A young man joins the temperance ranks through moral suasion, he said; the glided whiskey palace throws snares in his path and he fails; moral suasion brings him back again to the temper-ance society, and just as sure as fate the whiskey palace tempts him to fall again, until at last he falls never to rise again and goes down into a drunk-ard's grave. And that we earnestly urge the discussion of questions relating to our movement in the local society meeting and other popular topics in regulation debate We believe the educational effort to be a good one and urge that it be so concentrated as to afford the young men and women of our societies an opportunity to more fully equip themselves for the active affairs of life.

Resolved, Further, That we feel gratified at the interest taken by total abstainers in the cher Catholic societies of this section and fully appreciate the harmony that now exists between these societies. We urge those interested to continue in the efforts which tend to elevate the members and maintain a high standard of citizenship.

Resolved, Further, That we tender our hearty congratulations to our Right Reverend and Venerable Bishop O'Hara on the vigorous manner in which a performed the extraordinary fulles of tiphop of this diocese, for so many years, We extend the kindilest feelings of this district to Right Reverend Bishop Hoban on his being made coadjutor and that we herevith offer to him our hearty co-operation. commented upon in most praiseworthy terms. The twelfth convention will be held the second Sunday of July at a place to be designated by the board of directors of the district.

The doors were thrown open at 8 o'clock to the public and a musical entertainment was given, the feature of which was an address by Rev. N. J. McManus, paster of Holy Rosary church. The reverend speaker's period on the platform was brief, but he treat-ed his hearers to a magnificent expression of the temperance question. The breastplate of those engaged in the cause of temperance is faith and charity. Where to draw the dividing line between temperance and intemperance, sobriety and drunkenness, is the question. How to be charitable to one and save the other is the line. The tem-perance question is the cause of one of the first heresies that sprung up in the church. The Mohammedans, the Islamites the world over, believed that wine sprung from the earth and the devil. St. John Chrysostom says that wine, being the creature of God, is good; but drunkenness, the creature of the devil, is evil. Wine is used that we may be delighted, not to be dismay be laughed at; but he who would use it ill is a reproach.

It is hard to draw the line. Accord-When Chairman McCoy called the convention to order he introduced in turn President J. J. O'Hara and Vice-President Peter McCoy, of the Diocesan union, and C. F. First, there is the loss of the mind, the essential quality of man. Second, there is the loss of grace in his soul; this is the stage that is called an animated death. The third death is the one where the temperance cause alone remains to save him from by assisting him and lifting him up.
