That of Central City Congregations Held in Elm Park Church.

SERMON BY REV. W. H. PEARCE

It Was Replete with Beautiful Thoughts Union Services Hold at Green Ridge. Suuriso Meeting on the West Side. In Other Churches of the City.

The great seating capacity of Elm Park church was taxed to its utmost yesterday morning at the union Thanksgiving Day service of the central city churches. The congregations of the several churches were well represented, but the audience who listened to the very practical, sensible and beneficial sermon of Rev. Dr. W. H. Pearce, the pastor, included a large number of strangers—commercial travelers who were many hundreds of miles distant from their homes and persons visiting Scranton friends or relatives. Delightful special music was rendered by the regular church choir and soloists.

Dr. Pearce preached from Isiah iv. 3, "Joy and gladness shall be found therein, thanksgiving and the voice of melody." He said, in part:

I do not believe that Thanksgiving servers the static be served.

dy." He said, in part:

I do not believe that Thanksgiving sermons should be pitched upon a walling minor key, or that they should be devoted to a canvas of the sins of the people and to a discussion of the dangers of the republic from drunkenness. Sabbath desecration, money corporations and the corruption of political parties. These are very appropriate themes for almost any other day, or for a day of humiliation, fasting and prayer, but it seems to me they are as inappropriate and out of place on a day of thanksgiving as a dirge would be amid the bright festivities of the flower-wreathed marriage altar. This day is set apart from its fellows, if I understand the nature of it, for the purpose of looking, on the bright side of life; for the purpose of kindling our emotions into a glow of rapture, adorning the soul with the beauty of gladness and filling up every hour with hallelujahs of great Joy.

The Rasogs Are Many.

The Rensons Are Muny.

hour with hallelujahs of great joy.

The Resons calling us to engage in these exercises of thanksgiving are so many, varied and lofty as to make it very difficult to know where to begin or where to leave off. The things that God has done for us are so many that they must needs crowd upon each other, until they go down behind the horizon of memory like full hemispheres of stars that move in multitudes and sink, not separate or distinguishable, but multitudinous, each casting light into the other, and crowding each other by their common brightness.

On such a day as this, as we select a few from the great multitude, we ought not to forget the dwelling in which God has enpalaced us, until He has made ready for us the home of many mansions. Despite what some people say, this world is not an outlying waste, forsaken of God and unblest; it is one of the most beautiful provinces of the divine kingdom; and whether azure vestures it, or purple folds it, or gold mantles it, or white plaid of snow covers it, it is always beautiful and resplendent with glories. And, then, on such a day as this, we certainly ought not to forget how God has provisioned it—how he has filled the larder. Spring, the period of seedtime, lavished rain and sunshine; summer, the time of growth, was warm and generous; autumn, the season of ripening fruit and golden grain, and winter, the sleeping time for verdure—all these are so liberal and open-handed that never in the memory of the oldest, with the exception of three or four instances has there been such an accumulated wealth of nature's products as are now overcowding the bins and barns and storehouses from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Eden's curse seems to have been removed from the earth; there is superabundance everywhere.

Things We Ought to Remember.

On such a day as this we ought also

Things We Ought to Romember.

On such a day as this we ought also to remember how God has companioned it; filled it with the sweetness and strength of domestic affection and with all the joyful and helpful fellowships of our social life. Our home has been something more to us than a house in which to live and a place in which to be lodged and sheltered and fed. It has been a sanctuary of holy affections! It has seemed just outside of heaven, sunned with its light, made tuneful with its music! And all the days of the year within its sacred enclosure, have been like rounds in a ladder on which the angels of God has descended and ascended, with revealments of peace and loving ministries; that, like invisible gifts that never spend themselves, have made the home, with all of its changes, like unto paradise restored. Things We Ought to Remember.

gifts that never spend themselves, have made the home, with all of its changes, like unto paradise restored.

