of the board of ordnance and fortifications, and to meet in part he suggests the undertaking of a project that might be derived from the sale of abandoned military reservations. He approves the use of bicycles and motor wagons in the army, and recommends that a force of twelve companies be equipped with these devices.

General Miles argues for an increase in the strength of the army, saying that there is no reason why it should become crystallized and kept at one strength as it has been for years. It should increase with the growth of the country and be determined by the number of minimum of one soldier for every 3,000 population and a maximum of one in 1,000.

RELEASED BY A MOB.

Will Purvis, a Condemned White Cap, is Husted Out of Jail by His Friends.

Purvis, Miss., Nov. 11.—The jail at this place was broken open last night by a mob and Will Purvis, the now thoroughly celebrated white cap, was released. About midnight a crowd of one hundred or more men armed with Winchester rifles broke into the town and surrounded the court house and jail. A number of guards were on duty. They were covered by guns and threatened with death if they were allowed to leave. While the guards were held at bay by a portion of the mob, others broke in the heavily barred doors and unlocked the cell in which Purvis was confined. With keys previously provided for them they got them in and Purvis was released. He was rushed out and into a buggy that was in readiness and which was rapidly driven out of town.

Will Purvis is for the second time under death sentence. A year or more ago he was sentenced to hang for the murder of a white cap who had told on the gang, and mounted the scaffold to pay the death penalty before hundreds of people. The trap was sprung and he fell heavily to the ground unharmed, the rope having come unfastened. On Monday last the Supreme court sentenced him to hang again on the 11th of December, but his friends and neighbors, who were witnesses of the former attempt to execute him, declared he should never be hanged again, and he was freed by force.

DAVID WALKS WITH DAN.

Persons with an Eye to the Supreme Court Vacancy Think It Significant.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—When Senator Hill, of New York, accompanied by his colleague, Senator Murphy, walked over to the war department today and held a long chat with Secretary Dan Lamont in his innermost chamber, rumors became rife that some important movement was on foot. These expectations were increased when it became known that Senator Hill and Secretary Lamont, arm in arm, had gone over to the department of justice and had held another long consultation with Attorney General Harmon.

The impression immediately found favor that a New York name satisfactory to the president and to the New York senators had been agreed upon to be submitted to the senate, which meets next month for the vacant position of associate justice of the Supreme court of the United States. Senator Hill, who spoke of subsequently, distinctly disclaimed having discussed anything but "some legal business" with the secretary of war, and the attorney general.

It is known that the president has openly expressed a determination not to send in another nomination for the Supreme court until he had assurances that the nomination would be confirmed. It is shrewdly suspected that to-day's interviews may have given a reasonable assurance from the chief justice of the supreme court which previously proved effective would not seek to delay or antagonize the confirmation of a New York candidate other than those previously objected to.

SLEPT THIRTEEN DAYS.

Remarkable Case of Mrs. Drolot in a Montreal Hospital.

Montreal, Nov. 11.—After a sleep of thirteen days Mrs. G. Drolot, an inmate of the Notre Dame hospital, awoke Thursday night. She had been in a catatonic condition, oblivious of all transpiring around her, without nourishment and to all appearances dead, save for a slight respiration. Repeated attempts were made to awaken her. Pins and needles were thrust into her body without producing any effect. The action of the heart and pulse was scarcely perceptible, while her body assumed the rigidity of a wax figure. On Thursday night Mrs. Drolot surprised her attendants by suddenly rising from her bed and asking where she was. She seemed quite unharmed, and acquainted with the details of her confinement.

CLERGYMAN IN DANGER.

Minister in a Minnesota Iron Town is Threatened by White Caps.

Duluth, Nov. 11.—The law and order people are in a state of alarm at Virginia, a small town on the Mesaba range, are likely to have trouble at any moment. Rev. O. J. Gary, the Methodist clergyman, has been attacking the wickedness of the city, and in consequence the men whose feelings have been hurt are threatening to kill him. The clergyman has been notified by white caps to leave the town at once on pain of death if he remains, but the plucky clergyman will make a fight.

