Fire at the Elk.

Caused Unpleasantness to Those in Charge of Reception Committee.

Much unpleasantness was caused for a time last night to those having the reception to the Superior court judges in hand by a fire in the basement floor of the building. The fire started in a room where arrangements are now under way for this event. The fire, however, proved to be of but little consequence and was easily subdued by the invaluable chemical engine.

One of Proprietor Ziegler's employees carried a candle into the coal cellar while attending to the furnace and by some accident ignited the pile of rubbish under the steps leading to the sidewalk opening. The flames were discovered by the janitor and he called for a start and a quick response by the Chemicals to an alarm from box 15 sent in by Patrolman T. V. Lewis prevented any further damage than a slight charring of the stairway.

SOUTH SIDE NEWS.

At the last mass yesterday morning in St. John's church, Miss Louise Cochran, the young lady who is in the city on a visit to her aunt, Mother Mary, of St. Cecilia's academy, sang with the choir of the church, and at the offertory she sang as a solo the "O Salutaris." At the end of the mass she sang "Give Me Thy Heart" as a duet with Miss Minnie Moore as alto.

Miss Cochran has a beautiful soprano voice, splendidly cultivated and there is a charm about her singing that places her prominently as a gifted vocalist. The congregation was delighted with her singing and feel greatly indebted to her. The chorus singing of the choir was up to the standard of St. John's church has one of the best, if not the best, choirs in the Scranton diocese.

A PLEA FOR REFORM.

Editor of the Tribune.

Will the citizens of this progressive and growing city permit the public officials to expend our money at the rate they are now doing without protest? I for one do not. The public officials are holding meetings of the taxpayers. The first thing to demand is a big cut in the salaries of our officials. Good men can be found that will do the work for one-half the present cost. Our taxes are now about 20 per cent. The public officials have been reduced almost one-half. Now, our salaries, pay less commissions to our tax collectors. Let our public officials do their own work. Instead of, as now, many are attending to their own affairs. keels weep. Will it come? I trust not. It reads like a prophecy. And to me this horror of horrors which appears before us, as a reality, is a breath which is broadened for the starving. War is never so imminent as when it is tied to a principle.

We must fight, brethren, if the fundamental principle and self-preservation is at stake. Thinking men and statesmen are not to be deceived. If the promises be true and England will not yield, then it must come, fearful and terrible. And what has this to do with bread for starving subjects of the Turk? It has to do with the peace of the world. The golden horn, looking on, we are paralyzed, fearful, suspicious. Perhaps the investigation and recognition of self-preservation, but used for centuries to make material conquests and deluge the world with blood, is the last, and a century it has been a bond of peace. The Monroe doctrine is for us what that is for Europe.

It will remain so and now it must be settled. Coupled with that doctrine we have the principle of self-preservation. The absolute non-interference with the affairs of European nations, if that is the principle, is not to be broken. It will prevail, if it will not. There is the rub. We did send our representative to the conference in London, and the republic of Hungary, Austria said that meant war and threatened to shoot our representative. Webster said it meant it to every citizen of the United States and the world. It meant war and the world is every language, every tongue, and war did not come.
