One Adopted Kuthven Resolution, Other Laid It on the Table.

Was Adopted by That Body After Some Debate, but When It Went Over to the Select Very Different Action Was Taken.

A resolution directing the mayor to cause V. M. Ruthven, the lecturer, to leave the city was passed by the com-mon council last night, but was laid on the table in the select.

In the sixth order of business Presi-dent Grier, of the common council, in-troduced the following resolution: Resolved by the common council of the city of Scranton, the select council con-curring, that the mayor of the city be requested to employ proper measures to force V. M. Ruthven to leave the city. His books, which are being circulated throughout the city, are obscene and in-jurious, and his language so immoral and offensive that it is a marvel that he is able to find in the city a person so de-graded as to sit and listen to his vaporings during a meeting.

Mr. Regan moved the adoption of the resolution and Mr. Hickey seconded the proposition. Mr. Zeidler said that the mayor had already acted in the matter and he did not think councils had any right to pass such a resolution. Mr. Oliver also expressed the opinion that councils had no right to consider the resolution.

Mr. Noone held a contrary opinion. He thought the adoption of the measure proper as it would express the sentiments of the members of councils on the matter.

on the matter. SIMON THOMAS' MOTION. .

SIMON THOMAS' MOTION.

Simon Thomas moved to lay the resolution on the table but this motion was not seconded. Mr. Zeidler advised against adopting the resolution for the reason that he believed councils would be exceeding their powers in doing so. He did not want to defend Ruthven's conduct but he feit that the proper course would be to have him arrested and arraigned before some alderman. It would be wrong for councils to get mixed up in a religious discussion.

Mr. Noone declared that there was nothing religious about Ruthven and that it was proper the resolution should pass. Mr. Nealis favored the passage of the measure, he said, because it would be notice to the mayor that the councils would sustain him in any reasonable effort to rid the city of Ruthven. The resolution was then put and was adopted but two nays being heard in opposition. The roll was not called.

When the resolution was presented in select council Mr. Manley moved to

Mr. Coyne objected to this, as it meant virtually that the measure would be buried. He said he deplored the fact that such a measure had been introduced, as the only effect it would have would be to give Ruthven more notoricty, but as it was before the body he felt that it should be disposed of he felt that it should be disposed of one way or the other.

Mr. Roche agreed with Mr. Coyne that the resolution should not have been introduced, but felt that there ought to be an expression of sentiment on it while it was before the house.

MR. WILLIAMS' OBJECTION. Mr. Williams objected to the resolu-tion on legal grounds. He said they had no more right to pass a resolution to banish Ruthven than to pass one to banish Ingersoll or anyone else of that stripe that might come to the city. He was opposed to Ruthven's course, but believed the courts should be appealed to if it was desired to put a stop to him. Mr. Lauer contended that the resolu-tion should go to the judiciary com-mitte, as it raised the question of law as to whether or not the mavor would have the power to follow the behests of the resolution if it did pass.

Mr. Sanderson moved to lay the mat-ter on the table. Mr. Roche objected to this proceeding. He again contended that the resolution should not have been introduced, but as it was before the house there should be no dodging. Mr. Sanderson called attention to the fact that all this discussion was out of order as a motion to lay on the table got in a last, word, saying that the resolution did not belong to council.

The vote was called on the motion to

"Yes; that's the size my wife told me to get."

"is it for her?" asked the young womat, with some hesitation of manner.

"I don't know that that makes any difference," rejoined Mr. Chugwater, slightly raising his voice, "but I have no objection to stating that it is,"

"I beg your pardon, but—but would you mind telling me how much she weighs?"

"She weighs about 150 pounds."

"I thought so," said the young woman, reaching promptly for something in one of the pigeon holes behind her. "it's a 2s-inch size the lady wants. A 2s-inch would be about the right size for a 175-pound person, and we don't keep it in stock. Twenty-live cents, please."

Mr. Chugwater paid the money, put the pattern in his pocket and walked out of the store with a curlous feeling that he had shrunken three or four inches too small for his clothes and that 401 glg-gling girls had seen him shrink,—Chicago Tribune.

IT'S A BIG IDEA.

Company to Manufacture in This City Armor-Piercing Steel.

It is reported that a Scranton man, whose tendency for bringing about large financial deals is well known, is interested in securing for this city a company and plant for the manufacture of aluminum steel, a substance of such Forge works.

Before many days there will be rolling along the streets of this city a horseless carriage, and what is equally interesting, the machine will be the product of Scranton in idea and manufacture. Ordinarily such an announcement might be received with a certain allowance for the visionary enthusiasm of the inventor and workmen, but in the present case a man so well known as C. P. Jadwin, the real estate dealer, is largely interested in the carriage which is the invention of his son who is connected with the Scranton Drop is connected with the Seranton Drop Forge works.

As long ago as last November young Jadwin began work on a horseless carriage and as soon as a model was properly developed it was sent to the patent office in Washington, where the patent is now pending. The first effort to construct the vehicle was in order to test the wrinciple of the thing, and the sucstory as related to a Tribune sign as follows:

An official of a large steel company of New Jersey has a patent process for manufacturing the aluminum steel and has entered into a compact with the principle of the thing, and the success has been so great that Mr. Jadwin and his son believe the carriage will equal in speed and power any of the latest inventions of the kind and that it is the most practical yet constructed.

The first carriage built was abandoned as soon as it was found practical and work was started on another which is now housed away from prying eyes in the Green Ridge section of the city where it is receiving the finishing touches of competent mechanics before it is given a road trial. KEROSENE MOTIVE POWER.

Kerosene will furnish the motive power, but the particulars of the mechanism is not known as Mr. Jadwin, his son and the mechanics who have been employed by the former are extremely reticent and refuse to discuss the matter. It is known, however, that the driving power is created by the constant dripping of the oil upon a flame within a confined space which creates a perpetual but mild series of explosions. The explosions drive the piston back and forth, the piston being attached to a crank on one of the axles.

The wheels are fitted with rubber tires and are much the same as those seen on cabs manufactured by makers who cater to fashionable patronage. In adopting a body and seat for the vehicle there was a departure from other horseless carriage inventions, nearly all of which include the body, wheels and seat of some abandoned buggy.

A Tribune reporter found Mr. Jadwin in his office in the old postoffice building yesterday afternoon and asked him the matter in detail but said the vehicle about 40 miles an hour and to climb the steepest hills in and about the city.

ON THE ROAD IN TWO WEEKS. He said its parts were pactically put together and within fifteen days it would be painted and run on the streets of the city. His manner and words in-dicated that the carriage had in some way been given a practical trial and test. He did not say this explicitly but he had some strong motive for being so sanguine of success.

Mr. Jadwin expressed his firm belief that within a very short period horse-less carriages would take the place of the present means of road transporta-tion for pleasure and he explained his great interest in his son's invention by guard against failure becaus workmanship, he said several expert mechanics from Scranton shops had been employed and the carriage would be perfect in its mechanical construc-
