THE WORLD OF BUSINESS

STOCK! AND BONDS.

New York, Nov. 10.—Speculation at the stock exchange was dull, the sales for the two hours of business amounting to only 71,000 shares. The trading was monotonised by the professionals and even they were inclined to bo slow pending further developments regarding gold exports. The general ist ruled firm, and there was even a little buying of the Grangers, the feeling on this group of stocks is quite bullish. The general list improved 142% per cent., but near the close the gain was practially lost except, for the Grangers, which ruled firm. Reading was positively heavy, and fell from 11 to 9%. It is the opinion that the stock and junior holders will have to submit to heavy assessments. The stockholders will get nothing in return for their payments of cash, but the junior mortgages will receive preferred stock Manhattah was steadier at 100% a101½. The industrials were irregular, but in the main firmer. Speculation closed steady in tone. Net changes show gains of 142% for the day.

The range of today's prices for the active stocks of the New York stock market are given below. The quotations are furnished The Tribune by G. du B. Dimmick, manager for William Linn, Allen & Co... stock brokers, 412 Spruce street Beranton.

The status of the litigation as regards the projected consolidation of Great Northern and Northern Pacific follows: The suit which was brought by a stockholder of Great Northern to enjoin the latter from effecting a consolidation with the Northern Pacific was tried in the United States court at St. Paul and the decision was rendered in favor of Great Northern and its right to consolithe decision was rendered in favor of Great Northern and its right to consolidate with Northern Pacific. The plaintiff in the suit then appealed the case to the Supreme court, before which briefs were laid, and from which a decision is expected before the end of the year. This decision, it is understood, will practically settle the question of the legality of the proposed consolidation. There is, however, another suit pending in the State court in which a decision has not yet been rendered. The court is expected to give its decision before very long. The principal interest however, is in the case which is before the Supreme court. the Supreme court.

NEWS OF OUR INDUSTRIES.

The production of pig iron on November I was the largest ever known in this or any other country. The weekly ca-pacity of furnaces in blast was 217,306 pacity of furnaces in blast was 217,306 tons, an increase of nearly 16,000 tons over October 1, 43,000 tons over September 1. At no time in 1892 was the output of fron so large. Stocks of pig iron on hand declined from 418,000 tons on October 1, to 296,000 tons on November 1, and 153,000 tons less than on July 1. This indicates that the consumption of October 1, to 396,000 tons on November 1, and 153,000 tons less than on July 1. This indicates that the consumption of iron is larger than ever before. The price of iron has not been maintained recently, but the falling off is slight and it follows sudden and extreme advances. There was a snarp decline in the price of Bessemer iron in the valley region to $13 last week. This is $4 per ton below the highest figures in the late summer, and $3 per ton above the lowest point last winter. Steel billets are down to $19 in Wheeling and $19.50 at Pittsburg.

General Manager Henderson, of the Reading Coal and Iron company, has just returned from a two weeks' trip to various yards of the company in the West. He said yesterday that the conditions were favorable in the West, and there was a big demand for anthracite coal. The supply on hand was very small, and in a number of cases some of the yards had only about two sizes of coal on hand, and could not begin to fill the orders. At Chicago the supply of anthracite coal was very small, there being only about 2500 tons and there should be at least 75,000 tons. The orders there are coming in very fast, and it is impossible to fill them, notwithstanding the coal company has been shipping all coal available to points in the West. If there should be a severe cold spell it is thought that coal would take a big jump, which would make befter prices in the East. To-day the new anthracite coal freight rates to Buffalo and boints in the Vest go into effect. As the new rates are higher than those that have been in effect for some time, the coal companies have been shipping an immense amount of coal to Buffalo, but it is thought that these shipments will practically end, and in future more coal will be sent to tidewater points. The situation in New York and other Eastern cities is somewhat improved, and it is thought that if the coal which has been diverted from these points should be shipped there that the shortage will soon be over, and prices will be somewhat easier.

STORIES OF MAHONE.

His Cow, His Cook and His Senatorial

When General Mahone first entered the Southern army he was an almost hopeless dyspeptic. He had suffered for many years the uncertain and untimely effects of that exaspering malady. He thought he should have fresh milk every day in the field, for it had formed a part of his daily diet at home, so he took a cow into the army and carried the beast with him all through the war. General Mahone often related the annoyances the cow caused him. One time General Lee came to him after the cow had been in the way, and said: "General, you will have to leave that cow behind." "I cannot do it, sir." Mahone replied. "If we cannot get along with the cow, I will have to resign." So the cow remained, and she was actually at General Mahone's camp on that memorable day when Lee surrendered to Grant at Appomattox. When General Mahone first entered

Made the Cook Eat the Biscuit.

Says a former surgeon in the Confederate army: "I remember General Mahone as he appeared before Petersburg in 1864. He was already famous throughout the army for his fighting qualities and his temper. My duty took me frequently past his headquarters, and one morning I saw him pacing up and down in front of his tent while to negro sat in the doorway gorging himself with a fresh pan of biscuit, I turned to an officer and asked the meaning of this strange performance. Then came the explanation that the negro had baked a pan of sour biscuit for breakfast, and Mahone by way of an object lesson, had set the cook to eat Made the Cook Ent the Biscuit.

