MODERN ASTROLOGY.

Almost Forgotten Science That Is

Attracting Attention. Within the past few years interest in that almost forgotten science, as-trology, has been revived to a marked degree in this country, and many of the foremost thinkers of the age take de-light in studying the effect of the signs of zediac upon the human life. The believers in astrology today are constant-ly on the increase, and the investiga-tion of the mysteries of the heavens affords interesting study for the man of intelligence, even if he may be skeptical upon the subject.

Astrology, it is claimed, will give a n.a.p of one's life from the cradle to the grave. In showing what vocation the subject is best fitted for by nature, it becomes a system of science against luck and points out the weakness that must be guarded against in order that success may be achieved.

The custom of associating this science with jugglery, black art, spiritualism and the tricks of the fortune teller has undoubtedly done much to bring as-trology into disrepute. Since the study has been taken up by some of the lead ing scientists and astronomers of the day, however, astrology has been com-ing into favor rapidly.

HOME'S ANNUAL MEETING

1856 NORTON'S 1896 Reports Concerning the Good Work Done During the Year.

OLD OFFICERS RE-ELECTED

The Secretary, Mrs. W. D. Kennedy, It Her Excellent Report Spoke in Detail of What Had Been Done-Financial Statement of Institution.

The annual meeting and election of the Home for the Friendless was held yesterday afternoon in the Young Wo-men's Christian association rooms on Washington avenue. The meeting was purely a business one and no action was taken on securing funds for the new home building. Ex-Judge H. A. Knapp, chairman of the board of advisors, presided.

Following the reports of the secretary and the treasurer, the following officers were elected to succeed them-and the treasurer, the following omcers were elected to succeed themselves:

President, Mrs. J. A. Robertson; vice-president, Mrs. C. P. Matthews; chief manager, Mrs. John Genter; recording secretary, Mrs. W. D. Kennedy; corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. B. Penman; treasurer, Mrs. D. E. Taylor.

Managers were elected as follows: For three years, Mrs. G. L. Dickson, Mrs. B. M. Winton, Mrs. W. H. Perkins, Mrs. N. Y. Leet, Mrs. E. H. Ripple, Mrs. Cora Merrifield, Mrs. R. G. Brooks, Mrs. F. H. Gerlock; for two years, Mrs. E. S. Moffai, Mrs. F. W. Mason, Mrs. C. B. Scott, Miss Jennie Reynolds, Mrs. D. Langstaff, Mrs. J. R. Fordham, Mrs. A. E. Hunt, Mrs. E. F. Chamberlain; for one year, Mrs. R. W. Luce, Mrs. J. L. Stelle, Mrs. Charles Schlager, Mrs. James Connell, Mrs. E. H. Ripple, Mrs. R. G. Brooks; Mrs. F. H. Gerlock, Mrs. Cora Merrifield; auditors, J. A. Robertson, R. W. Luce.

The report of Mrs. W. D. Kennedy, secretary, was as follows:

Report of the Secretary.

At the beginning of this new year exist-ing elecumstances are such as to appeal to every heart on behalf of our beloved institution.

At the deginning of this new year extraing eigcumstances are such as to appeal to every heart on behalf of our beloved institution.

Later on we have somewhat to say to you in regard to the future outlook, but first we must invite you to a retrospect of the past year's work, and compare it with that of other years.

We have no need to question the position that the Home holds in the hearts of the people. The constant response to appeals for maintenance proves conclusively that our greater necessities will also be generously and gladly met.

You have already learned from our treasurer's report that we have been enabled to promptly meet our current expenses, and have also reduced the indebtedness on the foundation of the new Home building, using for that purpose the $1,600 gift, of Mrs. E. Sivelly Reed, adding to it $500 from the Home treasury. You have also heard that we have a further indebtedness upon the foundation which must be met at an early day.

We have been hampered in our work the past year from lack of room. Through the worm weather, our space was entirely inadequate to our needs. Our family numbered from fifty to fifty-eight, of whom from eight to ten were old ladles. We were obliged to refuse worthy applicants, as there was absolutely no room for one more. Even at this season of the year, when concerted charitable measures keep many families together, we had at the time of the fire about fifty in the family.

During the year there have been admitter to the Home thirty-seven boys forty-five girls and seven women. There have been removed, in various ways, sixty-five, so that it will readily be perceived that with the exception of the old ladles, the family of one year ago. More and more it is coming to be understood that no matter how comfortable a child can be made, in even the best conducted institution, the influence of family life is of inestimable value to the child's future. So the work of the executive committee, as well as the committee of investigation has been exceedingly arduous.

Four Chil

Four Children Indentured.

Four Children Indentured.

