

TWELVE PAGES--84 COLUMNS.

SCRANTON, PA., SATURDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 8, 1896.

TWO CENTS A COPY.

They're New and Correct IN CUT, FABRIC AND STYLE.

And they'll be much worn during the early Spring

Separate Dress Skirts

Have come to stay for a season at least, and as usual, we're just a little ahead of the procession, and show now what others will ask you to look at a little later on. Consult any authority on current fashion, and they'll tell you that the Spring and Summer of '96 will be the greatest separate Skirt and Waist season on record. Where one was sold last year three will be sold this year.

No, no, it isn't a bit too early for buying. These skirts are just the right weight for the cold weather of early Spring; in fact, we had them made up especially for present wear, believing that many of our lady patrons will welcome them as timely and appropriate first-of-the-season garments.

Their Cost Is Moderate

All of these Skirts are from five to six yards wide. They are lined throughout and finished in the best possible manner. The higher grades have the new and popular "Rustle" Linings so much in demand, and will be found worthy the attention of the very best trade.

Fancy Mohair Skirts.....$1.49
Figured Crepon Skirts.....2.50
Wide Wale Diagonal Skirts.....3.75
New Mohair Skirts.....5.00
Tufted Cheviot Skirts.....5.00
Tufted Cheviot Skirts, extra heavy.....6.50
Silk and Mohair Skirts (feather weight).....8.50
Finest New Crepon Skirts.....$9.50

Novelties in figure and stripe effects. These give but a hint at what to expect, but there's lots more to select from.

Of Course

We've got the Waists as well.

GLOBE
WAREHOUSE

TALBERT TALKED TREASON

House Becomes Agitated Over Remarks of a Fiery Southerner.

A SMALL MATTER MAGNIFIED

Business of the Session at a Standstill on Account of a Speech-Mr. Frye Chosen President Pro Tem. of the Senate.

EFFECT OF THE GOLD LOAN.

The Business Situation Is Altered for the Better by the Confidence of the People in American Securities.

New York, Feb. 7.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s review will say tomorrow: "Failure of the wheat crop will bring 225 million dollars against us next year, and 63 in Canada against 58 last year. The wonderful success of the popular loan alters the face of events. January operations become ancient history as the nation mounts above all doubt and fears to a solid certainty that the people can and will pay their debts when due." The influence of this report upon all manufacturing, all trade cannot be lightly estimated. It put the treasury upon a safe basis for the time whether congress does anything or not. It notifies foreign nations that the United States have power as well as purpose. It unlocks millions of gold which is now held in reserve. This situation, brings directly several millions of gold from Europe and stimulates the anxiety of foreign investors to hold American securities.

Many Republicans did not approve Mr. Talbert's course, but deeming the matter of sufficient importance to warrant his action, but others warmly supported him, and one member declared that Mr. Talbert ought to be expelled. Mr. Talbert was permitted after a time to explain. He said he had no idea that his speech could recur and he was glad of it. He was called to order by Mr. Barrett, (Rep., Mass.), who asked that his words be taken down. He offered a resolution denouncing the words as seditionary and treasonable, and in view of the order of the court, Mr. Talbert at the beginning of this congress. Much excitement prevailed until the matter was finally disposed of, the disorder at times being so great as to preclude the transaction of business.

Many Republicans did not approve Mr. Talbert's course, but deeming the matter of sufficient importance to warrant his action, but others warmly supported him, and one member declared that Mr. Talbert ought to be expelled. Mr. Talbert was permitted after a time to explain. He said he had no idea that his speech could recur and he was glad of it. He was called to order by Mr. Barrett, (Rep., Mass.), who asked that his words be taken down. He offered a resolution denouncing the words as seditionary and treasonable, and in view of the order of the court, Mr. Talbert at the beginning of this congress. Much excitement prevailed until the matter was finally disposed of, the disorder at times being so great as to preclude the transaction of business.

Mr. Datzell (Rep., Pa.) moved to refer the whole subject to the committee on judiciary and this was agreed to yeas 200; nays 71—with this disposition of the matter, the exciting episode ended.

Just before the house took a recess at the close of the afternoon session Mr. Pearson (Rep., N. C.) who had not been present when Mr. Talbert made his statement entered a disclaimer of the sentiment, saying: "I do not know if Mr. Talbert's speech could not have done him shame at the course of North Carolina in the war, for that would be treason by his own state to his own blood. He pleaded that Northern Republicans permit Southern Republicans to remain in the Union with the same status, promising the best and most satisfactory results from that policy. Mr. Talbert accepted the disclaimer, and the incident will probably not again be heard of.

The remainder of the session was devoted to the further consideration of the anti-slavery bill. There was an hour and a half of debate before today's legislative session began.

Mass., Newlands (Silver, Colo.) Hartman (Rep., Mont.), Williams (Dem., Miss.), Broderick (Rep., Kan.) and Bowers (Rep., Cal.) spoke in favor of free coinage and Messrs. Tucker (Dem., Va.), Walker (Rep., Mass.) and Patterson (Dem., Tenn.) against it. At 5.15 o'clock the house took a recess until 8 o'clock, with the understanding that further continuation of the day's session would be held at 10.30 tomorrow morning. The orders for other wooden goods are still unusually delayed.

The cotton mills continue generally active, though talk of decreasing the production still continues, print croths do not sell above 2% cents and some are not sold at all. Spool cottons and some new raised pieces. The speculative markets have been largely influenced by rumors of injury to the cotton crop and by foreign advances. Corn has been comparatively quiet. Cotton is practically unchanged, excepting in the case of the new raised pieces which have not yet come in for sale.

The stock market has been growing stronger at the week until the sale of bonds through yielding a little on realizing. Railroad earnings in January have been 10.6 per cent. larger than last year, but 8.3 less cent. less than in Chicago was in January nearly 1 per cent. larger than in 1895.

SPANISH MOBS ACTIVE.

Two Thousand Republicans Visit the Royal Palace and Hoot at Their Hearts' Content Unmolested.

Madrid, Feb. 7.—This city was the scene today of a demonstration that would have required but very little to have turned it into a serious riot. As told in these dispatches on Tuesday last, a number of men hooted General Campos as he was driving to his residence from the railway station on his return from a visit to the south. Wood and his party then lit on the spot where the rioters were arrested and one of them was carried away by the gendarmes who had him in custody and sought to make his escape. The gendarmes fired twice at him and killed him. The shooting caused great excitement and the crowd gathered outside the royal palace, opposite the gates, shouting "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."

The government anticipated trouble and there was a strong display of gendarmes who, however, appeared to be afraid to interfere with the procession in any way lest they provoke a riot. Consequently, when the crowd reached the gates, the Queen Regent was received when the great assembly stood with bared heads until the funeral rites had been completed. The greater part of the crowd then dispersed, but 2,000 of its number again formed in line and marched toward the royal palace in front of which they gathered unmolested and shouted "Death to the Queen Regent" and "Long live the republic."