MUSICALE AT BICYCLE HOUSE Fine Programme Rendered There by Well-Known Artists-Record of the

Marriages and Other Social Events of the Past Week-Personals.

The present week was necessarily quiet in a social way owing to the kir-mess which not only occupied the sit-tention of the dancers but engaged the attendance of parents and friends of the performers and interested every-body to such an extent that all else the performers and intersted every body to such an extent that all else was laid aside. And it must not be in-ferred that the coming week will be an exodus from the city of scores of young and older persons who have been kept in town since the middle of Janu-ser by the kirness rehearsals and the by the kirmess rehearsals and th attending demands. Speaking of the kirmess, it has offered a splendid medtum for bringing about a certain kind of social pleasure that has been most enjoyable, especially so in view of the fact that but for the fete all kinds of fact that but for the fete all kinds of society would have been gaping and yawning for something to do beside at-tending now and then a few house parties or dancing the same old dances. The affair has proved to be a useful vent for a pent-up tiredness of the same parties and dances which have been the prominent means of social di-version for the past two seasons.

The musicale given in the Scranton Bicycle clu house yesterday after-noon by Mrs. George M. Hallstead, Mrs. W. E. Allen and Mrs. P. S. Page was a happy relief from the round of teas which have been given almost day after day throughout the winter. About two bundred and fifty invita-About two bundred and fifty invita-tions had been issued and there were possibly two hundred acceptances. Mrs. Hallstead, Mrs. Allen and Mrs. Page received unassisted. The read-ing room upstairs was used as a refresh-ment room, where Mrs. W. F. Hall-stead and Mrs. James P. Dickson pre-sided and were assisted by Mrs. F. M. Spencer, the Misses Jermyn, Miss Net-tie Coleman, Miss Dale, Miss Harding and Miss Gilmore. In the club hall on the street floor the guests were ushered by Misses Archbald, Clare Reynolds, Eloise Gilmore, and Bradley, of Newby Misses Archoald, Clare Reynolds, Eloise Gilmore, and Bradley, of New-burg. The stage was very prettily arranged, the stage was very pretty arranged, the arch being hung with smilax and the wall concealed with tapestries. The following very classic programme was rendered by Miss Freeman, of New-ark, soprano, the guest of Mrs. Allen: Miss Blackman, planist, and Miss Allen.

Young Japanese Will Speak Tomorrow at Y. M. C. A. Hall-Rules for the Observance of Lent-Notes and Church Services.

The Young Men's Christian association is working up a novel plan for in-creasing its membership. Under or-dinary circumstances this fact would not occasion much comment or interest, but in the present case two hun-dred young men are to me engaged in a struggle for supremacy that promises to involve, indirectly, the several thou-sands of young men in Scranton eligible to membership in the association.

It is proposed to have the present members divide into two parties, in each of which there will be about a hundred. Each side will then perfect its own organization and vie with the other side in securing the greatest number of new members before a given date. The successful side will be rewarded with a banquet or some other thing equally pleasant and to be decided upon later. After the members of each side are chosen it is proposed that they shall proceed in their campaign according to their own ideas, provided the methods used are approved by the general secretary of the association. The plan has been tried successfully in other cities, notably Rochester, Day-ton, Cleveland and Mauch Chunk. At present the idea is in an unfinished state here but all ararngements will probably be made next week.

He came six years ago to get a western education. for a year or more his father, who is a retired merchant of considerable means, supporting him. But when the young man, who had been converted at a meeting of the college Young Men's meeting of the conege found areas Christian association, informed his father that he had renounced Buddha and accepted Christ, he was promptly disinherited and thrown upon his own resources. He proved fully equal to the task of supporting himself, however, and by hard manual labor carned enough to exable him to graduate with honor. Not only this, but he inaugurated a movement for the crection of a college Young Men's Christian association building. During the last summer he directed a body of volunteers among the students in the manufacture of 300,000 brick for the building, and he is now making a tour of the country in an effort to secure the needed funds for its erection. He will speak tomorrow afternoon on Buddhism and Shintoism versus Christianity.

Anniversary of the Rescue Mission. The word gratitude hardly expresses the joy that has come to the superintendent, the executive committee and others connected with the Rescue mis-sion, over the result of last year's work, and there is further renson for joy to them in the fact that the noble work of the institution will be continued in-definitely, notwithstanding the discouraging outlook of a few weeks ago when many believed funds for carrying on the work for another year could not be secured. On Tuesday night of this week there on Tuesday might of this week there was a special service in celebration of the mission's fourth anniversary. The the mission's fourth anniversary. C. Logan. A conference of the foreign missionary societies of the Abington Baptist association was held Thursday after-noon and evening in the Penn Avenue Bantist church.

WILLISCHEK'S FIXE SHOWING

The winners of medals in their respective classes were John Bo-land, of the Excelsions; Joe Willischek, of Philadelphia, and Harry Marx, of Philadelphia Bolcod is in the sevent of Philadelphia, and Harry Marx, of Philadelphia. Boland is in the 115-pound class, Willischek in the 125 class and Marx in the 158 class. One of the battles was a draw. The proceedings began at 8.30. Jo-seph McNally, president of the club, was referee, and John T. Brown, of The Tribune, and Langes L Coleman ware

If the judges failed to pick a winner, the reference cost the decider heure. If the judges lated to pick a white, the referee cast the deciding ballot; otherwise his position in the ring was to separate the boxers when they clinched and to decide claims of foul.

Jerry Heenan, of the Nonpareil Ath-letic club, of Trenton, N. J.; George Stewart, of the Caledonian Athletic club, of Philadelphia, and John Boland. of the Excelsior Athletic club, were on the programme to fight in the 115-pound class, but Stewart did not appear, and when Heenan weighed he tipped the scales at 124 pounds, which made him incligible in the class he was entered; therefore no one being on the lists to meet Boland, he won the prize by default.

But Boland and a featherweight William Lavenbergh, of Philadelphia, went on in an exhibition bout. There was some very clever sparring, without any injury to either in the way of hard blows. Boland was in excellent condiblows. Boland was in excellent condi-tion; he had an easy time of it with his opponent and could have defeated him easily if the bout had been for a medal. In the last round Boland landed twice for every once on the part of his opponent. The decision of the judges was given in favor of Boland.

Willischek Is a Favorite.

Great interest was manifested in the dephaan appearance of Joe Willischek, of Phila-delphia, who has ingratiated himself with the Scranton lovers of good, clean boxing and scientific showing. Willischek has attended every tournament held by the Excelsiors within the past four of five years and his cleverness needs no introduction. He was attend-ed in his corner by Fred Clark, of Philadelphia. This was the best bout of the tournament. Willischek's live-ly leads and his trim condition were the admiration of the successors. It was an unequal match: Marx had a much longer reach and was taller and heavier. Notwithstanding the disparity

The sentiment of the spectators was with Hendley for the good show-ing he gave in his setto with Dempsey. Tighe is a well built fellow and as active as a cat, but his agility was need-ed. He forced the fighting and landed some severe swings on Hendley's neck;

yet he invariably got an equal ex-change. Of the two the Trenton boxer showed the better science, and he put up a very game battle. Tighe did the more leading in this round, and when time was called, one of the judges, Mr. Brown, decided in favor of him: Mr. Coleman could not decide in favor of either, and after a good deal of haggling Referee McNally called the bout a draw. This incensed Tighe and his friends, and they wanted to challenge Hendley to a finish fight in three weeks, but the latter did no give any definite answer.
