

CARBONDALE.

A CASE OF KIDNAPING.

Both Parties Claim a Child--Peculiar Statements of Mrs. Fitzsimmons. A most interesting case was held before Justice Glenn at his office in Simpson...

When asked if the child was his son Mr. Walker replied that it was. This was denied by the prosecutor. She would not say who was the father, but said that she was living with Walker in England at the time of his birth.

Attorney Butler, who was attorney for the defendant, made a little speech. He said: "The fact that the child is with its father does not prove that it was kidnapped. The child has now reached an age when it knows its own feelings, and which prevent her wishes to live with. I understand that this woman is married again to a man named Fitzsimmons. Stepfathers and stepmothers are not known for their care for children. When a child is forcibly kept away against its will that is kidnapping. The child's mother would be the proper person to take care of it. When questioned as to which he would like to live with the boy said his father, as his mother whipped him."

The first witness was John Burns, who said that he had known the child's mother for three months, and that she was a neighbor of his. He has always thought the child was treated kindly and never saw him whipped. Mr. Walker, who claims to be the father, said that he came home from work on Tuesday, Nov. 12, at 5 o'clock. The boy was at his boarding house, at the home of John Kimble, of Seventh avenue. He told the child to go home, but he didn't want to, so he started to take him back. He was met by Chief McAndrew, who asking what the matter was on finding he was his father, told him to take care of him. He told him to take care of him, but he wouldn't let anyone have the child, should they come for him.

On the following day Mrs. Fitzsimmons came to the house and asked for the child, but they refused to give it up, saying that Mr. Walker had ordered them to keep the little boy. This was the story told by the different persons, and after hearing it, Mr. Glenn advised the parties to settle it between themselves. Mrs. Fitzsimmons said all she wanted was her child.

There were objections to this, and at last the justice said he would have to place the child under $200 bail. Mr. Walker said Mrs. Fitzsimmons could have the child, but he refused to go with her, and made a great fuss. Finally he was quieted and consented to go. Walker was then asked if he would pay the costs, but he refused. However, he at last consented and paid them all.

INTO THE RIVER.

Christian Howald Walks Off the Eighth Avenue Bridge.

About twelve o'clock Tuesday night, Christian Howald, a man of about 40 years of age, was seen walking across the bridge over the river and sustained injuries which are quite serious. How he came to walk off the bridge is something which will probably never be known, for Mr. Howald knows nothing about the accident.

When last seen before the accident, Mr. Howald was near his home and some people saw him near the Presbyterian church. From there he seemed to wander off and was seen a little later near No. 1 bridge, and was seen to walk up in the river. It seems queer that no one saw the man after this and it is a mystery how he got from Church street to the bridge, and how he got across it only to give any account of the accident which would seem at all possible, is that he wandered down River street and in approaching the bridge to cross it fell over.

Though badly hurt, the unfortunate man managed to call for help. His cries were heard by a young man named Mr. Andrew, who with a friend went to investigate. They were somewhat surprised to find a man in such a sorry predicament, but they did not seem to realize that he was hurt, but seemed to have more consideration for valuables which had been taken from his pocket. Though he occasionally cried out as if in great pain.

The young men went to a livery stable, where they secured a wagon and started to take him to his home. On the way they were met by Dr. Gillis, who persuaded him to go to the hospital. Here a more thorough examination of the injuries was made. It was found that he had sustained a compound fracture of the left ankle. The bone protruded through the flesh and some of the small bones of the ankle were also broken. Although Mr. Howald is between 70 and 80 years of age, he bears the shock very well and his condition at present is very hopeful.

WEDDING YESTERDAY.

Miss Mary Phillips and David Evans, Married in the Welsh Baptist Church. The first marriage in the Welsh Baptist church since its reorganization occurred yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Miss Mary Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Phillips of Simpson, and David Evans, a prominent young man of that place, were the contracting parties, and Rev. William Thomas, of Pittston, the officiating clergyman.

