Prisoner Says He Is Prank LaBracks and Not Merolo.

WILL BE GIVEN TO JURY TO-DAY

Attorneys for Defendant Asked the Court to Withdraw a Juror and Continue Case on Account of a Remark Made by the District-Attorney.

The man on trial for his life for the murder of Emanuel Loro at Old Forge, says he is Frank La Bracka. The qe-The prisoner went on the stand and told a very straightforward story, claiming that he is not the murderer.

When court convened in the morning District Attorney John R. Jones informed Judge Edwards that the commonwealth's case was at an end. Attorney Martin pleaded surprise and asked to be allowed to call Detective McSweeney for cross-examination. He was sent for and took the stand. Mr. Martin asked him what he did with Merolo's pay check, which was taken Mr. McSweeney said he gave the paper to the district attorney.

Mr. Jones offered in evidence two letters found on the prisoner's person when he was arrested. The defense objected out of the court room by the balling. to them and the court refused to admit them for the jury's inspection. The papers found by Detective McSweeney boarding house, Old Forge, a week after the murder, were not admitted by the mother's name as Nunzio.

The Letters Found on Him. One of the letters found on the prisoner the day of his arrest in Boston gave those names. Mr. Jones proposed to still further establish the man's identity by means of those letters. The letters were sent from Italy by some friend signing himself Otomorio La Porta. They were addressed to Benjamini Morretti,192 North street. Boston, Mass.,

and they came from Italy. Morretti is the man who lived at Old Forge, boarded at Joseph Salvi's house at the time of the murder and was employed after the crime to go to New York to hunt down the criminal, but who proved faithless and gave the alarm to the murderer, thus enabling him to get beyond the reach of the au-

Attorney Joseph Brown made the ppening address in the defense. No attempt would be made, he said, to try to show that Emanuel Loro had not been killed at Old Forge on Sunday, June 17, 1894, by a man named Crezenzo Merolo; but that the defense would show that the prisoner at the bar is not Merolo, that it is a case of mistaken

The prisoner he said is Frank Lo Bracka, a man who was born in Italy 29 years ago and who came to this country in 1889. He worked in New York and Boston and in 1893 returned to taly where he was married on May 24, 1892. A few months before he was arrested he came to America, worked n Portland, Me., for a short time and then came to Boston, where he was mistaken for Murderer Merolo, and he is now wrongfully on trial for his life.

Story Told by the Impener. Mr. Brown called out, "Frank La Bracka, take the stand;" the prisoner stood up and walked to the witness stand. Although he talks good Engish, he desired to have an interpreter. His story then followed: He was born MANUFACTURED AND FOR SALE in Italy in 1866; his mother is dead, but and has married the second time. He has a brother and three sisters.

In 1889 he came to America and in 1893 he went back to Italy. There he was married on May 24, 1894. The priest's name who performed the ceremony was Father Peppo. He told about the persons who were present at the marriage ceremony, and all the details with regard to it.

Speaking about returning to America after his marriage in Italy he said he took passage from Naples on April 27 of this year and landed in New York on May 11. After a short stay in the metropolis he went to Boston, and was working there when an officer arrested him and took him to prison, and to this officer he said when questioned that his name was Francesco La Bracka He gave a Boston lawyer $40 to assist him, knowing it was necessary to have an attorney to get out of the trouble. He never saw the disciple of Blackstone

The witness denied pointblank and with emphasis that he was ever in James F. Doyle, of the St. Charles, goes to Elmira today to secure control of the Pairchild hotel at Hammondsport, of which he will assume charge on the first months; and he put in an absolute and months; and he put in an absolute and unequivocal negation that he ever saw or knew any of the Italian witnesses who swore that they knew him well, and saw him commit the murder which ended Emanuel Loro's life. District Attorney's Severe Rem ark. District Attorney Jones finally said to him, "Come down from the stand; I don't want you to add perjury to murder. 'I will not be a party to it." Judge Edwards told Mr. Jones that this was not an altogether proper remark. Edward J. Fallon was the next witness. Considerable vacillating has gone on in the mind of Mr. Fallon. He was taken to Boston to identify Merolo and there stated positively that he was the right man, he swore on Wednesday, when called as a witness by the district attorney, that the priconer was the proper person, but it appears that he sent word to Mr. Martin that the prisoner was the wrong man, and he desired to be called by the defense to ease his conscience for having he ped to put the noose around an innocent man's Though Mr. Fallon was a witness for the commonwealth, he was called by the defendant's attorney. Mr. Martin asked him if he had not sent word to him that the wrong man had been taken into custody, and had he not to assist in removing the guilt of the murder of Loro from the prisoner. The witness was not sure of his own mind. He admitted he was at first unable to discover the identity of Merolo in the prisoner at the bar, but on Wednesday his son pointed out certain characteris-tics of the prisoner worch refreshed the father's memory and enabled him to realize that the right man was in the toils. The defendant rested here.

