PERSONAL.

Frank J. McCann went to Freehold yesterday on a business trip.

Miss Teresa Keating, of Dover, N. J., is the guest of Miss Mary Duffy, of Price street.

Miss Bessie Green, of Wilkes-Barre, is in the city to attend the Honshaw-Price wedding and during her stay here is the guest of Mrs. C. W. Fulton.

Lieutenant Governor Walter Lyon, of Pittsburg, and ex-Lieutenant Governor L. A. Waters, of Scranton, were guests at the Stratford yesterday, Philadelphia Press.

James Gaynor, of the West Side, will leave next week for Denver, Col., where he will attend the meeting of the Supreme Council of the Young Men's Institute.

At the sessions of the Grand Jury at the Eastern Jurisdiction in Indianapolis several months ago Mr. Gaynor was chosen as one of the twelve delegates to represent the jurisdiction in the Supreme Council. The meeting of the latter will be of great importance to the Young Men's Institute and the probabilities are that the sessions of the council will extend over a period of three weeks. The delegates of the Eastern Jurisdiction will assemble in Chicago, where they will be tendered a banquet by the local councils of that city. From Chicago to Denver the delegates will travel together.

REYNOLDS, THE MESMERIST.

He Experimented with Sixteen Newspaper Men Yesterday Afternoon.

A small audience caused an unexpected termination of Professor Reynolds' mesmerism entertainment last night at the Prothingham. He unsuccessfully pleaded for subjects, the small number responding making it impossible for him to select more than two who were susceptible to his influence.

After continued requests for volunteers, Professor Reynolds conferred a moment with Manager Jones in the stage wings and the result was the announcement that the entertainment must terminate. Checks good for tonight were distributed at the entrance.

It was proved at the performances of the first two nights that the mesmerist can mesmerize, and his entertainments were productive of no little amusement. If tonight's audience is sufficiently large those present are sure to be pleased. Professor Reynolds does not claim to do impossibilities; he claims to gain mental and physical control over certain subjects and to puzzle and amuse them as well as the audience. He received sixteen newspaper men at the theater yesterday afternoon and out of this number was able to partially control four.

VERDICT AGAINST THE CITY

Jury Finds It Liable for the Overflow of the Pine Brook Sewer.

MRS. WALSH GETS DAMAGES

Defendant's Side of the $50,000 Tresspass Suit Was Opened by Attorney W. H. Jessup, Jr.—Testimony of Engineer Gritman, Who Ran the Train.

A verdict of $462 for the plaintiff was rendered yesterday in the suit brought by Julia Walsh against the city of Scranton for damages to her property by the overflow of the Pine Brook sewer in July, 1892.

The plaintiff's case was presented by the defendant's side of the case in the $50,000 tresspass suit of David G. Jones against the Delaware and Hudson Canal company was opened yesterday.

The engineer, Mr. Gritman, of Wilkes-Barre, who was in charge of the locomotive of the train that caused the accident, was on the stand when the case was opened, and he was being cross-examined by Major Everett Warren.

He will be recalled this morning for further cross-examination. The story told by him shows the line of defense. He maintains that the train was moving along slowly when the carriage containing Hughes and Jones was struck and that he succeeded in coming to a full stop the length of a caboose below the crossing. The last stop he made was at Green Ridge before coming to the Carbon street crossing and the engine was not using any steam coming down after making that stop, as it is down grade.

He Whistled for Brakes.

He did not see the carriage until the engine was on the crossing. The dome and signal box would obstruct his view in the direction of the north bound track. His fireman and the head brakeman of the train were riding in the cab and one of them shouted to him. He immediately reversed the engine and whistled for brakes. There were no air brakes on the train and it was made up of eighteen cars besides the caboose. After leaving Green Ridge the train was not to stop that night until it reached Mill Creek. The trip from Carbondale to Green Ridge was made in an hour. These facts were brought out on cross-examination.

The witness has been a freight engineer on the Delaware and Hudson road since 1888; before that he was a fireman and has been in the employ of the company since 1876 or thereabouts. He is perfectly familiar with all the crossings at grade between Wilkes-Barre and Carbondale, and in answer to a question by Major Warren, he admitted that the Carbon street crossing is the most dangerous along the entire division; that is when a person is traveling from the central city to the North End. The witness has twenty more witnesses to be heard.