Why the Senstors Rosred.

When Mahone first appeared in the senate he was the recipient of many attentions, among them a magnificent bouquet of flowers from a fair constituent. He was much delighted. The bouquet was brought to him while he was sitting in the cloak-room with Logan, Don Cameron and Hawley, of Connecticut. After admiring the flowers he handed them to a negro attendant with instructions that they be taken to Mrs. Mahone. Before starting on his errand the messenger carefully removed the card bearing the name of the lady. "Why do you do that?" asked Mahone. "Mr. Senator." was the reply, "I'se been here long time at dis business, an' when outside women send flowers, an' sich to a senator, we allers take off de card with de 'Compliments of Mrs, or Miss So-and-So' before we takes dem to de senator's wife." Don Cameron and the other senators roared. When he had recovered himself, Mahone, addressing his brother statesmen, said, "Gentlemen, I am a new member of this body, and I see I have many things to learn from those who are my seniors in service. Let's have a fresh cigar."

STRANGE CASE RECALLED.

Recent Accident Revives a Most Noted Criminal Trial-llow a Man Was Sentenced to Death for a Homicide Caused by a Glass Pitcher.

by a Glass Pitcher.

In the paper of last Saturday, says the Cincinnati Enquirer, appeared an account of a strange accident in which a man was killed by the discharge of a gun while lying asleep on a lounge in his room, the weapon being discharged by reflected rays of the sun falling upon the cartridge chamber of the firearm. Since the publication of the story a correspondent from York, Pa., writes concerning the accident, and refers to a similar case, in which, through the efforts of a clever Cincinnati lawyer named C. G. Wallis, the person accused of murder and sentenced to be hanged was set at liberty, the circumtantial evidence on which he was convicted being entirely exploded by a witnessed demonstration as to how the accident really occurred. The York witnessed demonstration as to how the accident really occurred. The York correspondent referred to volume 13 of the Criminal Law Magazine, page 607, on which a full account of the case appears. The case was that of the state of Tennessee against Avery, tried in Henry county, that state, and is one of the most remarkable in the history of criminal jurisprudence.

In June, 1887, Charles Ensley, the cousin of a man of the name of Avery, was killed in his room while lying on a lounge, about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The weapon which caused death was a small rifle, sending a thirty-two-caliber ball through Ensley's brain. No one was in the house at the time but Ensley. An empty rifle was found lying on a rack on a wall of the room in which the killing occurred, and the builet fitted the tube.

Avery Sentenced to Death.

Avery Sentenced to Death. Avery was arrested for the crime, as he was the only living close relative to Ensley, and by his death profited to the amount of about $190,000. Avery was tried, pleaded not guilty, but was convicted of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be hanged. He appealed to the Supreme court, and engaged Mr. Wallis to defend him. The Supreme court remanded the case back to the Circuit court on technical errors. Supreme court remanded the case back to the Circuit court on technical errors. Two mistrials were brought about, and then came the strangest part of the story. The brilliant Wallis struck the keynote to the mystery. In August, 1891, he had the rifle loaded and hung on the wall. A white sheet, with the form of a man marked on it, was placed in exactly the position occupied by Avery when lying asleep, and a heavy cut-glass pitcher of water like the one found in the room was placed on the shelf above. The temperature was 90 degrees in the shade, one of the hottest days of the year. The pitcher acted as a sun glass and the hot rays of the sun shining through the water were refracted directly on the cartridge chamber of the rifle.

and a few minutes after 3 o'clock a and a few minutes after 3 o'clock a puff and a report occurred and the ball struck the outlined form back of the ear, in the exact location where Ensley was shot, and the theory of circumstantial evidence went to pieces. The incident being witnessed and sworn to, readily explained itself to the jury.

seised upon with avidity by the public generally, and with particular gusto by those individuals who have themselves suffered the indescribable wretchedness of that grievous malady. I was coming from Liverpool upon one of the famous liners, says Bishop Potter, and, although the sky was clear and the weather warm, a somewhat tempestuous sea had occasioned more than the usual amount of seasickness among the passengers. As I paced the deck one afternoon I noticed a lady reclining upon one of the benches, and the unearthly palor of her face and the languidity of her manner indicated that she had reached that state of collapse which marks the limit of sea-sickness. of sea-sickness.

.. Rudyard Kipling

He is, indeed, the King of Story Tellers. The demand for the work which comes from his pen exceeds that for the writings of a! other living writers.

The Tribune, in association with other leading daily journals of the country, takes pleasure in announcing a new story from the pen of this master wielder of the Queen's English, entitled

The Devil and the Deep Sea

The remarkable thing about it lies in the fact that no story ever written so vividly sets forth the absolute sublimity of human endurance. This tale, with the vividness characteristic of its author, depicts the last adventure of a desperate crew of sea robbers captured in forbidden waters with a shipload of stolen pearls. Pirates though they are, their indomitable Anglo-Saxon pluck will win the sympathy of every reader, in their fearful struggle with a maniac engine disabled by a shell from a pursuing cruiser. Scalded by escaping steam, scorched by the red-hot metal they are forging, crazed by heat and toil and famine till they are scarcely conscious of what they do, they strive with unyielding stubborness to repair the wrecked machinery and effect their escape.
