SUES FOR DAMAGES.

Borton Lee Brings Sult Against the Transit Company.

On account of the damage which he received by being run down by a street car some time ago, Horton Lee, proprietor of the hotel at Mayfield yard, commenced suit against the Lackawanna Valley Rapid Transit company. General Manager John Aitken was summoned before Alderman Jones to answer the charge. Mr. Lee was crossing the narrow

Mr. Lee was crossing the narrow bridge over the river near the yard at the time of the accident when a street car ran into the carriage and wrecked it. The horse was also injured to the amount of $25, which, with the loss on the wagon and work necessary to have it repaired, brings the amount of damage to the amount of $48, which Mr. Lee wishes to recover

The case was most interesting. Attorney J. E. Burr represented the defendant and H. C. Butler, the plaintiff. The loss occasioned by the horse was due to the animal being afraid of street cars ever since the wreck, and Mr. Lee cars ever since the wreck, and Mr. Lee was obliged to sell him for $25 less than he would have received otherwise. The principal argument of the plain-

The principal argument of the plaintiff was that the company had appropriated part of the public highway to which they had no right, and that many people had been greatly inconvenienced by the state of affairs. Superintendent Duncan, who was present, gave the width of the street cars, but could give no information concerning the bridge.

The opinion of a Philadelphia judge in regard to a similar case was read by Attorney Burr, who asked the alderman to dismiss the case. However, Mr. Butler objected to this as the alderman had issued a summons, and said that it was a case which should be given to the court to secide. STOLE FROM A MINE.

Several Kegs of Powder and Tools Taken from No. 1 Slope

A great deal of inconvenience was occasioned several of the miners of No. I slope last week by the theft of their powder and tools on Thanksgiving day. The miners did not work on that day, hence the thieves had an excellent chance to make way with the booty. The loss of this also threw the men of one level out of work as they had no tools or powder.

The amount of stuff taken was quite valuable and was the personal property of several of the miners. One of them, John Toolan, had a keg of powder, two gallons of oil and a box of squibs taken. Another victim was Elijah Wolfendale who lost a half keg of powder and some oil. This was all that was taken that time but on former occasions small articles have been missed but it was not thought at the time that they had been stolen. As soon as the theft was discovered Superintendent Andrew Patten at once set about trying to find some trace of the guilty persons. A reward of $50 was offered for information leading to their arrest and conviction. John Toolan, had a keg of powder, two

The mine was locked up so the persons must have entered through the opening near the St. Rose cemetery, which is used by miners living in that vicinity to save them the walk to the mouth of the slope.

A short time ago, some one entered the mine and took out with them a valuable boring machine. Four chambers were gone through this time and every available article taken.

The burial of William E. Cullen, whose death was both singular and pathetic, took place at Lovelton Saturday morning. The particulars leading up to and concerning his tragical death are as follows: He was a native of North Branch township and married a young lady named Somers, of Hazleton. Some four or five years ago they removed to one of the Dakotas, took up some land and started a ranch. They lived there until a week or two They lived there until a week or two since, when they started eastward to take the old homestead, the father, one since, when they started eastward to take the old homestead, the father, one sister and two brothers having died, meanwhile. They had purchased tickets via. Hazleton, intending to visit the wife's relatives before coming to Loveton. One pight, while pasing through the state of Wisconsin one of the children was taken sick and the mother took it to the toilet room without arousing the father, who was asleep. When she came back her husband was gone, and a hasty search failed to find him but revealed the fact hat one of the outside doors in the vestibule was open. The train was stopped and backed up a distance of eight miles, where the body was found, with the brains dashed out against the rocks. It is upposed that he awoke, and finding his wife and child gone, started to search for them. In his drowsy state he mistook the vestibule door for that of the toilet room and stepped out to meet his terrible fate. The distracted wife, with three children, brought his remains to Hazleton and thence to Lovelton. Sympathizing friends met them here and accompanied the party to the last resting place of the dead. He was a son of David Cullen, and was about 35 years of age.

"Simply because I cannot get a drink," replied the policy holder. "If whisky is not forthcoming I perish. I simply lie down and stiffen out and you lose your money. A quarter of a dollar, however, will save my life and save you 5,000 bones. Twenty-five cents fixes me and I live. Without it I breathe my last and prove a dead loss to you. If I survive, however, my wife will go on paying premiums, and who knows but what I may become a centenarian?"