District Attorney Jones called the prisoner to the stand and questioned him as to his purpose in raising a beard; whether or not it was done to him as to his purpose in raising a beard; whether or not it was done to disguise himself, and make the task of identification more difficult. Merolo said he is not wealthy enough to one to the said he is not wealthy enough to one to the said he is not wealthy enough to one to the said he is not wealthy enough to one to the said he is not wealthy enough to one to the said he is not wealthy enough to one to the said he is not wealthy enough to one to the said he is not wealthy enough to one to the said he is not wealthy enough to one to the said he is not wealthy enough to the said he is not wealth

Evidence Offered in Rebuttal. Rebuttal testimony was offered by the commonwealth. R. C. Simpson, an operator in the employ of the Barring & McSweeney agency, swore that when the prisoner was arrested in Boston and when the lawyer who deeced him ## out of $40 was holding a conversation with him in the cell, he admitted that his name was Merolo, but he later re-tracted that and said his name was

Mr. Martin took the prisoner before the jury and asked them to look care-fully at his hands and on his face to see if they could find any evidence that he had ever worked in the mines. Detective Bauer, who arrested the prison er identified the letters which were found on the prisoner. Their contents are given above. The prisoner was again but on the stand by the district attorney, and asked who Morretti is to whom the missives were addressed which were found with him. He said that Morretti is his cousin. Just before the case finally closed. Mr Brown made a motion that a juror be withdrawn and the case continued on account of the remarks made by the istrict attorney that the prisoner had committed murder, and he did not want be a party to his committing perjury in addition. Judge Edwards refused the motion and ordered the defense to address the jury. Mr. Martin began his speech at 2.30 and kept on until adjournment. He will resume this morning and continue for two hours. District Attorney Jones does not expect to take up more than an from him on the way here from Boston, hour. The defendant's attorney was listened to with rapt attention throughout. His eloquence was at one time interrupted by a man in the audience.

Prisoner Not the Right Man. His argument was clever, ingenious and well prepared. He assured the jury in Merolo's satchel in Mrs. Graeco's that they were sitting in judgment where an innocent man's life is in the balance. A crime had been committed court. The military certificate, which and the perpetrator of it deserves not was one of the papers, had Merolo's only hanging, but he ought to be quar-father's name as Domenico and h.s tered. The prisoner now accused of the crime is not the right man; it is a case of mistaken identity...

He reminded them that truth is stranger than fiction. Citing the life of John Boyle O'Rellly, the patriot, poet, fournalist and scholar, the speaker said it is beyond the range of imagination to write a fictional story with incidents more thrilling and marvelous than the true history of O'Reilly reveals. His imprisonment, his escape and his safe landing outside the bounds of British tryanny and oppresion, contain so much of the remarkable that one who has not read about this man can scarcely believe that such an experience could

Mr. Martin read from law reports about a case that occurred in the sixteenth century in France. The husband there had left his wife; an imposter appeared on the scene and succee ed in deceiving the wife and all her relatives for several years. He purported to be her lost husband. When the real nusband returned the imposter was audacious enough to brand him as an imposter. Mr. Martin will finish his fournour speech this morning.

IN COURT ROOM NO. 2.

One Offender Sentenced to Six Months in Jail.

Verdicts of guilty were returned against Anthony Tougher, the Peckville peddler, charged with receiving stoler goods, and Frank Posdro, of Priceburg charged with getting a young boy to go into a friend's house and steal an overcoat. Posdro will have six months to spend in the county jail. The day was taken up in the trial of Free Richards and Ernest Hope, two burglary. John T. Fitzpatrick was the prosecutor. On June 21 last a drug store owned by the prosecutor, situated near the Dodgetown bridge, was burglarized and cigars and other goods were stolen. The defendants are accused of the crime. They denied their conhection with it. The jury had not bro in a verdict at adjournment.

Richards was tried individually for stealing a pocketbook from a child at the Eric and Wyoming Valley station on Washington avenue. The purse contained $2.50. The child's mother is Mrs. John Grady, of the Norta End. She was waiting for a train when the child was robbed. Richards denied that he nad anything to do with this case. The jury was out deliberating on a verdict when court adjourned.

Then the boys were put on trial for statutory burglary for breaking into Blume's carriage repository on the 8th of last September and stealing two Dicycles. They were caught a few days afterward by Detective D. P. noche. The case was just opened at adjournment. Assistant District Attorney John M. Harris represented the com-monwealth and O'Brien & Kelly, the SUPERIOR COURT MEETING. First Session in Scranton Will Be Held on First Monday of January.

