LIVE WASHINGTON TOPICS

Preparations in Progress for the Opening of Congress.

PRESIDENT'S ANNUAL MESSAGE

Foreign Affairs Will Be the Leading Feature—Contests for House Offices—The South Will Forward Numerous Election Contests.

Washington, Nov. 26.—President Cleveland and the members of his cabinet, with the exception of Secretary Morton, who is in Nebraska, assembled at the white house today for their regular semi-weekly meeting.

There is every reason to believe that foreign affairs—the Venezuelan and Cuban revolutions, the perilous position of American missionaries in Turkey and other engrossing topics—will lead off in the presidential message for 1896.

CONTEST FOR HOUSE OFFICES

There are the usual contesting reports from the House offices. With the arrival of one hundred Republican members the lines are being more tightly drawn and every member is endeavoring to get his name on the list.

MORTON'S SEED ORDER

THE ARMENIAN MASSACRES

Story of the Butcheries Given by an Eye-witness.

A FLINNY EXCUSE FOR MURDER

Turkish Policemen Begin the Fight Which Ends in the Slaughter of 140 Armenians—The Old Story of Turkish Oppression.

Concord, N. H., Nov. 26.—Harop C. Magarian, a young Armenian who just arrived in this city, tells a graphic story of the recent massacre in Constantinople, which resulted in the killing and maiming of some 140 of his countrymen by the Turkish policemen and soldiery. He says:

My home is in Harpoot and I was in Constantinople as the guest of an Armenian from Harpoot, a city on the Euphrates river, who went there for the purpose of trading. We were stopping in a massive stone building, the headquarters of all Armenians when in the city. This is located in Istanbul, and at the time of the massacre was crowded with my countrymen. There had been no trouble with the authorities, and we had not the least apprehension of anything occurring. On the morning of the day of the massacre my friend and myself, with several other Armenians, were in the street in front of the inn conversing, when a policeman came along fully armed. He was, naturally, looking at him. This appeared to anger him, and calling one of the party aside he asked if anything was wanted of him. The man replied that nothing was wanted; that he was merely looking; whereupon he strove to strike me with his kicks and blows. The Armenian naturally objected, but the only resistance he offered was to hold his arms up to his head. He was then shot down, and I saw the bullet enter his forehead.

This was a signal, for scarcely had the echo of the shot died away when an ambulance charged, and the policeman and the entire square was filled with soldiers, who immediately opened fire on every Armenian who stood in the street. Through the fire of the first shot my companion and myself ran inside the building and barred the massive iron doors. We were saved, but through the windows of the building we were eye witnesses of the horrible butchery of our countrymen who were totally unprepared to make the least resistance, and were shot down like dogs.

For six hours the young men, women and children were being killed. The work of killing the helpless Christians had been well and thoroughly done. Throughout we were in constant fear of our lives. Assault after assault was made upon the building, but it proved too strong, and the attempts were at length abandoned. In that attack 140 Armenians were killed and injured. As they fell, they were immediately carried away in the ambulance, and when all was over the Turkish firemen cut out the bodies and washed away every vestige of blood from the pavements and destroyed all traces of the monstrous crime.

The escape of myself and companions was miraculous, and was owing to the fact that we were dressed in costumes similar to the Turks, and they did not discover the mistake until we had reached the doorway of the building.

FLOATING THE COAL

Pittsburg Rivermen Take Advantage of the High Water.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 26.—All was excitement along the river fronts and Monongahela pools yesterday. Hurried preparations were being made to take advantage of the prospective rise in the Allegheny river which is due here by Monday morning and will probably give the rivermen ten feet of water.

Every available craft is being pressed into service to move to southern markets as much as possible of the thirty million bushels of grain which are piled up in the harbors. Several light tugs left today. Last night's rain was particularly heavy along the Allegheny river.

HIRAM MARSH ANNIVERSARY

His Conversion of Two Years Ago Celebrated in Resonance Mission.

Yesterday was the second anniversary of Hiram Marsh in the Rescue Mission and the customary celebration of such an event was celebrated during the evening in the mission, on Franklin avenue. Mr. Marsh is a cabinet-maker in the employ of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad company.

From 6 to 8 o'clock a turkey supper furnished by the women of the First Presbyterian church was served in the basement of the mission to converts and their families. At 8 o'clock in the chapel began a service of song and experience telling led by Mr. Marsh. There were congregational singing, selections by the former glee club of the Young Men's Christian association, tenor solos by Mr. Vangorder and selections by the mission quartette and chorus.

Remarks were made by J. A. Lansing, A. J. Williams, Luther Keller, A. W. Dickson, W. J. Hand, William McClure and other officers of the mission.

WEATHER REPORT.

For Eastern Pennsylvania, fair; much colder, with a cold wave; northwest winds.
