MUCH DAMAGE DONE.

The Storm Floods the Silk Mill-Other Damages Reported.

The storm early yesterday morning did much damage in various parts of the city, the worst probably being at the new silk mill. Here the copious rain gathered in a basin just above the mill and formed a large pond covering near-ly four acres. From this pond the water flowed into the basement of the full and wrought much damage. This trouble had been anticipated and a large pipe had meen laid from the basement to the river. But no one had ex-pected such a large quantity of water would enter the structure, so that the pipes were not large enough. Notwith-standing all the water that was constantly passing off, the water rose rap-idly and when discovered there was about two feet of water in the base-ment. The fires in all the bollers were extinguished and a great deal of inconventence occasioned. As soon as possi-ble pumps were put in operation and at present the water is being pumped out as fast as it comes in. A large force of men were also put at work building a dam, which will prevent more water from coming in and guard against all future floods. A large quantity of belting in the basement of the min was badly damaged.

While the raindid a great deal of damage, the downfall was productive of some good, for Anthracite park, which has defied all attempts of man to flood it, was completely covered and there will probably be good skating there to-day. The basin holds the water so that there will now be no trouble of flooding the park. It was feared at first that the race course would be damaged; it is new thought that it will not amount

At the Keystone colliery, the trestling was blown down across the Delaware and Hudson tracks, but no other damage was done. The traffic was not delayed for any length of time.

The river, which up to yetserday had been but a small channel and pools, is now very high and a few feet more would have completely flooded all the cellars along its course.

The present condition is somewhat of a relief from what we have had the last few months.

People over in Centremoreland and vicinity complain of a couple of fakes who have been doing the picture game among them. The scheme is an old one and has been worked out in nany parts of the country. The men take pictures to enlarge free of cost, and then demand that the patron buy a worthless frame at a price much higher than picture and all are worth. Where this is refused, they keep the picture, and in the present in-stance it is alleged that they do not refund money that has been paid them. It would seem as if all games of that sort had been worn threadbare enough for any person of average intelligence to see through them.

No sooner was this done than the corpse sat up, the man not having been dead, but only in a cataleptic state. He re-covered soon, and declared that he was conscious during all the preparations for burial and the funerl services, but we unable to move. He jokingly remarked to Rev. Phillips that the latter "gave him a good send-off." "Yes, bet-ter than I will next time." was the reply. After the benediction Father Comerford delivered an address filled with consolation for those who mourn the departed, and he spoke at length on the upright and manly character of the deceased. His life, he said, afforded an example that might well be followed. He lived as an honest and followed. He lived as an honest and God-fearing man should live and when death called him he was prepared to respond. He tried in an humble way to follow the teachings of his great and only master; he lived at peace with himself and with the world; he fought the good fight and kept the faith, and sought to merit the reward that awaits those who are faithful unto the end. The high wind that prevailed early yesterday morning did considerable damage here. The "Madonna" stained glass window over the sacristy in St Thomas' church was so badly broker that is was necessary to take it out and send it to New York to be repaired, and a piece was also broken out of one of the large windows on the southerly side. The fancy iron rail running along the apex of the roof was blown down and broken. In other parts of the town there were also many evidences of the frolic of the winds but no serious damage was done.