The superior court will hold its first sesion in this city on the first Monday of January and it is probable that the neeting place will be the Federal court building. For three weeks the court will continue in session and during the first week appeals from Luzerne, Columbia and Montour counties will be heard. During the second week those from Lackawanna, Monroe, Carbon and Wyoming countles will receive attention and the third week will be devoted to appeals from Bradford, Susquehanna, Wayne and Pike counties.

The cases that have already been appealed from this county to the superior court are William Staples against the Borough of Archbald, Delaware and Hudson Canal company against the Lackawanna Street Railway company, Scranton and Pittson Traction com-pany against the Delaware and Hudson Canal company, Thomas Davidson against Thomas Sanders and James H. Jenkins.

Select council last night resisted the emptation to attend the police investigation and sat patiently an nour and a half in their chamber up stairs deliber ating for the city's welfare.

In regard to City Solicitor Torrey's recommendations regarding the Twelfth district sewer, the judiciary committee through Mr. Lansing, introduced an ordinance repealing the ordinance providing for the sewer in question. This same committee approved of the proposition to settle for $150 with Henry enberg, Mrs. McCarthy and John Geherns who, each, claimed that amount of damage to their properties by reason of the Ferber court sewer being extended through their land. A resolution accompanied the report requesting the estimates committee to make provision for the payment of the same, which resolution was approved.

Hon. William L. Connell, Mayor:
Dear Sir:-The enclosed resolution received your approval Oct. 3, 1895. At the time of its passage we (the park com-missioners) were in favor of it, because we thought the location named therein was the most available spot in the park for a public bath, and that such an insti-tution would be very desirable. Today our landscape architect, Mr. Egerton, came here to make an examination of some portions of the park and came to know of the existence of this resolution. He says he has, in his design, made provision for a public bath in another portion of the park where it can be pleased to be: of the park, where it can be placed to bet ter advantage; and that he designs the spot named in the resolution for other purposes; and, as to carry out this resolution would be to destroy the harmony of his design, he would ask that the reso-lution be reconsidered. As Mr. Egerton is pretty nearly through with his design and the location of a swimming pool at and the location of a swimming pool at the point named would destroy his work, I would respectfully ask that his reques

Very truly yours, Ezra H. Ripple, President Park Commissi Request Will Be Complied With. The matter was referred to the park mmittee with instructions to bring in a resolution authorizing the change recommended. City Solicitor Torrey called attention to the fact that th time would expire on December 26 for making an appeal from the award of the viewers appointed to assess damages resulting from the grading or New street, which work was done six or seven years ago. A resolution empow-ering the city solicitor to make an appeal was passed, Mr. Roche being the only dissenter. Bids were read for constructing a and Monsey avenues, as follows: Hart ing a banquet during the holidays. Thir-& Gibbons, $1.59 per lineal foot; Peter F. Miller, $1,250 for the work complete A. H. Koons & Sons, $1.68 per lineal foot. For constructing the Hyde Park avenue lateral sewer the following proposals were received: Hart & sibbons, $1.93 per lineal foot; Peter F. Mullen, $1,945 for the work complete; A. H. Koons & Sons, $1.94 per lineal foot. The bids were referred to the sewers and drains committee, with instructions to award the contracts. Mr. Oliver's resolution for the West Lackawanna avenue viaduct was concurred in, only one or two members voting on it.

In order to grade the city engineer's corps, Mr. Ross introduced an ordinance creating the office of assistant city encity engineer from his present force.

cored a Decided Success at the Academy of Music. The name of Hoyt in connection with a theatrical performance is sufficient to draw large audiences in any town in the country. "A Milk White Flag," presented by the Hoyt and McKee Comedy company at the Academy of Music last evening for the first time in this city, was witnessed by one of the largest housen of the season.

The original New York company was on the stage and executed the various manoeuvres in marching, dancing and drilling with a dash and cleverness that is tarely seen here. The comedy, like all of Hoyt's plays, is gotten up solely to please and make the people laugh. There is no attempt at legitimate or even plausible plot, but nevertheless the situations are extremely judicrous and the dialogue so replete with wit and repartee that it cannot fail to amuse and entertain. ivres in marching, dancing and se and entertain.

Dancing and other specialities were all that could be desired and the singing enlivened by the accompaniment of a brass band on the stage made the performance a success from the rise of the curtain until the fall.

FRENCH FOLLY COMPANY.

Opened a Three Days' Engagement at Davis' Theatre Yesterday. Miss Pearl Bradburn leads the new French Folly company which opened three days' engagement at Davis theatre yesterday afternoon. The show is not up to the usual standard of permances of its kind, though it has a few desirable features. The monologue work of Comedian Tom Ripley brings out some new and old jokes. It's the manner in which he springs them that takes.

The acrobatic work of the Herbert Brothers is another good thing. Miss Bradburn is sufficiently chic and efferrescent. The show opens with a travesty called the Tally Ho Club and ends with a burlesque on "The Merry World" with the word "wicked" added to the title. The performance will be rewith afternoon matinees.