The bride was attended by Miss Mary Edwards of Simpson, and Thomas H. Evans, a brother of the groom, was best man. The bride and groom were dressed in dark brown traveling suits. After the ceremony was performed the bride party returned to the home of the bride's parents, where a reception was held. Many friends joined in congratulations to the newly-married couple. Mr. and Mrs. Evans will make their home with the bride's parents for the present.

The Leak Found. For several months the Crystal Lake Water company has been bothered by a leak which gushed through the cellar wall of the house of Constable Hartman, on Belmont street. The water ran through the ceiling and annoyed the neighbors a great deal. The source of the stream was quite a mystery for a long time. This week the company made an investigation, and found a loose joint on Belmont street, in front of the Lowery property. The new main is eight inches in diameter, and TERMS--Monthly CASH During This Sale. CARPETS, OIL CLOTHS, LINOLEUMS, Draperies, Window Shades, and Wall Paper.

408 LACKAWANNA AVENUE. GREAT ALTERATION SALE.

We have decided on a Sweeping Reduction rather than cover up our goods during our extensive improvements, and have marked down everything in the store at once and less. See our Window Display, which will substantiate what we say.

Washburn-Crosby Co. 150. Washburn-Crosby Co. 150. Washburn-Crosby Co. 150. Washburn-Crosby Co. 150.

And everything else in proportion. J. SCOTT INGLIS.

408 LACKAWANNA AVENUE.

the waste has been enormous. Since the pipe has been repaired the flow of water has stopped, and a large quantity of water has been turned to its proper channel.

TRINITY GUILD ENTERTAINMENT.

An entertainment was given last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Durfee on North Main street. It was under the auspices of Trinity Guild and the direction of Miss Mead and Mesdames J. O. Watson and W. L. Leonard. The entertainment consisted of recitations, charades and music. Professor Hunt, who has recently moved to this town, gave several selections on the mandolin which were well received. Ice cream and cake were sold and a collection taken. The affair was nicely managed and was a success socially as well as financially. A nice sum was realized, which will be added to the new church building fund.

May Lose the Other Eye. James Boyd, who lost his right eye by an accident in the Delaware and Hudson blacksmith shop a short time ago, had an operation performed on the injured member by Dr. Frey, of Scranton, Tuesday his father-in-law, Edward Jones, returned from Scranton and said that Mr. Boyd was sick and unable to come home, and that he was staying with relatives in Hyde Park. Dr. Frey is afraid that the left eye will be affected. The accident to Mr. Boyd is a severe one and his many friends in this city will sympathize with him and hope that he may have no further trouble.

Badly Cut. The little daughter of Andrew Collins was quite badly hurt yesterday, sustaining several lacerations on her head. Some boys living in the vicinity had stretched a rope across the alley near the house when the little girl came running through and tripped over the rope, which was about ankle high. She landed on her face and was badly cut. This sort of fun should be stopped at once as it might result in severe injury.

To Play at Pittston. On Saturday, the Alumni Athletic association football team will go to Pittston, where they will play an eleven from that place. They will practice this afternoon and Friday at Sandy's field. On the same day the High School football team will play the Wilkes-Barre High School at Alumni park, if enough players can be got together.

PERSONAL AND OTHER ITEMS.

Elam Fredericksen, a talented young violinist from Susquehanna, visited Dr. Fletcher Tuesday.

Mrs. L. A. Roberts and two children, of South Church street, are visiting her mother, Mrs. Henry Watts, in Scranton.

George Simrell, of Clarke avenue, boss headman at No 1 on the Gravity railroad, is confined to his home by sickness.

George H. Dimmick, of Chestnut avenue, is suffering from a severe attack of sciatic rheumatism.

S. Berry, of Canaan street, was very pleasantly surprised Tuesday evening by his forty-seventh birthday. The evening was pleasantly spent in music and refreshments were served.

Robert Marshall, of Factoryville, is visiting his aunt, Mrs. Fuller, of Laurel street.

