INSPIRING CHURCH SERVICE

Special Music or Exercises in Nearly All the Churches-Fashion Paradod in Stylish Attire Benuse the Weather Demanded it.

To describe in detail yesterday's music, flowers and preaching in any one Scranton church that made a pretence at special Easter observance would be to describe what was true throughout the city. In almost every church a successful effort, in which the church-going public's large attendance showed appreciation, was made to impress the truth that the day was in fact what it is in the law of many religions—a day of joy in commemoration of the Savior's resurrection.

Certainly the weather offered encouragement toward a proper conception

Certainly the weather offered encouragement toward a proper conception of the lesson of the day. The air was mild, and clear, the sunlight steady and bright. It was an ideal Easter, a day on which the very chirping of the birds, the warmth, the glow, the cheer, each and all conspired to make humanity appreciate what good things had been brought about by the glorious resurrection from death of the Son of God.

With all the sublime thought at-

With all the sublime thought atached to the day there was the inevi-able parade of fashion which custom has decreed shall make its appearance at Easter. On such a delightful day it is not surprising that femininity—or masculinity, for that matter—should display the finery which the sentiment of Lent declares shall be put aside for forty days. The weather itself was fashfon's sufficient excuse.

AT ST. LUKE'S CHURCH.

In St. Luke's church three communion services were held in the morning at 6, 8 and 11.30 o'clock, and morning prayer was begun at 10.30 o'clock. A Sunday school carol service was held at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. A vested choir of twenty-five men and boys under the direction of J. Willis Conant, the organist and director, rendered a special music programme of great merit morning and evening. The music will be repeated next Sunday at the bishop's visitation.

Mayor Connell will today veto the bill of ex-Police Officer Thomas Mills, who claims $250 salary for the time which elapsed between his removal, Nov. 21, 1895, and March 19, 1896, when the removal was confirmed by select council.

Both councils favored the payment of the bill and eleven days ago it was sent to the mayor for his consideration. As he has fifteen days grace before the measure can become operative without his signature he can withhold his approval or disapproval until the last minute before high noon today and as councils expire at 10 o'clock or thereabouts they cannot pass the bill over his head.

In an opinion on this matter delivered to Captain Moir, of the judiciary committee of common council City Solicitor Torrey held that Mills was an officer and entitled to pay until the time select council confirmed his removal. The mayor attempts to show by pointed argument and copious extracts from the city council confirmed the city charter does.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES.

The lesson on how to set a table for a plain dinner and how to serve it, as given at the Young Women's Christian association on Friday evening, April 3, was a decided success, and thoroughly enjoyed by all the young women who attended. The menu for an ordinary dinner was placed upon the blackboard, suggestions given for the purchasing of the articles required, followed by full directions for cooking, with a careful estimate of the cost of such a dinner. The table was then set; careful inestimate of the cost of such a dinner. The table was then set; careful instructions about the details which do much toward making the dinner a success, being given. This was followed by an illustration of the correct manner of serving. Many questions were then asked and answered.

Eriday evening is to be the Home or serving. Many questions were then asked and answered.

Friday evening is to be the Home circle evening. A series of illustrated talks from the art of making the home attractive will be given. Next Friday evening, April 10, will be given to the study of how to arrange and serve a course dinner. These lessons are free to all members of the association.

The association members and their friends are anticipating a delightful time on Tuesday evening, April 7, as that is the evening of the reception which is being planned in honor of the new secretary, Mrs. Nellie Lowry. Both ladies and gentlemen are invited.