Since the last annual meeting, there have been four children indentured to the home, and three indentured by the Home to families. Quite a number are out on trial, under the surveillance of the executive board. Many who were only admitted temporarily have been returned to their parents or friends. Several came to us from homes where the sickness of one or both parents left the children uncared for.

Three deaths have occurred during the year. July 16, an infant girl, 2 months old; Sept. 8, a little girl, 1 year old, and Oct. 20, an infant boy, 5 months old.

Two of our old ladies, who had been long with us, Mrs. Wright and Mrs. Hoyt, were removed to Hillside Home, their mental condition having rendered such a step imperative.

The work of the various committees has been performed with usual faithfulness. Our advisory board, with Hon. H. A.

Knapp at its head has responded promptly and cheerfully to our numerons requests for council.

So much extra work has been required of the building committees and its able chairman, Mrs. G. L. Dickson, that it should receive especial mention.

Mrs. Scott and her finance committee, deserve credit for a most successful excursion and an art entertainment at Elm Park church.

Mrs. N. Y. Leet gave a most delightful Easter tea, which netted $280 to the treasury.

Mrs. Charles Schlager also gave an entertainment at her home, which realized for the properties of the content of the properties of the content of the properties of all the friends, who have so nobly stood by us during the year. Ministers and physicians have given us freely of their time. Companies Responded Willingly.

Companies Responded Willingly.

Railroad and coal companies have responded willingly to our calls for aid. We were never do deeply indebted to the press. Generous gifts have been received from merchants and others who will be duly credited in the Annual Pamphlet, but it would be an excellent plan if these important donations could be accompanied by receipted bills, covering the amount donated, so that we might make public acknowledgement of their value. We have been most kindly and liberally remembered by various associations, also by schools, and church organizations even as far away as Hamilinton and LaPlume, and not less generously by those of our own city.

not less generously by those of our own city.

The cash receipts donation day were $505, and a larger amount of goods of various kinds were received than ever before. Our annual membership list last year was greater than usual.

Our chief manager has been untiring in her efforts for the welfare of our family. Our matron has entered into the work with unflagging zeal and Christian fortitude, while her sister, Miss Solomon, has proved a most able and praise-worthy assistant.

proved a most able and praise-worthy assistant.

A high compliment was paid our children by the pastor of the church, which they attend, who said it was like an inspiration to him to watch their reverent and attentive faces during service, an approbation which every parent, who has realized the difficulty of keeping even one small specimen of humanity quiet in church, will fully appreciate.

The Home kindergarten work has been continued under the excellent instruction of Miss Lillian Morris. It is a work which has grown so in favor in this country as to need no explanation or commendation. The closing exercises just before Christmas were especially enjoyable.

It would be pleasant to narrate many little incidents connected with the Home work. It would be interesting to read you the odd, yet pathetic, little bundle of letters the children sent to the matron when she was sick.

Work Done for Little Ones.

Work Done for Little Ones.

The children of Scranton would like to hear of the dear, dirty little boy, whose toes were so very grimy and his clothes so very ragged, whose mother was so very, very bad that the agent of the Associated Charities had him brought away from his wretched home in the alley, and how the little fellow was sb grateful to the policeman who gave him his dinner, and brought him to the Home in the patrol wagon that he wanted to save a generous half of his bunch of grapes to give the 'troi.

There were two executive meetings, one when a father, weak and wavering and wicked, gave us his two little children, one of them a bright little boy about 2 years old—both of them street beggars. And the other meeting, four months later, when the little boy was taken away from Work Done for Little Ones.

the Home by the lady to whom he was indentured. He was so clean, so well-fed toothed and evidently so well-fed you would scarcely have recognized him as the same child. But there is little room in this report for incidents. We would like to tell, at length, of the president's musicale and tea for the old ladies, of the pleasant rides they were given, of the children's lovely outing at the time of the Elm Park Sunday school excursion at Lake Ariel, but can only merely mention them.

We have gratifying news from the Girls' Refuge in Philadelphia, concerning the young girl sent there some time ago. She is on the roll of honor and will probably soon be sent home.

is on the roll of honor and will probably soon be sent home.

Efforts are being made to have one of our little girls transferred to the Soldiers' Orphan school, her father having been in the army during the war.

Two new names will appear upon our life membership roll, Mrs. A. D. Stelle and Mrs. Zillah Price.

The name of Mrs. Price will appear for the lirst time, and yet marked with asterisk, signifying deceased. Mrs. Price had presented her name for life membership when the summons came, calling her from earth. It was the privilege of her daughter, Mrs. J. W. Howarth, to send to the treasurer a check for $50 m fulfillment of the wish of the Senior Manager.

Death of the Senior Manager. Death of the Senior Manager.

