II II The inimitable Joe Ott, supported by his brother, Phil, and a carefully selected company will present the 'Star Gazer' at the Academy Thursday evening. The critics along the way say that Joe Ott has a much beiter performance than last season. There is probably no doubt of this, owing to the fact that he is the most original individual now upon the American stage, and what is more he is the most ambitous of actors, always looking for nomething new to please the people. The play in which he is now starting is clever-by constructed and just the thing for a comedian of the type of Joe Ott. With every such affair as the kir-mess there is the accompanying ques-tion, "What was best?" It was all good; each class of dancers and all the soloists and duettists acquitted them-selves very creditably. But if the ap-

With this aggravating dilemma be-fore them the committee determined to do something desperate. They did. After two hours of labor with double-edged axes they discovered after the chips had been cleared away that in-stead of making a reduction they had made an increase of $1.225.75. Then they adjourned till one week from next Friday night, vowing that something is going to drop when they get together again. The $100,000 which it is esti-mated will be required for new im-provements called for by ordinances and resolutions now under way, will have to be left out of consideration al-together it is confidently thought. Its dancers are Jewish young men and ladies of well known families and they did their part with such natural grace and abandon and entered so fully into the wild spirit of the gypsy measure as to win a warm encore. Just preceding the final tableau some one called out "Miss Stewart," but the popular young woman whose splendid taste and talent and remarkable exstable. ecutive ability has made everybody wonder, was too modest or too busy behind the scenes to respond. DEATH OF MRS. LOVELL.

Succumbed to Typhoid Pneumonia at Her flome in Elgin, Ill.

Her Home in Eigin, III. Many friends in this city will regret to learn of the death of Mrs. Edward C. Lovell, which occurred at her home in Eigin III. Monday morning, Feb-ruary 10, of typhold pneumonia. Mrs. Lovell was better known in this city as Carrie Watres, daughter of Lewis S. Watres and "Stella of Lackawanna." She was the sister of ex-Lieutenant Governor L. A. Watres, Charles Watres Mrs. John L. Hull, all of this city. Mrs. Lovell was a graduate of Ann Arbor university, having first attended by Miss Jennie Noth and Leo Schimpff. The dance of the Venetian gondollers was chaperoned by Mrs. Henry Belin, jr., and Mrs. James Archbald, and was executed to such music and with such graceful style of movement as to indi-cate, almost, the presence of the dreamy and enticing atmosphere of the city which suggests the title of the dance. A delightful part of this num-ber was a vocal solo. "Good Night." Arbor university, having first attended Vassar college. She is survived by three most interesting little daughters. Her husband, Judge Lovell, sustained a double loss, in that, one week ago, the youngest child, a son of one year, died of the same disease. Mrs. Lovell was prominent in the charitable organizations of Elgin, and all who knew her, loved her for her unselfish life and beautiful character. The funeral will take place Wednesday morning in Elgin.

She danced very prettily and coquetted with her shadow which was reflected from a light in the wings. The chap-erons were Mrs. H. M. Streeter and Mrs. C. R. Shryer. Probably the minuet and gavotte, suggestive of the French court, shared with many, the honors accorded the Roumanian dancers. The costuming was something very rich and elegant and the stately tread of the dancers to the music of the ball room scene in Er-minie recalled to many their informa-tion of the etiquette and splendor of the court of Louis XIV which the dancer was supposed to portray. The charm-ing tread and courtesying of the per-formers could not have been better done, and in this dance alone Miss Stewart displayed an emphatic evi-dence of her artistic powers and knowi-edge of custom and costume of many decades ago. for the chemical engine. There was much discussion on this change, some councilmen urging that the Niagara should have a permanent man, as it is the only company in the department without one, and others argued that the company should be disbanded, as it is one of two companies occupying the same building. Purchase, erection and repair of fire hydrants was cut down from $3,000 to $2,000. Chief Ferber made a hard light to get the item for pur-chase of hose placed back at $2,000, but the committee feit that its original idea that $1,000 was sufficient was still good. The sub-committee appointed to knife Chief Ferber's recommendations for a paid department, or at least the nucleus of one, brought in a report in which all the recommendations were knocked out with the exception of a double drop harness for the Columbias, $1,000 for the purchase of horses, $125 for the erec-tion of a fire alarm hox at the corner of Vine street and Prescott anenue, and $27.75 for the maintenance of the box. The committee approved of this action and afterwards added $600 for supplies for the department, which is also one of for the department, which is also one of the items set aside at the last meeting. Mr. Wagner made a strong effort to secure an extra man for the Reliefs, but it was to no avail.

Action of Librarian Carr. The action of Librarian Henry J. Carr was such as to deserve and earn the hearty commendation of the commit-tee. He came to press the demands of the library, but when he saw the plight the committee was in he sat down in the rear of the room and went to work earnestly and honestly to shave down his demands. The committee had al-ready cut down the library appropria-tion wherever it though the appropria-tion would stand a cut, and was satis-fied to let it go at that, but Mr. Carr would not have it, and showed the com-mittee where they could cut his esti-mate another $500 or so. The library, he explained, could put to good use all that was originally asked for, but by the closest economy and the putting off of some contemplated improvements he could get along with a lesser amount.
