WEST SIDE EVENTS.

Opposition line Developed to the Pro posed Location of the Hospital in the Freeman Homestend.

Opposition in its strongest form has pital, which was to have been opened in the Freeman mansion on South Main avenue, corner Washburn street. Residents of the locality are out with a petition which prays that the law in-terpose and compel the hospital asso-ing the strength of the locality are out with a petition to abandon the Freeman site and look elsewhere for a place to es-tablish the hospital. The reason given is that the intended location is too cen-ral and if the hospital were establish-ed it would be detrimental to the gen-ral interests of the people and proper-ty owners who live or own property names were signed to the petition last nght. night.

Complaints are being made against the owner of the Freeman property. Several months ago he sold a portion of his lot in the rear of the homestead of his lot in the rear of the homestead to the Washburn Street Presbyterian church to be used as a site for a par-sonage. According to the plans of the hospital managers it is said that the hospital morgue will be built within a very few feet of the minister's house, which was recently moved on the new site. This, it is claimed, is decidedly obnoxious. The main point advanced is that the location is too much in the heart of the town. The opposition heart of the town. The opposition think that it will be anything but a pleasant sight to see the invalid and injured hospital candidates lounging about in the open air when the nearby residents are enloying themselves on their house porches in the summer evenings. The hurrying of ambu-lances, the groans of the injured, will, according to the opposition, be very disagreen ble

Several months ago a resolution was passed in councils directing that the fire gong be removed from the Ox-ford breaker to the Washburn street air shaft. The reason advanced was that the majority of the West Side fire-men live west of Main avenue and it is very difficult to hear the alarm. No provision was made for the transfer and the resolution was unable to stand from debility. The city owns the gong at the Oxford breaker but the Delaware. Lackawanna and Western company Lackawanna and Western company owns the air shaft gong and the cor-poration has refused to allow its use as a fire alarm. The reason given is that the tooting of the fire alarm would cause confusion in mine signals at the air shaft. The gong will remain where ingham last evening recognized the fact that it was Pennsylvania's night. The red and blue colors everywhere through the theater predominated. There were red and blue costumes worn by the ath-letes, and the decorations on the stage and about the boxes were also of the university colors. There were also pres-ent everywhere the banners and streamers of the Young Men's Christian asse ciation contesting organizations labeled "Join the Blues" and "Join the Reds."

Society was well represented in the audience and thereby showed its appre-ciation of the college boys and the Scranton Bicycle club for whose bene-fit the performance was given. Nicely illustrated prorgammes containing pic-tures of the base ball, foot ball and ath-letic teams of the university were distributed. The gymnastic team consist-ed of twenty-one men, and their work included nearly every branch of indoor athletics. Three Scranton boys were among them, two of them, J. A horizontal bar exhibition by the team was the first number on the pro-gramme. In the midst of it and while Rodman Butler was executing the kip one of the rods fastened to the stage suddenly became relaxed, and Butler's best acrobatic efforts were required to land him on his feet. It was fixed and later while another of the team was attempting the giant swing the plates in the floor again gave way and the per-former's knowledge of lofty tumbling once more served him well. J. Myles (libbons appeared in an exhibition of club swinging and juggling. His jugging act was exceptionally good, and later on he handled the base balls in good style. His forte, how-ever, was shown to be trick bicycle rid-ing. He performed the greater number of the feats of the professional, probably not with as much dash and brilliancy, but with equally as much

Charles Gelbert boxed two rounds with E. M. Rauch just to show the un-initiated some of the maneuvers of the manly art of self-defense.

The other events in the gymnastic line were wrestling ,parallel bars, fenclng, tumbling, flying rings, pyramids and Roman ladder. A special feature of the show was the high jumping by Norman T. Leslie, He began jumping with the bar at five feet and raised it inch by inch until a height of six feet was attained. At ev-ery trial he cleared the stick nicely, not making a single miss in about twelve jumps. He appeared to be in excellent form last night, and judging from the ease with which he got over the six-foot mark the indoor record might have been consulted. A telegram was sent to Rev. N. J.
