RANDOM RHYMES.

Who knows what a day may bring forth? Ah me,
In Joy's the shadow of sorrow,
And what is the beautiful snow today
May be only slush tomorrow.
—Detroit Free Press,

There is only a snowdrift, deep and cold, There is only a misty gloom O'er the lifeless leaves on the cheerless mold Where the roses used to bloom.

There's only a man with his nose aglow;
With pick and shovel and broom,
He chases the slabs of ice and snow
Where the roses used to bloom.

Oh. would I were a boy again,
For then I'd have the right
To thrash those youngsters who pelt me
With snowballs every night.

Washington, Jan. 12.

It is now believed that President Cleveland is not half so anxious to tackle England as he is Turkey. It is said he is getting ready to spring another surprise in the way of a declaration of war upon the unspeakable Turk for the outrages he has been perpetrating on Christians in Armenia. The whole civilized and Christian world would back the president if he notified Turkey to either let up on the atrocities in Armenia or take a licking from the United States.

What has given rise to this belief is that Secretary Herbert has prepared a bill asking congress to give the president authority, in the event of an emergency, to call upon the naval militia of the several states or upon others to man United States vessels that might be put into commission; also to charter vessels for troop ships.

The bill has caused more than ordinary commission; also to charter vessels for troop ships.

The bill has caused more than ordinary speculation and comment in public circles. The measure was received by Senator Cameron, who promptly introduced it and had it referred to the committee on naval affairs of the senate.

In the event of President Cleveland issuing such a declaration to Turkey it would make him the most popular man in the United States, and nothing short of a fatal sunstroke would prevent him from being renominated and re-elected if he has aspirations in that direction. It is not believed, however, that he is a candidate for a third term, and that if he does declare war on Turkey it will be through patriotic motives.

Below we quote a congressman Adams, of Philadelphia, ex-minister to Brazil and a member of the house foreign affairs committee, is in receipt of a letter from a friend who lives in Spain, in which he says that previous to the time the Cubans took uparms against their mother country the Spanish government was on the verge of making concessions to the inhabitants of that island. This gentleman states that Spain intended to allow Cuba local government, free ports of entry and many other things for which it is now fighting. Under the present state of affairs, he says, Spain cannot afford to grant these proposed concessions, and will either whip Cuba into submission or take a licking herself.

Mr. Adams is also responsible for the statement that the American property owners in cuba are responsible for the statement that the American property owners in Cuba are responsible for this government not recognizing the Cubans as belligerents. It is said that property to the amount of $25,00,000 is owned by Americans living in Cuba. They fear that if the Cubans should win in their fight for liberty their property would depreciate in value. Congressman-at-Large Galusha A. Grow is said to have a memory for names and faces equal to that of the late James G. Blaine. While walking through one of the corridors of the capitol the other day Mr. Grow ran across a colored man who was an attache of the house of representatives when he was speaker.

"Hello, Dorsey!" said Mr. Grow.
"How do you do, sir," replied the colored man, somewhat embarrassed, for he falled to recognize the man who addressed him.

"Why, old fellow, don't you know me? I know you. Don't you remember when

The colored man, whose name is Dorsey, admitted that he was at one time, thirty-five years ago, employed in the cloak room of the house, but that he had forgotten what Mr. Grow, then speaker of the house, looked like.

"Well," replied the ex-speaker, "you see him now.

Mr. Grow and Mr. Dorsey chatted over old times for awhile and then parted. Mr. Dorsey is a candidate for the house restaurant, and Mr. Grow is now one of his strongest backers.

President Cleveland's letter to Senator Caffrey on the bond issue is regarded here as evidence of the administration's state of mind on the much-mixed financial question. The president is said to be very much worried over the constant nagging at him of certain newspapers—especially the New York World, which has undertaken the task of raising money

The World's insinua-tions that President Cleveland is play-ing into the hands of the Belmont-Morgan ing into the hands of the Belmont-Morgan syndicate is being generally condemned by both Democrats and Republicans. The president may be guilty of a good many things, but it is downright injustice to charge the chief executive of the United States with corruption.

The autobiography of Hoke Smith, secretary of the interior, as published in the Congressional Directory, says that "after being admitted to the bar, he devoted himself to the study of law." There must be queer courts in the "Corneracker" state to admit a man to practive Jaw before he had became familiar with Blackstone. A story is told in connection with Smith's appointment as secretary of the interior that when his name was suggested to the president for a cabinet portfolio by Dan Lamont Mr. Cleveland asked who he was. Lamont replied that he was a lawyer down in Georgia who had made a 330,000 fee in one case.