And then the church has been something more to us than an architectural pile of brick or stone or lumber, and its altar rails and chancels have been something more than carved and embellished shrines. In the midst of its sermons and prayers and sacraments and songs and fellowships we have found pardon for our sins, healing for our wounds, peace for our unrest, strength for our weakness, hope for our despair, and now and then all heaven has been opened to our tear-blinded eyes and all of its raptures poured into our wearn, aching hearts.

Our social life has also been something to us. We have enjoyed it as we do bright skies or the south wind, and it has been the rythm and poetry of many a day, and songs in the night of our loneliness.

Never Before Such Tranquility.

and songs in the night of our loneliness.

Never Before Such Tranquility.

On such a day as this we should not forget the peace with which God has filled the home in which he has enpalaced us as with golden airs. Never since this land was redeemed from the wilderness has there been such tranquility within our borders. All along the rocky coasts of Maine, through the forest region of New England, through the fertile middle states, on the golden slopes of the Pacific, and in the warm, glowing South, Bethlehem's song is being sung today in sweeter melody than ever before; and there is no fairer scene that comes upon my vision than this great nation gathered under one flag, whose white means purity, whose red means sacrifice, whose blue means fidelity, whose stars mean the smile of God. And from this great congregation, type, figure and symbol of that greater congregation, into which every tribe and nation and tongue shall enter at last, and hear rising, as with the voice of many waters, the grand choral chant: "My peace I give unto you, and God, even our God, shall bless the."

Therefore, for life, with all of its joys and sorrows; for native land, with all of its civil and social enjoyments; for the abundant harvest, with its golden treasures, and for home, home sweet home, with its banquet of love and kindred spirits that seems to make it a bit of paradise on earth—for all these let us thank God this day with songs and high anthems and rejoice with exceeding joy.

The rear of the pulpit was banked with a bed of chrysanthemums and shocks of corn, wheat and rye, and in the center of this beautiful barvest picture was an imwheat and rye, and in the center of this beautiful harvest picture was an immense basket of fruit overturned on its side, speaking of the Lord's blessings. The exercises consisted of music, addresses and responsive readings. A number of selections were played on the chimes by Alfred Wooler as the congregation was assembling. An organ prelude by J. Alfred Pennington, anthems and songs by the choir, congregational singing, addresses by Thomas H. Dale and A. V. Bower and the responsive readings led by Rev. Dr. Pearce were the different exercises. "Home, Sweet Home," by the quartette; "Auld Lang Syne," by a male choir, and "America," by the congregation were very appropriate and inspiring.

Rev. Mr. Prosser, of the Primitive Methodist church, preached the sermon from Genesis I, I, "In the beginning God created the Heaven and the earth." His thought was that thanks-living is the best kind of thanksgiving. By so doing God is quite properly placed first.

In Asbury church in the evening an entertainment was given under the auspices of the Epworth league. It was a concert by singers from the was a concert by singers from the choirs of the Asbury Methodist and Washburn Street Presbyterian church, and by the Asbury quartette, and was the last of a series of four

Sunrise services were conducted on the West Side at the Jackson Street Baptist church. At 7 o'clock the lecture room of the handsome edifice was crowded with people. Professor James Hughes presided. The services consisted of prayer, addresses, and congregational singing. The meeting was characterized by an abundance of spiritual feeling, more than fifty persons itual feeling, more than fifty persons making short talks on the day. It was the most successful affair of the kind ever conducted on the West Side. At 10.30 o'clock the union service of West Side English churches was begun at the Washburn Street Presbyterian church. Rev. J. P. Moffat, the new pastor of the church, presided. The reverend gentleman gave a short introductory address of welcome. Rev. L. C. Floyd offered the general prayer in a heartfelt and impressive way. The Thanksgiving sermon was preached by Rev. Thomas Bell, of the Plymouth Congregational church. Mr. Bell chose for his subject "The Reflex Influchose for his subject "The Reflex Influences of Thanksgiving on Spirtual Life." The theme was handed in a scholarly manner, the speaker dwelling upon the impressiveness of the great day. The sermon was a grand effort and was very interesting to the large audience present. Services appropriate to the day were held last evening at St. Marks' Lutheran church. Rev. A. L. Ramer, rector of the church, conducted the services, and delivered a sermon on Thanksgiving. At 10.30 o'clock St. David's Episcopal church was the scene of a large gathering, assembled to honor the national holiday with appropriate relitional holiday with appropriate reli-gious services. Rector M. H. Mill preached an able sermon. The choir sang several anthems.