In June we were called to mourn the loss of our senior manager, Mrs. W. W. Winton. She was a charter member and a life member. She had for many years been a member of the executive board. Her wise counsel was always respected and her fellow-workers at the time of her decease placed on record their testimonial of appreciation and esteem of her personal worth.

decease placed on record their testimonial of appreciation and esteem of her personal worth.

In the death of John B. Smith the Home also lost a valued friend. His generosity toward our organization is too well remembered to be more than alluded to at this time. His life, full of years and honor, needs no eulogy of mine.

We also miss from our gathering the gentle, courteous friend, whose heart was always so tender toward the needs of the little ones, who, were he with us today, in our hour of need, would be among the first to respond to our calls for succor. The home managers have great reverence for the memory of Charles F. Mattes. There has never been a year in the Home's history when it stood closer to the hearts of the people.

At holiday times every one seemed to think of the Home. The Christmas festivities were never brighter. From the old, with their faces wreathed in smiles, to the baby of 6 months, who clapped his clubby hands with glee at sight of the tree, with its gay glittering splendor, all was joy and happiness, save for the thought of the one litle boy in the third story who had never had a nice Christmas, who had eagerly looked forward to this one, but was too ill to be brought downstairs.

The dinner from the same source, as other years, was fit for a king, and the hearty manner in which the family partook of the feast was ample proof of its appreciation.

But close upon our Yuletide joys, we took of the reast was ample proof of its appreciation.

But close upon our Yuletide joys, we were faced with grave disaster. Just as the twenty-fourth annual report was completed there came a quick call and the startling announcement "the Home for the Friendless is burning."

One Thought Predominated.

All other thoughts gave way to one—the family—the weak, trembling old ladies, the sick boy, the little children, the babies, were they safe?

Thank God for life preserved. Thank God for the nobleness there is in human parties.

Mrs. Charles Schlager also gave an entertainment at her home, which realized us $48.

From different churches Thanksgiving offerings were sent, amounting to nearly $200.

We have need to express our gratitude to all the friends, who have so nobly stood by us during the friends.

Judge Knapp's suggestion that an effort be made to secure in addition to large subscriptions small contributions from the public generally and thus create a popular and widespread interest in the society was received with favor. Now I freely admit that the vote and the manner of counting the same which prevailed at our late primaries has somewhat shaken my confidence in this particular Republican doctrine more than it did the turrets; and I believe that every unprejudiced man will admit that when the aid of our political opponents is invoked to the extent that it was, that they were a recognized factor and played a very important part at our Republican primaries and that where a supervision of the count was called for and refused by our vigilants there is certainly grounds for suspicion that all was not as it should be. But while condemning un-Republican methods and what appears to be gross abuses I feel it my duty to rise above all personal feeling in the matter, for I am above all a Republican, and it is very repugnant to me to do anything that might be construed now or in the future as evincing a desire on my part to play the role of disorganizer, nor do I wish to do anything politically about the rectitude of which there is any doubt.

Doors were all from rich and poor allke; no thoughts of your church, or my church, or any one's church, all one great universal.

Our children made many friends during their shelter at the rooms of the Young Women's Christian association. As they gathered around the tables, on the evening after the fire to partake of the hastily prepared meal, there were few dry cyes almong the workers when the little heads dropped reverently down, ready for the accustomed blessing, and after the meal down down, and who was over, all around the cots in the odd to looking dormitory the tired little figures being accustomed blessing, and after the meal looking dormitory the tired little figures.

Do you wonder help is coming? The other children, in various homes, have also crept very close to the hearts of their sheefactors.

Touching proofs of sympathy are constantly being received. We are glad to see that our greevious affliction has aroused the sympathies in a practical way of many of our citizens.

Our life membership roll is thickly strewm with stars. What more beautiful memorial could perpetuate some loved and for which she labored?

It has seemed a weary waiting, but all our trials may prove but blessings in disguise.

To the Chairman and Delegates of the Independent Republican Convention field at Fuller's Hall, Jan. 7, 1896.

Gentlemen:—At the above named convention I was unanimously tendered by you the nomination for mayor on the Independent Republican ticket. On being summoned before your convention and officially notified as to my nomina ion, I intimated then and there that I had no desire to run as an independent candidate, but by resolution I was courteously accorded time to fully consider the matter. After mature deliberation I still adhere to my former resolve not to run as an independent candidate and I feel I would not be acting consistently did I do otherwise. When I announced my candidacy it was as a Republican and subject to the decision of the Republican convention. With my honored colleagues, Messrs, Davies and Westpfahl, we made an earnest, aggressive, honorable Republican fight, but falled to secure the requisite number of delegates in the convention.