Suit Over a Beer Bill.

In the main court room before Judge Gunster the assumpsit suit of H. Koehler & Co., of New York, against D. F. Kearney, of this city, is on trial. It was called when court convened in the morning. Attorneys Watson and Johnson, for the plaintiff, and Attorneys T. P. Hohan and J. Elliott Ross represent the defendant.

The suit is brought to recover $3,000, alleged to be due as an unpaid balance for beer, ale and porter furnished to the defendant. Mr. Kearney contends that he is asking him to pay for goods that were not fit to be sold and which he could not dispose of. He admits owing part of the bill, but refuses to pay for 322 tons of ice he is charged with at the rate of $2 per ton. This he said, the company agreed to let him have gratis. The case will take up today and part of tomorrow.

In No. 2 before Judge Edwards the suit of A. B. Munn against Sarah Griffin was tried and given to the jury, but a verdict was not rendered at the adjournment. Attorneys S. H. Price and H. M. Hannah represented the plaintiff and Attorneys J. Alton Davis and John B. Collins were for the defendant. About twenty-five years ago Aaron Griffin confessed judgment to the plaintiff and he afterward became a bankrupt. This cancelled all debts against his personal estate. He died in 1883.

Began an Action in Ejectment.

After his death his heirs began action in ejectment against Ambrose Mulley and others for a certain tract in the North End. The plaintiffs won and the defendant was ordered to pay the judgment and collect it out of the property to which title was newly established by the ejectment suit. Judge Edwards ruled that the bankruptcy proceedings divested the defendant of his title and he instructed the jury to find a verdict for the defendant. A rule for a new trial was forthwith granted and it will be argued before the three judges.

The suit of S. Armello against J. Argont and others was called next before Judge Edwards. Attorney E. A. Zimmerman represents the plaintiff and Attorney John F. Scragg, the de-

A TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE

Pitiful Story of Suffering of a Young Married Couple.

TRAMPED FROM BALTIMORE

Starvation, Slept in Barns and While Stricken Down with Fever the Husband Drank Lackawanna River Water in Large Quantities.

The police station is a channel through which many a pitiable story is brought to light but it is seldom that a sadder one is related there than that which was told yesterday afternoon by a young married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brooks, who arrived in Chicago about 3 o'clock seeking shelter and care.

The husband is a strongly built, honest looking man and the wife is good looking and of a refined appearance. Both tell a straightforward story and gave no cause for the slightest suspicion that they were exaggerating.

During the big strike in Chicago there was a hull in the bridge building trade which Brooks followed, and having put by a little money he decided to strike out to better his fortunes. He went first to Stetson and then to Baltimore. He worked at his trade in the latter city until he lost his job through the dullness of the times and then having spent his savings, went to work on an oyster boat. Five days of this hard life was all that he could stand and finally, without money or friends, in desperation he and his wife started to walk to their home in Chicago.

Two weeks ago they left Baltimore, and with the exception of a few hits along the road by kind hearted wagoners they walked the entire distance, begging food wherever they could get it and sleeping in barns at night.

Unable to Go Any Further.

The husband contracted a heavy cold while working on the oyster boat and the exposure of the journey threw him into a fever. The wife's limbs become swollen from the tramping and she also took a heavy cold and on Monday night they found themselves about four miles below here unable to go any further.

They applied to a party living along the road for permission to sleep in his barn but he told them to go to Scranton and see the poor authorities. This to them was a physical impossibility so they sought shelter in a tool shanty on the railroad which according to their description must be in the neighborhood of Taylor. Here they were found yesterday by a party of young men who were going skating who did everything in their power to alleviate their sufferings and helped them to an electric car and said their fare to the city.

Arrived at the station house the husband utterly collapsed and was seized with violent vomitings. Mrs. Duggan hastily summoned Dr. Fulton, the police surgeon and he directed that the man be taken to the hospital as soon as possible and advised that the woman be given care and nourishment. The husband had a fever which the doctor easily explained after his diagnosis, but the extremely violent vomiting and retching with which he was constantly subject to puzzled the doctor until after some questioning he learned that the man in order to satisfy his feverish thirst had on the pre-