Steps Looking to the Preservation of American Life.

SHIPS FOR ALEXANDRETTA

Two Vessels Will Be Within a Short Distance From Scenes of Disorder.

An English Mission Near Jerusalem Attacked by a Mob.

Washington, Nov. 11.—An additional step looking to the preservation of American life and interest in Turkey was taken by the navy department today. At a late hour this afternoon Secretary Herbert ordered the San Francisco club to be sent to Marseilles, to Alexandretta. Admiral Selfridge was telegraphed at Havre today to proceed at once to Marseilles and by his flag captain to Alexandria, where the admiral Kirkland, who will return to the United States, the Maribeahe is already at Marseilles, which is only a few hours' sail from Alexandria.

The two vessels will doubtless be sufficient to represent the American government in Turkish waters, but if more are needed they can be quickly dispatched there. Constantinople, Nov. 11.—The English mission near Jerusalem has been attacked by a riotous mob. The missionaries were taken to the mission and a number were killed. No further details have reached here.

O'DONNELL KNOCKED OUT.

He Drops Before Maher in the First Round—Corbett Makes a Speech and Also Congratulates the Winner.

Athletic Club, Maspeth, N. Y., Nov. 11.—The meeting of Maher and Steve O'Donnell in the arena of the Empire Athletic Club at Maspeth, L. I., created an immense amount of interest, and the fight was a very close one. Early as 8 o'clock there were very few vacant seats in the club house and outside a long string of sports pushed and nudged their way into the arena. At the box office, there were a lot of out of town sporting men present from Philadelphia and Boston and even from New York. The largest crowd ever seen at the Empire Athletic Club, Maher was the favorite in the betting, his manager, J. J. Quinn, being odds on at 10 to 1. O'Donnell was not without friends, and a good deal of money changed hands.

Corbett responded to calls for "Corbett" and stepping into the ring, said: "All I've got to say, gentlemen, is that I'd be in England or Australia and act as a first class passenger if I'd be chased out of the country." O'Donnell was the first to appear at 9:35 o'clock. He was well received, but Maher, who stepped into the ring about a minute after a great ovation, was first round, after one minute and three seconds.

Round 1.—Maher led with his right and landed on the jaw, knocking O'Donnell down. The moment the Australian got up Maher repeated, and again O'Donnell was down. Maher landed on the ninth count, and, after sparring for a second Maher knocked him down with a left swing on the jaw. Maher, who stepped into the ring about a minute after a great ovation, was first round, after one minute and three seconds.

THE PHILADELPHIA LEXOW

Committee Appointed by State Senate Begins Operations.

MEMBERS WHO WERE PRESENT

The Work Before the Body is Outlined by Attorney Angelo T. Freedley—Agent Addis is the First Witness Called for Examination.

Philadelphia, Nov. 11.—The committee appointed by the state senate upon a petition of the Citizens' Municipal Association of Philadelphia to investigate the municipal affairs of this city, formally began its work this afternoon in the Hotel Metropolitan. The committee was to meet at 1 o'clock, but owing to an executive session it was fifty minutes beyond that hour when Chairman Andrews called the meeting to order and announced that Silas W. Pettit, president of the Union League Club, Philadelphia, and Angelo T. Freedley, attorney, of the Citizens' Municipal association, had been selected as the committee's counsel. Mr. Pettit was absent, and his law partner, Harry B. Gill, represented him. All of the members of the committee were present with the exception of Speaker Pro Tem, of the Senate, Thomas, an ex-officio member who departed today for Atlanta with the Pennsylvania commission.

HARRITY DENIES IT.

The Insinuation That He Was Disloyal to His Party is Met with Considerable Warmth—Did Not Lead a Movement in Favor of Judge Smith.

