Wittnesses to a Payment Save a Tenant a Month's Rent. Julia Gilligan, of Throop, had a landlord's warrant issued to recover $60 for two months' rent from her tenant, Joseph Loboski, and he in turn laid a claim before Alderman Wright that he owed but one month's rent. He produced receipts for every month that he occupied the building with the exception of September and the present month, and had three witnesses present who swore that they saw him pay the September rent. Mrs. Gilligan denied having received pay for that month, but the alderman decided that the oath of the witnesses were as good as a receipt and rendered judgment accordingly. Ex-Judge Stanton represented the prosecution and W. R. Lewis appeared for the defense.

IN THE SOCIAL WORLD Gamut of Current Affairs in the Realm of Society. PAST AND FUTURE EVENTS. More Large Evening Functions Will Fill a Much Felt Want—Everybody Interested in Kirmas Rehearsals—Personalities of Someone You Know.

Tens, in Scranton, are quite the popular means of social entertainment this season. Probably three times as many have been given as during the whole of the season of a year ago, and the winter is only half finished. Is it because the women alone take extreme pleasure in social doings? It seems so. Excepting the bachelors ball and a very few evening receptions, the older married men have had to keep very close at home, at least so far as large and formal affairs are concerned. The younger married people have been saved from total ennui only by the assemblies and cotillions, and if one wants to know who is at any one of these gatherings he has only to read "the names of those present" in the newspaper report of the last one. Small dinners and card parties and the like are, of course, a most pleasing means of entertainment. One feels very much at ease and unrestrained in these gatherings of near friends, but there is occasionally a longing for new faces, new gowns, new conversation, new atmosphere and the large evening crushes which bring variety. Really, there is something needed to fill a long felt want.

DETECTIVE HALL'S ADDRESS. Will Speak to Young Men in Y. M. C. A. Hall. It is not often that a man whose life is spent in ferreting out crime is fitted by nature or experience to become a Gospel worker, but that such is the case Detective Todd B. Hall, of Baltimore, is evident from his profitable work in both capacities. He is not an evangelist posing as an ex-detective but he is a real live detective who, as a detective, exerts a powerful Christian influence on the metropolis. The solicitations of the Scranton association have come from Baltimore to give the young men of this city something of his knowledge of the effects of sin and the power of God to save men from it. Detective Hall's address will be preceded by a musical programme in charge of Director Cheney, who has arranged among other things for cornet music by Mr. L. R. Freeman, recently cornetist in a prominent New York church. The service will be held in the Young Men's Christian association auditorium at 3.45 tomorrow afternoon.

THE RISING GENERATION. Produced by Barry and Company at the Academy of Music. William Barry was greeted by an overflowing house last night when he appeared in "The Rising Generation." Mr. Barry's interpretation of the role of McShayne, the central figure of the comedy, is a work of art and never fails to call forth the plaudits of his auditors. No Irish-American comedian on the stage today has created a more interesting or natural character than Mr. Barry or one more true to life. A fine company, of which Mr. Barry's daughter is a member, supported him last night. Many were turned away who were unable to get into the house.

Kinsley objects to this plan on the ground that it is impossible to solidly pack the walking and as a consequence the pavement is injured by the settling which ensues, and the city has to foot the bill.
