OLD FOLKS' CONCERT.

Given at Y. M. C. A. Hall for the Benefit of the Blues.

"Ye Old Folks' Concerte" was repeated at the Young Men's Christian association hall last night for the benefit of "The Blues." Features that made the concert specially notable were the appearance for the last time at a con-cert of John T. Watkins prior to his departure for Europe one week from tomorrow, and the singing of an original song by Captain Dolph B. Ather-ton, of "The Blues."

In the opening number all of the sing-In the opening number all of the sing-ers were heard and this was followed by a duett by Mrs. Heckel and Miss Pichel. An Easter Anthem was sung in concert and Mr. Wooler was then heard in one of his own compositions. "Sweet Little Mary," which the audi-ence received with every evidence of favor. Miss Julia C. Allen's perform-ance on the violin was one of the treats ance on the violin was one of the treats of the concert. She was compelled to respond to several encores.

A broad smile stole over everybody's when Captain Atherton attired as Rube Hayseed appeared upon the stage. The smile expanded into a laugh when in a peculiar nasal tone of voice he began to sing to the tune of "Yankee Doodle" about the glories of "The Blues." The audience was so pleased with the captain's impersonation and ng that it continued to encore until all of the singer's stock of verse was xhausted. He then had to crave the indulgence of his audience and permission to retire. Cousin Jedediah" was sung by Mr. Whittemore, the other singers joining in the chorus. Mr. Wooler and the chorus sang "Old Folks at Home," and Llewelyn Jones was heard to good advantage in "Out of the Deep." "The Gypsies" was the title of the song in which John T. Watkins was heard. It was peculiarly suited to his sweet voice and aroused great enthusiasm in the

Controller Welsh Insisted Upon Having It Read.

REASON FOR HIS REQUEST

Was Explained by President Mitchel But the Explanation Did Not Meet with Mr. Welsh's Approval. Business of the Meeting.

There was but little business trans-acted at last night's meeting of the board of control although it was one of board of control although it was one of the longest-winded sessions that has been held in some time, 9.35 o'clock be-ing the hour of adjournment.

A whole lot of discussion was caused by the introduction of the Herman Notz matter. Mr. Notz had for some time been employed by Superintendent of Repairs Harvey doing odd jobs about the schools. After re-organization Mr. Welsh, who did not secure Mr. Notz's support, sought an opinion from Solic-itor Knapp to show that a controller could not receive remuneration for any work which he might do for the school could not receive remuneration for any work which he might do for the school district. The solicitor rendered such an opinion and although the Notz bill was not before the house. Mr. Welsh insisted on having the opinion read.

Mr. Notz offered no objection but Mr. Gibbons did, alleging that inasmuch as the board had not asked for the opinion it was not the property of the house and belonged solely to the individual who sought it. Mr. Mitchell ruled that the opinion should be heard in the form of a communication from the district's solicitor and it was accordingly read. It is as follows: cordingly read. It is as follows:

cordingly read. It is as follows:

E. D. Fellows, esq., Secretary.

Dear Sir:—There has recently been some question raised as to the right of the school board to employ a school controller in any capacity in which compensation is attached, and I found such employment was forbidden by the act of 1889, but as I know that the board had not adopted the act of 1889, I advised the controller that there was nothing in the law to prevent such employment so far as our district was concerned. I find, however, from further examination, that it is expressly provided by the general act of June II, 1885 (P. L. 168), that no school controller can be employed, and making it a misdemeanor for any officer to draw any warrant for compensation for such services. Under this general act it seems clear that you would not be authorized to draw any warrant and we have so advised Mr. Welsh and Mr. Notz.

Yours truly,

H. A. Knapp.

SOME FINE SARCASM.

When the secretary had finished rading, President Mitchell remarked that he had permitted the reading of the opinions out of consideration of Mr. Welsh. That gentleman, he went on to say, was chairman of the building committee which employed Mr. Notz and having discovered that it had made a mistake had taken this means to confess its error and warn the board against future mistakes of this kind.

Mr. Welsh did not nod approval to this interpretation of his motives. Instead, he made the contention that under the former opinion of the solicitor his committee had rightfully and legally employed Mr. Notz, and, to show how honest he was in this conviction, he moved that Mr. Notz be paid for his work up to the time of the rendering of this later opinion. Several members, including the president and Mr. Notz himself, argued against this on the grounds of illegality, and the motion grounds of illegality, and the motion was not put to the house.

Another long-winded tilt took place between Mr. Jennings and Mr. Wormser. The former wanted to have a resolution adopted instructing the different committees to have their estimates in by Monday, April 20, so that the finance committee could frame its report of appropriations and fix the tay levy by Monday. April 27: then the tax levy by Monday, April 27; then the report could be laid over for a meeting and yet be passed within the appointed time, the month of May. Mr. Wormser approved of the first part of the resolution, but he and ten other mem-bers did not take kindly to the pro-posed innovation of having the report laid over for a meeting and it was con-sequently killed, the vote standing as

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

Margaret Mather appears at the Academy of Music this evening as Juliet in Shakespeare's masterpiece, "Romeo and Juliet." This role forms a conspicous part of Margaret Mather's present season's bill; and well it may, for in all of our literature there is no play so crowded with all the elements of popularity, not even for-getting the undoubted attraction of songs and dances, by no means a mod-ern dance for we find then introduced into nearly all of Shakespeare's light-er plays and even some of his tragedies. Miss Mather's handsome face and per-fect form, make her an ideal Juliet This, as well as the other plays of Miss Mather's repertoire, are present-ed with great care as to details of ed with great care as to details of costuming and scenery, and amongst her able support may be mentioned, Frederick Pauling, W. S. Hart, H. W. Weaver, William Davidge, Edwin Brewster, Mr. Hoyt, Mr. Turner and Miss Feely, Miss Harold, Miss Marcelle, Miss Seigh and others. Miss Seigh, and others.

Saument's splendid tragedy is a favorte with those familiar with the tragedian's ability and is pronounced the best of Dr. Downing's entire repertoire to bring out the strongest qualities of his dramatic instincts, his magnificent his dramatic instincts, his magnificent physique and his exquisite command of human emotions. The ten years that have elapsed since he first attempted "The Gladiator" have not reduced the fire and vigor of his interpretation of the heroic role, though some changes have been made in the presentation of the piece in the decade. The alterahe piece in the decade. The alterations, however, have contributed to the excellence of the piece.

"Not in the beaten track," is evidently the motto of the Hanlon brothers, who will present to the patrons of the Academy of Music on Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday matinee their well known but favorite pro-duction of "Fantasma." That this is their motto is to be believed from the fact that they are leaders in their line and that all their ideas are of an original nature. The success of "Fantasma" is due, however, not alone to this fact but also that the Hanlons are careful out also that the Hanlons are careful in the selection of the people who are to portray the various roles entrusted to them. Among the members of this year's company may be mentioned George H. Adams.

The success of the "Prisoner of Zenda" has shown plainly that the theater-going public have tired of the problem plays of Pinero Jones and Grundy, and have turned with evident relief to the romantic school of D'Ennery and Dumas. In view of this change of taste William Morris deserves the gratitude of all theater-goers who love a play pure in tone and ennobling in sentiment for such is the character of Adolph D'Ennery and Jules Verne's great drama, "Michael Jules Verne's great drama, "Michael Strogoff." The scenery and costumes will be magnificent and the services of 100 people will be required in the production.
