It has set Harrity's friends to work, and they will try to secure the election in the four legislative districts of the county of delegates favorable to him. On Sept. 19, 1894, at the last convention of the First legislative district P. F. McCann and F. M. Vandling were chosen to represent that district at the dent of the fact that the family is determined to prosecute James Hamilton, the driver of the wagon, and his employers, the Union Transfer company.

The post-mortem showed that the woman's third, fourth, fifth and sixth ribs had been fractured at the left side and the compression on the left lung had produced congestion and the first stages of pneumonia. The inquest is announced for tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the court house. The luty chosen to represent that district at the state convention to be held next month in Allentown. P. J. ROADS WERE ALL BLOCKADED

Storm Was Marked by Many Blizzero Like Effects-Predictions Say the End Is Not Yet-Trouble on the Steam Roads.

It looked very much, yesterday, as if the memorable blizzard of March 12, 1888, was to be repeated. Eight years ago today that famous storm was upon us, and it came much as the present storm dld. A large, damp flakey kind of snow first set in which in the course of snow first set in, which, in the course of a day or so, assumed a pulverized of a day or so, assumed a pulverized nature by reason of the cold wind which rose. Yesterday afternoon's United Press weather report, received at The Tribune at 2 o'clock p. m., prognosticated more snow and colder weather. These conditions, if fulfilled, may result in a repetition of the blizzard. The New York Herald's forecast, printed vesterday morning also has a printed yesterday morning, also has a blizzardy flavor:

blizzardy flavor:

Unless all signs fail, this city may look forward to a very respectable blizzard within the next thirty-six hours—a blizzard which ought to hit us on the same day of the month which was made memorable by the celebrated blizzard of March 12, 1888. As this is an even number year, it is best to be prepared for all sorts of odd things.

The storm was central at 8 o'clock last night over the edge of the Guif coast, in the vicinity of Port Eads, La., and was moving slowly northeastward, heavy rainfall, accompanied by a fall in the barometer, denoting the presence of an important cyclone. The rainfall at Mobile, Ala., measured four inches in fourteen hours.

Ala., measured four inches in fourteen hours.

As soon as it reaches a point east of the Alleghandes an increase in the force of the storm may be expected. It will move up through the Carolinas toward Virginia this morning, passing over the latter state this afternoon.

Its track is such that it will probably develop by the time it reaches us all the elements of a first-class blizzard, with tearing winds and abundant snow. Look out for plenty of the "beautiful" on your sidewalks domorrow morning, and if you've put the children's sleds away for the winter get them out again, for they may be needed.

The blizzard will doubtiess extend over the northern portion of the Middle states and be dangerous to shipping from Cape Hatteras to Boston.

MODERATED AT NIGHT.

MODERATED AT NIGHT. So far the weather prophets have prophesied aright. The blizzard, for yesterday's storm was of such propor-tions as to deserve this title, struck tions as to deserve this title, struck this region early in the afternoon and continued until about 10 o'colck at night when it gradually began to subside. The cessation of the wind caused it to grow somewhat warmer, as was predicted in the United Press report and at 11 o'clock it was not at all disagreeable abroad. Whether or not the "more snow and colder" part of the prediction will prove true remains to be seen.

About six inches of snow fell in this everything pertaining to winter weather the fall was about the same. The only train which was delayed to any extent was the New York train scheduled to arrive at 8.50 p. m. which did not reach here till 10 o'clock. Coal and freight trains were all more or less dereach here till 19 o'clock. Coal and freight trains were all more or less delayed but none were completely stalled. The street car people however did not fare so well. Every road in the city was completely tied up at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Cars were run, or rather were walked, at irregular intervals and with much difficulty up to that time, but for four or five hours thereafter there were few wheels turning except those on the Snow sweepers.

MADE AN AWFUL RACKET. Drunk or Crazy Man Makes Night Hideous

Around the Station House. The noisiest man that has occupied a cell in the central station house for some time was there last night. He was wandering around in the blizzard on Lackawanna avenue when two of the patrolmen picked him up and towed him to the lockup. As soon as the heavy hand of the law fell upon him he began to make himself heard and from the time of his arrest at 6 o'clock until the time of going to press he kept up a continual yelling and screeching, About 8 o'clock Desk Sergeant Delter with the aid of two pairs of handcuffs shackled him to the bars of his cell but this dld not cause him to subside. He kept pounding the bracelets against the bars, kicking the side of the cell and yelling at the top of his voice, mak-ing life miserable for the other unfortunates who had to spend the night there and attracting the attention of everybody who chanced to pass that way.
