Mr. Cawley had been a poor director for six years and he discharged the duties of the office with the thorough credit and ability for which he is noted. There is great satisfaction in knowing that Mr. Cawley is succeeded in office by a gentle-man of such excellent business capacity as E. A. Jones. Mr. Jones is a council-man of this borough and has been a prominent figure in Republican politics in this part of the county. The inter-ests of the people will be in no danger while Mr. Jones is at the helm.

TAYLOR.

Rev. Ivor Thomas occupied the pulpit of the Congregational church at Feltzille yesterday. Rev. William T. Holmes has been tendered a call by the Congregational Owing to the absence of the pastor the services were dispensed with at the Methodist Episcopal church. We desire to offer the following rea-sons as sufficient to convince any reasons as sufficient to convince any rea-sonable person why our burgest should be elected to represent our district in the legislative body of the state: First, he is a man who has acquitted himself to the entire satisfaction of the people in every office to which they have en-trusted him with, thereby showing himself a faithful and diligent officer; second, to represent a mining district intelligently and discharge the duties of a legislator in the most effectual of a legislator in the most effectual way, it is essential to have a knowledge of the minutest details and laws which govern the community. In such a person as William P. Griffiths do we find these qualifications.

WILKES-BARRE.

DR. MURPHY DEAD.

of Wilkes-Barre's Best Known Dr. J. A. Murphy, one of the best known physicians of the city, died at noon on Saturday.

Dr. J. A. Murphy was born February 17, 1842, and was the son of John A. Murphy and Nancy Clarkson Murphy, of Chanceford, York county, Pa. He received a fine college preparatory education, and taking a course in medicine graudated at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, in 1868. He practiced at Columbia Pa. for one oon on Saturday. practiced at Columbia, Pa., for one year, and came to Wilkes-Barre in 1869. Opening an office here he early showed the genius and skill which afterward became a by word among his fellow physicians. He seemed fitted for his profession in a remarkable degree and the art of healing was to him a labor of love. He was willing and anxious at all times to sacrifice his own comfort for that of suffering humanity, and many are the instances noted where he gave his services free to those in need. He was located for a time near the Gildersleeve homestead and afterward opened an office on South Main street near South. For a number of years he remained there and afterward removed to Franklin street.

His war record was something to be proud of, but yet the doctor's modesty would never permit him to mention that he served all through the Rebellion. He enlisted in the One Hundred and Third enlisted in the One Hundred and Thru Pennsylvania Volunteers, a regiment organized principally from men in Ai-legheny. Butler, Clarion and Indiana counties, and of which Theodore F. Leh-man was the first colonel. This regiment participated at Fair Oaks and several other important engagements. He was a member of Conyngham Post,

Grand Army of the Republic.
Dr. Murphy is survived by his widow and three daughters-Louise, Mabel and Catharine. He was a regular at-tendant at the Presbyterian church and Dr. Hodge will officiate at the fu-

MONTROSE.

On Monday, April 13, April term of court will convene. There are but few cases of importance on the calendar, the most interesting one being that of Kate McAuley vs. D. D. Depue. Mrs. McAuley has entered suit against Mr Depue, the owner and proprietor of the Tarbell house, on three distinct charges viz: Keeping a gambling house; selling liquor to intoxicated persons. It is said that the case is the outcome of the "yenting of spleen," and double decked in that the prosecutor is strong-ly upheld by the Prohibition element. The proprietors of the hotels in Montrose have for the past decade, had per-lodically, suits entered against them. In the past these actions have been settled out of court, and if dame rumor is to be believed has in some in stances cost the hotelites considerable and has been a source of enriching the coffers of the Midianites. Mr. Depue is confident of his position and the outcome of the case is awaited with intense POLITICAL NOTES. Politics here are red hot; of factions—well, the office seekers are praying to be delivered "from battle, murder and sudden death," and everybody who knows even a thing or two can tell you what is on the slate. Yes! some wiseacres could have told you a year ago, and perhaps truthfully. This wiseacres could have told you a year ago, and perhaps truthfully. This year in Susquehanna county the fol-lowing offices will be presented to the sufferage of the people. One congress-man, Fifteenth district; two representatives, register and recorder, sheriff, two county commissioners and a county auditor. Locally the present scene of action is enhanced by the fact that two Montrose men are looking towards Harrisburg with a yearning like unto the parched traveler for a distant brook. E. H. True and C. A. Van Wormer are both anxious for the nomination of representative. Van Wormer has made his county canvas, so has True. As they are both residents of Montrose Van Wormer said to True, "You name one delegate, I'll take the other, it will prevent discord and we will both give Sam Wright, our del-Montrose men are looking towards Har-

will both give Sam Wright, our del-gate, which will make a combination of unity, peace and concord." True said, "init," so Van is out with an open letter to the voters and will endeavor to secure both delegates. Sam Wright will not refuse the nomination for register and recorder, and no one car blame him. Everybody likes him and the only excuse those who are "agin" him have to offer is "machine." Tom Kilrow, "from Great Bend, sir," is called a machine man, in fact he don't deny it, and the writer has a faint suspicion that he is vastly proud of it There lives in Brooklyn a man named Adams who, like the similar, yet singular numbered name, of our common progenitor, will undoubtedly be the first man when representative is bal-loted for, Probably Sam Wright's heaviest competitor will be C. S. Page, of New Milford. Mr. Page was his predecessor and received nearly as many votes as Mr. Wright when they clashed in the convention twelve years ago. Of the minor offices little can be said save that the first one up will be the best one dressed, and he who trades and runs away will have an office here son day. The attitude of the press in this county regarding candidates is decidedly amusing, it observes the different hustling candidates with a glacial stare and has a marble heart until the convention is over, then as a father upon finding his lost child it fairly goes into paroxysms of joy over the suc-cessful men, yes, that but faintly ex-presses it. Before the convention its columns are open (supposedly for a con-sideration) to Mr. Pro Bono Publico, An Old Voter, Mr. The People, Mr. An Old Voter, Mr. The People, Mr. Fair Play and many other men whose composite nature to candidates are locked in the secret heart of every editor. To a rank outside the local situation might be compared with history's famed Kilkenny cats but what's the use? But speaking of Representative Feedband B. Whiteley C. Fride. tory's fameel Kilkenny eats but what's the use? But speaking of Representa-tive Ferdinand P. Whipple, of Bridge-water, even if he is 88 years old, is most deserving of recognition at the hands of the Republicans. He advo-cates many things and proposes not only to fertilize politics but in addi-tion to kill all weeds. Here is his plat-form: "Betre adment in expenditures