Philadelphia, Nov. 11.—Ex-Secretary of the Commonwealth and Chairman of the Democratic National Committee W. F. Harrity, when spoken to today concerning the rumor that he had helped to direct a late movement in Philadelphia against the present Pennsylvania judges, in which Catholic and members of Irish societies voted for Hon. P. P. Smith only for superior court judge, thus cutting down the total vote of Judge Smith's colleagues upon the Democratic ticket by several thousand, Mr. Harrity replied with some warmth: "The statement that I aided Judge Smith or that I was disloyal to the party for the superior court, to the prejudice of any of the other candidates is absolutely and unqualifiedly false. I never advised, suggested or participated in any person whatsoever, either directly or indirectly, that Democrats individually or collectively should especially aid any candidate upon the ticket, and I never advised any person to support the whole and entire Democratic ticket.

"I challenge successful contradiction of my statement, and declare that it is not within the power of any living man to produce a single scintilla of evidence in support of the charge. I particularly challenge those newspapers which have invented or given circulation to the venomous falsehood; and especially those in whose columns there has never appeared a single word of condemnation or disapproval of the organizations or individuals whose opposition to political candidates has been avowedly based upon race prejudice and religious bigotry.

"The Democratic party in Pennsylvania and in Philadelphia has been in the habit of nominating candidates who were worthy of the support of every Democrat, and I always cheerfully voted for and supported them. This year, the Democratic state ticket was made up of gentlemen of unquestionable character and ability, and every one of them was entitled to the vote of every Democrat. I have been the subject of much newspaper criticism and abuse, but I have never been charged with party disloyalty until now, when it is done rather by insinuation than by direct attack. I understand that under the circumstances they can successfully appeal to race and religious prejudices. I believe in the right of every citizen to be believed by those who are not his friends, but I should state the truth for the information of those who do not."

QUAY NOT A CANDIDATE.

Basel's Rumor on the Finding of an Old Circular.

Washington, Nov. 11.—Some attention has been attracted in the east by a newspaper story that Senator Quay had come out as a candidate for president. The basis of the tale was the discovery of some old pamphlet containing the senator's portrait and a eulogy of his career and character. The inference was that Mr. Quay had set on foot a campaign for nomination, and to further his ambition had started up a literary bureau. It turns out, however, that the pamphlet in question was published several years ago, when Mr. Quay was making his canvass for re-election to the senate. President Harrison had started an agent in Quay as chairman of the national Republican convention, and attempted to depose him from that office. Quay afterward resigned, and on going before his people for re-election issued the pamphlet in defense of the imputations cast upon him by Harrison and his lieutenants. Mr. Quay is not a candidate for the presidency.

GOVERNOR'S PROCLAMATION.

Thanksgiving Day in Pennsylvania.

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 11.—The governor issued the following proclamation before he left for Atlanta this afternoon: "In the name and by authority of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania—executive department: PROCLAMATION. The people of the commonwealth, recognizing the constant forbearance, loving kindness and gracious hand of Almighty God during the past year, and in accordance with the custom of the fathers, and in pursuance of the proclamation of the president of the United States to set apart one day for praise and thanksgiving, therefore, I, Daniel H. Hastings, governor of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do recommend Thursday, the twelfth day of November, in the year of our present year, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer to that day let us give up the occupation and cares of every day life. Let us assemble in our usual places of worship to give thanks to our Father in Heaven, as far as possible, reunite the family circle and strengthen the ties of home and friendship. Let us with grateful and reverent hearts acknowledge Him who has spared our lives, whose bounty has made the year prosperous, whose care has stayed our calamities, whose mercy has made us happy and contented. I invoke His blessing upon the years to come, to the end that His protecting hand shall be always with us; that we may continue in the way of peace and prosperity; that we may be inclined to that rectitude of life, as individuals and as a people, which shall insure the continuance of our Union, and our country may be continually strengthened; that, as a testimony of our gratitude, let us with bountiful hand remember the poor, the needy and the unfortunate who dwell in our midst. Given under my hand and the great seal of state, at the city of Harrisburg, this twelfth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-five, and of the commonwealth the hundred and twentieth. Daniel H. Hastings. By the governor, Frank Reeder, Secretary of Commonwealth."