"Well," replied the president, "any lawyer who can make that much money out or one case is good enough fo ra member yer who can make that much money out or one case is good enough fo ra member of my cabinet." President Cleveland's favorite advisor is Secretary Carlisle. It is said the president once told a friend that he considered Carlisle the brainlest man in the United States. During her stay here she received much attention from fashionable society. Senator and Mrs. Brice gave a large reception in her honor during the week, at which many of the ellite of Washington society were present. The theater boxes were well filled at each performance with friends and admirers. Miss McIntosh has just returned from Europe, where she studied under the leading artists of the old world. #### COMMENT OF THE PRESS.

AN EASY WAY OUT OF IT.

"Well, Inswim, you know I'm going to be married next week?"

"Bo I hear. Let me congratulate you, old man."

"That's all right. Now, what I want is a little advice."

"What is it?"

"You see, you've been married quite a while, and I want to know what to call my mother-in-law."

"Don't carry her. Keep right on bluffing."

"You know what I mean. I have to address my conversation to her sometimes and attract her attention. I don't know her very well and maybe she wouldn't like to have me call her mother, and I sort of hate to call her 'Mrs. DePimlico, How'd you work it?"

"Oh, easy enough. Let me see. The first year I called her 'Say' principally, but after that I got all right. Things sort of shaped themselves."

"What did you call her after that?"

"Grandmother,"—Truth.

"Carelessness and Mine Accidents.

Philadelphia Times: "The annual report of the mine inspectors of Pennsylvania again calls attention to what has been paintfully impressed upon the public mind by numerous fatal mine accidents in the past, the fact that the best and mat carefully considered laws for the protection and safety of the miners can easily be rendered of no effect by the carelessness of the miners themselves. Every session of the legislature for the last twenty years has had this subject under consideration with the net result that carefully drawn laws covering almost every conceivable detail of the process of mining have been enacted and are enforced by inspectors apointed because of their practical and technical knowledge of the business. In spite of laws and competent inspectors, however faithful and competent, can competent the process of mining have been enacted and are enforced by inspectors apointed because of their practical and technical knowledge of the business. In spite of laws and no board of inspectors, however faithful and competent, can competent can competent can compete the past, the fact has the past, the fact that the best and most carefully considered laws for the post. fields as coal itself and all mines have roofs to be propped or otherwise supported. The aim of the mining laws is to compel the use of adequate supports, the proper drainage and ventilation of the mines and careful inspection of every chamber and passage for gas before miners with open lamps are allowed to enter. If these requirements were faithfully fulfilled mine explosions would be as rare as the law intends them to be. Why do the mining laws fail? Because miners, in their eagerness to get to work, rush headlong into gas-filled driveways and chambers in advance of the inspectors; because those charged with the duty of placing the proper supports do their work carelessly and fn violation of all sensible rules; in short, because miners act frequently as though they considered the existence of protective laws on the subject all the protection they require. The requirements of mine laws, be they ever so timely, will not enforce thmselves."

Another Silly Verdict.

Another Silly Verdict.

Altoona Gazette: "It seems that Blair county is not to be permitted to lay exclusive claim to the distinction of having produced juries capable of declaring a man innocent and then ordering him to pay the cost of prosecution. A case of the kind occurred in the court of Lack-awanna county Thursday. The evidence was strong against the defendant, and the charge of the court was practically an instruction for the jury to return a verdict of guilty. But the jury did no such thing, it declared the man innocent. Then, as if endeavoring to make reparation for so ridiculous a finding, it ordered the 'innocent' man to pay haif the costs. Judge Savidge was so incensed over the farce that he at once delivered a scathing arraignment of the action of the jury, intimating that such verdicts could not be the result of honest intent. 'Not guilty, but pay the costs,' is not an honest verdict, and no sort of reasoning can make it appear so. It is, in effect, 'Not guilty, but guilty,' It is a compromise, at once absurd and disgraceful. It tends to drag justice into disrepute among honest men who have been taught to believe that 'guilt' and 'innocence' cannot be qualified."

Election Crimes and Contests.

Philadelphia Inquirer: "The Sittser-Dunham judicial contest in the Wyoming and Sullivan district cost $10,000. The counties are sparsely inhabited and as the costs have been impartially divided between the two counties, it is going to cost every voter about $2$ to pay the fills. It is proposed that hereafter the costs in such contests be placed upon the petitioners. No doubt such a plan would put an end to foolish contests like those in the Wyoming and the Indiana districts, but it would also make it difficult to correct a genuine case of election fraud resulting in the issuing of an election certificate to a candidate who had in reality been defeated. The Inquirer is disposed to believe that when men are disposed to buy men, sales and purchases will find holes in almost any law that can be framed. The real remedy for that kind of thing is to be applied, not from Harrisburg, but in the community and the home. If crooked conduct were not winked at when it is succesful there would not be so much of it to punish when it is unsuccessful." Election Crimes and Contests.

A Recurring Disgrace.

A Recurring Disgrace.

