ROASTED IN A FIRE TRAP

Seven Persons Perish in a Baltimore Conflagration. BRAVERY OF THE FIREMEN

Chief McAfee Barely Escapes Death in Rescuing Mrs. Armiger—Colored Servant's Awful Leap—A Young Lady's Presence of Mind.

Baltimore, Feb. 23.—Not many of the inhabitants of residences on North Charles street, between Lafayette and North avenues, were awake this morning when fire engines came dashing up and down the fashionable thoroughfare, shortly after 5 o'clock. Flames were seen breaking from the basement of 1806 North Charles, the residence of James M. Armiger, one of the best known men in the city.

A large crowd was before the burning building almost in a moment, and looking up at the windows, the hundreds of spectators could see the occupants of the house aroused from their slumbers appear one after the other at the windows in their night robes.

Lou Whiting, a colored servant, who was employed next door of the Armiger residence, first discovered the flames, and gaining an entrance to the rear yard, he dashed through the building arousing the inmates, most of whom were still in their beds. But quick as was his action the flames were more rampant and the servants were shut off before half of the sixteen occupants of the dwelling had left their rooms. With all possibility of escape cut off, the inmates of the fire-trap were shut off before half of the sixteen occupants of the dwelling had left their rooms.

As soon as the fire department arrived the windows were stretched beneath the windows and the firemen called to the men who were striking the windows to jump. The crowd in the street, not realizing the extent of the fire and smoke, rushed to the windows crying piteously for help.

The servants on the fourth floor rushed down stairs but could get no way than the second story where they were driven into the sleeping rooms of other inmates of the house with closed doors behind them to keep out the flames and smoke. The servants rushed to the windows crying piteously for help.

RETURN OF JAMESON'S MEN

Three Hundred and Fifty Troopers Shipped from Transvaal. STORIES OF THE GREAT RAID

The South African Boomers Agree Upon One Point Only—They Denounce the Utlinders, Who Induced them to Enter Transvaal.

Plymouth, Feb. 23.—The British steamer Harlech Castle, from Port Natal, Jan. 28, arrived here this morning, having on board 395 troopers who took part in Dr. Jameson's raid into the Transvaal, and who were compelled to surrender to the Boer's. These men were turned over to the English authorities by the Boer government and the names of the officers who were brought to England. The officers of the expedition, including Dr. Jameson, are on the transport Victoria, which is expected to arrive here during the night.

Stories of the Fight. The representative of the United Press in London, writes of the men. Their stories of the fight which ended in their surrender at Krugersdorp varied widely. Some of them stated that they had been ordered to shoot their enemies dead without themselves being seen. If they followed this method in their attack on Dr. Jameson's forces, it has been reported that 299 men were killed.

COMING WEEK IN CONGRESS. Cuban Question Will Furnish Ample Food for Debate.

THE UNFINISHED SPEECHES. Mr. Morgan Will Continue His Talk in the Senate—Early Adjournment Talk in the House—Appropriation Bills Passed.

Washington, Feb. 23.—When the Cuban resolutions were made the unfinished business of the senate, a prolific subject for debate was laid before that body. The general opinion is that most of this week will be devoted to that matter. Mr. Morgan began a speech Friday in which he only gave the senate his introductory remarks. He will probably consume most of the time Monday and may not even conclude then.

Early Adjournment Talk. The committee on public lands will occupy the morning hour during the early part of the day. In the afternoon a vote of the bill unanimously reported from that committee to provide for the extension of time within which suits may be brought to quiet land titles. This is a matter that has been called to the attention of the congress by the president and there is need for early action.