Harry Dimock, of Canaan street, spent yesterday in Prompton.

An infant of Mr. and Mrs. John O'Malley, of Sand street, is dangerously ill.

Rose, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael McGowan, of Brookline street, is seriously ill with an attack of rheumatism.

Yesterday was the twentieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Clifford, and about 100 of their friends assembled at their residence, on John street, Tuesday evening in honor of the event. The affair was in the nature of a wedding, and Mrs. Clifford received some china tea sets, several pieces of silverware and linen. Dancing was the principal feature of the evening's entertainment, music being furnished by Professor Fish. Refreshments were served at midnight.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over Fifty Years by Millions of Mothers for their Children while Teething, with Perfect Success. It Softens the Child, Softens the Gums, Alleviates Pain; Cures Wind and Colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhoea. Sold by Druggists everywhere at the World. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

FOREST CITY.

Anthony Mucknicki is again in trouble. This time it is as a result of passing Confederate money. Mucknicki attended a Slavonic ball on the evening of Nov. 14 and passed a Confederate $20 bill and afterward a $10 bill. The fraud was not discovered for some time, but when the bills were finally found to be worthless there was wrath among the countrymen of the tricky Mucknicki. It was finally decided to appeal to the law in order to teach the culprit a lesson and to make him pay the amount of which he had defrauded the society. Accordingly John Misera, a member, went before Squire Brannan on Tuesday and swore out a warrant for Mucknicki's arrest. He was taken before the justice and given a hearing, which resulted in his being held in the sum of $1,000 for a further hearing.

A real old-fashioned turkey dinner and supper will be held on Thanksgiving Day by the Presbyterian Ladies Aid society in the basement of the Presbyterian church. The price will be 25 cents a meal for adults, and 15 cents for children.

John Bosack is a Slav who lives on the Warren tract. Recently John traded horses with Charles Hanson, who lives in East Ford. The horse which John had secured by the trade proved to be an unhealthy beast, and to John's great sorrow finally sickened and died. Then John pondered on the dark ways of the law in order to teach the culprit his lesson, and at length decided to regain his own horse without the formality of giving value received. So he journeyed to East Ford when the shades of evening had fallen and succeeded in gaining his erstwhile quadruped. Hanson did not like these proceedings and swore out a warrant for Bosack. Constable W. L. Bates arrested him and he was taken before Squire Brannan, who held him in $200 bail to appear at the next court of quarter sessions at Susquehanna county. Officer Bates also went to the Warren tract to get the horse, but he was met by Mrs. Bosack and several of her men friends and was compelled to take part in a preliminary skirmish in which he received a number of cuts and bruises and also somewhat battered his anatomy. "Buck" finally came off victor, however, by displaying to advantage a small arsenal with which he had provided himself and triumphantly led away the horse. Mrs. Bosack and the other assailants of the officer will be arrested, and as the scene of action was in Fall township, Lockwood, they will be taken to Squire Brannan, of Yonkers, for trial.

PITTSSTON.

[The Pittston office of the Scranton Tribune is located at No. 5 William street, where all advertisements for far job work and items for publication will receive prompt attention. Office open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.]

Frank McCann, aged 17 years, son of Charles McCann, of Market street, died at his home yesterday after a few weeks' illness. He was an active member of the Father Mathew T. A. B. society. The funeral will take place from his home on Friday at 3 p. m. The Father Mathew society will have charge of the remains.

Measurment Agent C. R. Williams and his wife were almost suffocated by gas escaping from the stove at their home on William street. Horace Rogers, carpenter here, found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe jamper had been closed, which carried the gas to the ceiling. From which it entered the door and after telling Mr. Rogers he was not feeling well, returned to his room and found both Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a semi-unconscious condition. Dr. O'Malley was hastily summoned and after some time restored them to consciousness. At last accounts they were both feeling well. Examination showed that an open door of the heating stove and the stove pipe