In the Other Churches. Thanksgiving services were held in the morning in Grace Reformed Episcopal church, where the pastor, Rev. G. L. Aldrich, preached an admirable sermon from II Chronicles, v. 13 and 14, "It came even to pass as the trumpet-ters and singers were as one to make one sound to be heard in praising and thanking the Lord; and when they lifted up their voice with the trumpets and cymbals and intruments of music and praised the Lord, saying, for He is good; for His mercy endureth forever; that then the house was filled with a cloud, even the house of the Lord. So that the priests could not stand to minister by reason of the

FOUR GENERATIONS PRESENT

Fine Thanksgiving Dinner.

A novel and interesting family re-union was that which gathered yester-day at the home of H. F. Atherton, gen-eral paymaster of the Delaware and Hudson railroad, 2104 North Main ave-nue. It was different from the usual "family reunion," in that all but eleven of the forty-six persons present were direct descendants of ad, gray-headed Jonathan Atherton, who was the cen-tral figure of the gathering and did not look or act as old as his eighty-six years. The eleven exceptions were six sons and The eleven exceptions were six sons and laughters-in-law of Jonathan and five husbands and wives of his grandchildren.

Jonathan Atherton is one of the today rare examples of the hardy yoemanry which made possible the quick development of this section of the state after the preceding generation of continental fame had passed away. He was born in Montrose and lived near there on the Atherton homestead until a few years ago he came to Scranton to live with his son, H. F. Atherton, and be in the midst of his other children and progeny who drifted with commerce to Scranton and its vicinity.

To provide for the extensive Thanks-giving meal for so big a family it was necessary to use three cooking ranges and to utilize the services of servants from several Atherton households, and in the serving of the meal two of Hunt-ington's most efficient walters were ington's most efficient waiters were pressed into service. In the gathering

A singular fact is revealed by the above list—none of Jonathan Atherton's sons and daughters are widowers or widows and none of them are childless, and the same comment is true of the grandchildren who have married. There were four generations revesanted one were four generations represented, one of the first generations, six of the secof the first generations, six of the sec-ond; twenty-three of the third and five of the fourth, each being in a direct line of escent in which aunts and uncles are not considered.

At the Frothingham Monday, Dec. 2, comes Canary & Lederer's big "Merry World" company of nearly 100 people from the New York Casino direct. The attraction is Canary & Lederer's second annual review of current successes, their first review having been the "Passing Show." The new review enjoyed a long run in New York and is said to be the greatest success in the history of the Casino, judging at least by the reported box office returns and the enormous attendances. The principal players embrace Amelia Summerville, David Warfield, Janette Bageard, Frank Blair, Marie Laurens, Willard Sims, Christine Blessing, Lee Marrison, Nanette Nixon and others. The specialty people are legion and there is a chorus of both sexes of sixty. Travesties on "Trilby," "Sans Gene," "Dr. Syntax," "Robin Hood," "The Little Trooper" and several more popular successes comprise the bulk of the programme.

Uncle Tom's Cabin at Academy. The version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" interpreted by Stetson's Double Monster company, which will exhibit at Academy of Music on Monday evening. Academy of Music on Monday evening, has met the especial approval of Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, the immortal authoress of tha world-famed drama. The excellent company's two comical Topsies and two ludicrous musical Marks, the elegant scenery, the novel mechanical effects, the ferocious bloodhounds, two brass bands and the celebrated Lone Star quartette will all unite in making the engagement a most notable one.