Philadelphia Press: "Judge Savidge, of Nomhumberland county, recently expressed dissatisfaction with the verdict of a jury in a criminal action which declared the defendant not guilty, but ordered that he pay a part of the costs. It is no surprise that the judge should do this. The astonishing thing is that such verdicts are not always and in all parts of the state denounced by the judge and the newspapers until such results are made impossible. It would be difficult to imagine anything more inconsistent or indecent than to compel a person to pay the costs of prosecuting him on charges of which he is proven to be innocent. But this disgraceful thing is done almost every day in Pennsylvania."

THE LEGEND OF THE DIPPER.

There is a pretty story which tells how the seven stars came to form the dipper. Once in a country far away the people Once in a country far away the people were dying of thirst. There had been no rain for months. The rivers and springs and brooks had all dried up. The plants and flowers had withered and died. The birds were so hoarse they could not sing. The whole land was sad and mournful. One night after the stars had come out, a little girl with a tin dipper in her hand crept quietly out of a house and went into a wood near by. Kneeling down under a tree, she folded her hands and prayed that God would send rain, if it were only enough to fill her little dipper. She prayed so long that at last she fell asleep. When she awoke she was over-joyed to find her dipper full of clear. cool water. Remembering that her dear nother was ill and dying of thirst, she did not even wait to moisten her parched lips, but taking up her dipper she hurriel home. In her haste she stumbled, and alas! dropped her precious cup. Just then she felt something move in the grass beside her. It was a little dog, who, like herself, had almost fainted for want of water. She lifted fainted for want of water. She lifted her dipper, and what was her surprise to find that not a drop had been spilled. Pouring out a few drops on her hand, she held it out for the dog to lick. He did so and seemed much revived, but as she poured out the water the tin dipper had changed to one of beautiful sliver. Reaching home quickly as possible, she handed the water.

ly as possible, she handed the water to the servant to give to her mother. "Oh," said her mother. "I will not live anyhow. You are younger and stronger than I." As she gave the servant the dipper it changed into gold. The servant was just about to give each person in the house a spoonful of the precious water when she saw a stranger at the door. He looked sad and weary and she handed him the dipper of water. He handed him the dipper of water. He took it, saying:

"Blessed is he that gives a cup of cold water in my name."

A radiance shone all about him and immediately the golden dipper became studded with seven sparkling diamonds. Then it burst forth into a fountain which supplied the thirsty land with water. The seven diamonds rose highwhich supplied the thirsty land with water. The seven diamonds rose high-er and higher until they reached the sky, and there they changed into bright stars, forming the "Great Dip-per," telling the story of an unselfish act.—Chicago Times-Herald.

A STORY OF BELASCO.

Years ago, when Mrs. James Brown Potter was being initiated into the mysteries of amateur theatricals, Be-lasco was her coach. Edward Fries lasco was her coach. Edward Fries Coward, the amateur actor, who is now the dramatic editor of the New York World, was her leading man. They appeared in several light comedies together for the benefit of charities, and then Mrs. Potter's ambition, which was given to vaulting, even in those days, inspired her with a desire to play Juliet. Belasco told her that he thought she could play it, and then he added liet. Belasco told her that he thought she could play it, and then he added, turning to the leading actor:

"But I draw the line at you, Coward. You couldn't play Romeo to save your life. You're not built that way."
Coward waxed indignant, Mrs. Potter sympathetic, but Belasco stood to his guns. Finally, the idea was abandoned, even before it came to a dress rehearguns. Finally, the idea was abandoned, even before it came to a dress rehearsal. That was some eleven years ago. Last month, when Belasco's play, "The Heart of Maryland," was produced at the Herald Square, Mr. Coward was in front to write the World's criticism. No newspaper in town was more emphatic in its praise of Belasco's work. The next day Belasco happened to meet next day Belasco happened to meet Coward on Broadway. He gripped him by the hand, and, with tears in his eyes,

"That was the finest notice I ever nad in my life." Then he added, with a sly little twinkle in his eye: "I say, Coward, I ought never to have said that you couldn't play Romeo."

EUCHERING THE CONFESSOR

A certain lazzarone once came to confess himself to a missionary priest who was confined to his bed with the gout, was connect to his bed with the gout, with the intention of stealing a pair of new shoes, which he had seen under the good father's bed. The priest having called him up to the bed, as he could not rise, the man knelt down and while reciting the Confiteor, got hold of the shoes, and put them into the wallet which he had under his cloak. Having finished the Confiteor, the first and last sin which he confessed was that of having stolen a pair of shoes.

The confessor replied. "Ah! my son. you ought to restore them '

The penitent replied: "Father, do you want them?" "No." said the priest: "no, my son. But they ought to be restored to the rightful owner; otherwise, I cannot give rightful owner; otherwise, I cannot give you absolution."

"But, father," replied the man, "the owner says he does not want them. What, then, shall I do?"

The confessor answered: "Since that is so keep them for yourself;" and giv-ing him absolution, he dismissed him, and the position carried off the shoes.
