MASSSES IN THE CATHEDRAL

Pontifical High Mass was Celebrated by Rt. Rev. Bishop O'Hara at 10.30.

The programme of Christmas service in St. Luke's Episcopal church has always been noted for its excellence and its keeping of the spirit of the festival, and yesterday proved to be no exception to the rule.

Especially attractive was the morning prayer, during which the large vested choir sang special music under the direction of Organist J. Willis Conant.

The musical programme was as follows: Processional, Hymn 69, "Angels from the Realms of Glory"; Sanctus; Gloria in D; Credo; Agnus Dei; Communion; Benediction; The Mass.

The solemn high mass at 5 o'clock was celebrated by Rev. J. A. O'Reilly; Rev. T. F. Carmody was deacon, Rev. Father Malone sub-deacon and Rev. J. B. Feeley master of ceremonies.

At St. Paul's church, Green Ridge, there were five Christmas masses, at 6, 7, 8, 9, and 10.30.

over the scene. The inside of the crib was lighted with the subdued rays from lamps hidden from view.

The arrangement of the group was such as to give the impression from the life-size appearance of the statues, that living persons were there in the stable.

The floor was on a level with the top of the sanctuary rail and extended back to the altar of the Virgin and from the side of the church to the bishop's throne.

It was enclosed with figured canvas of the dark shade. About twenty feet wide, eight feet high and thirty feet long.

On the opposite side of the church the statue of the Sacred Heart was enshrouded in fragrant evergreens, and was overtopped with a canopy of red plush.

The faintly gleaming lights added an indescribable charm. The statue was wreathed in smilax, holly and palms and was surrounded by a bow of ferns.

The main altar was bedecked with the same floral garniture, except that the remainder throughout the church was wild growing. There was a grand interlacing of cressets, stars, wreaths, and crosses of evergreen.

From the long rod of the sanctuary lamp was suspended six festoons of palm and attached to the walls on either side. The church choir consisted of smilax and holly and festoons spread in every direction.

The fame of the decorations spread so far that the entire afternoon of people anxious to see the grandeur. Among the number were very many non-Catholics.
