WEST SIDE EVENTS.

Salvation Army Presented With the Trophies Won in the War Cry Contest—Details of the Celebration.

The Salvation army barracks on Price street were crowded last evening when the Scranton corps received the trophies of victory in the War Cry contest from the hands of Mrs. Brigadier General Evans, of Philadelphia. It was a great meeting and the crowded auditorium of spectators will not soon forget the joy of the Salvationists during the several hours of celebration. Mrs. Evans, for the benefit of the uninformed, explained the nature of the contest. Her husband is one of the foremost workers in the Pennsylvania division, and to increase the effectiveness of the War Cry, which, as Mrs. Evans says, "is full of Salvation from coast to coast," Brigadier Evans suggested that a prize be offered to the corps which sold the greater number of War Cry in a specified time, six weeks. The prize offered was a silk American flag. There was also another prize. This was a "blood and fire" flag, i. e., a Salvation army banner, which would be presented to the corps making the greatest increase in percentage of total sales.

Captain Hannah Masland and Lieutenant Nellie Green, of the Scranton corps decided to enter the contest. Their soldiers were willing, and, as announced in a former issue of The Tribune, the fight was won. Last night was named for the reception of the flags. It was expected that Brigadier Evans would be present, but he was detained. Before the meeting the army with its brass band paraded the main West Side streets. Shortly after 8 o'clock the celebration at the barracks was begun. The meeting opened with the usual singing of Salvation army songs.

There was a feeling of general good nature in soldier and spectator. Badinage, familiar to the army was exchanged at intervals and experiences related. Ensign Harris, of the brigadier staff, sang a song called "The Raucous."

Every soldier spoke and echoed the sentiment of speakers with the most pleasing of abandon. "Thank you for 'The Raucous' exclaimed one female soldier, who is well on in age. The man at the bass drum pounded furiously when the trophies were presented. The music was played with cheerfulness, and the instruments of the band played their discord to the general shout.

Then came the time for the presentation of the flags. Mrs. Evans arose and told of the contest. She said that when getting off the train Staff Captain McKenle, of Wilkes-Barre, who was present at the meet, rushed in with the dreifull news that the flags could nowhere be found. He and others had searched every express office in the city, but the trophies were missing. "Now," said Mrs. Evans, "the captain has just lifted a burden from my mind and—But she got no further. At that moment two soldiers appeared in the main entrance, and they carried those two precious banners.

The joy of the Salvationists when the flags appeared amounted to frenzy. The half hundred soldiers arose from their seats on the platform and for many minutes the barracks were the scene of the greatest manifestations of pleasure. The brass band boomed, the cornet tooted, women screamed and the men yelled, all in the greatest joy. Handkerchiefs and small flags circled over the heads of the soldiers and the audience witnessed one of the proudest of sights and a monster evidence of the earnestness which characterize "a soldier of the army" in every task he undertakes. After awhile the sound died out and the meeting proceeded.

Later in the evening the flags were formally presented to the Scranton corps by Mrs. Evans. On behalf of her, Captain Masland, on behalf of her, Captain Masland's short speech was graceful and joyous. She and Lieutenant Green have worked hard to secure the trophies, and, perhaps, the compliment of Mrs. Evans, when she told of the two officers' work, amply repays them for their trouble. They were worthy the thanks of the city of Scranton.

Only once during the evening were the troubles of the army referred to, and that was in the words of Mrs. Evans. She said, in speaking of the American flag, that this country was dear to her. Three of her children rest in an American cemetery. "Yet," she said—and she carefully measured each word—"I will go wherever God calls me. As much as I love America, I love Him more." The significant part of the sentiment is that the soldiers applauded it. Many times during the evening "the dear old Salvation army" was spoken of by the soldiers.

It can safely be said that the Scranton corps will not follow Ballington Booth in his "American Volunteer" movement.

CAUGHT BY THE FENDER.

John Wilson is Scopped Up by a Suburban Car. About 10 o'clock last evening one of the Green Ridge Suburban north bound cars, when near the Consumers' Ice house, struck an unknown man. The individual fell over the car and was thus saved from injury. He appeared to be unconscious when lifted from the wire netting by the car runners, and was taken to the car and carried to Green Ridge. At John Horn's hotel a glass of whisky was placed before the unconscious man and he revived instantly.

He gave his name as John Wilson, of West Market street, and expressed his gratitude by offering to revive all hands with a drink. The street car men were obliged by the rules of the company to decline Wilson's hospitality and he departed in the direction of Providence, loud in praise of the utility of the car fender.

BRIDLING OF NIAGARA.

Interesting Talk by a Former Scrantonian Before the Engineers' Club. L. B. Stillwell, formerly of this city, now assistant general manager of the Westinghouse Electric company, of Pittsburg, lectured last night before the members of the Scranton Engineers' club and their friends at Albright library hall on "Electric Power Generation at Niagara Falls."

Mr. Stillwell was introduced by Captain W. A. May, who remarked that the lecture should be of especial interest to Scrantonians, as a person is generally interested in the doings of his rival, and Scranton is a rival of Niagara.

FOR A CINDER PATH.

Bright Outlook for One Between This City and Carbondale, met at Hotel American at Carbondale last evening in the interest of the cinder path between the cities. M. K. Harnden, of the Carbondale Cycle club, was made temporary chairman, and Howard Davis, of the Green Ridge Wheelmen, of Scranton, secretary.

It was decided to hold a general meeting next Friday evening in the Carbondale Wheelmen's club house, those present pledging to do all in their power among the wheelmen in their respective localities towards getting out a big attendance from all the towns along the proposed route.

Many communications were read from prominent wheelmen throughout the county, pledging their support. A permanent organization will be formed at the next meeting and a line of work mapped out.

It was specially shown during the meeting that if there is a general sentiment along the proposed route in favor of the scheme the cinder path would be readily overgrown. This will permit of the reception of six or seven new female patients. It was also decided to convert the old dissecting room into a new ward.

This was the last meeting of the board as at present constituted the annual election being scheduled for the next meeting, which occurs on Monday, May 4. The terms of J. F. Snyder, E. L. Fuller and J. G. Eisele expire on that day. The election of their successors will be held on the same date.

The elections are participated in by the contributors to the hospital. A person or corporation is entitled to one vote for each $50 contributed, provided however that no contribution shall be more than fifty votes. Doctors attached to the hospital are entitled to one vote for every two months served, but cannot cast more than five votes.

A corporation that contributes $1,000 outright has the privilege of naming a director. Nine members constitute the board.
