Examples of Bad Housing in Christendom's Chief City. From Gunton's Magazine.

For London this must be said, that it has led the way in the effort to provide comfortable and wholesome homes for the poor. Bad housing is now confessedly seen to be a terribly expensive thing to any community, and in this sphere of philanthropic and civic action the laissez faire doctrine has yielded most slowly. Mr. Booth has afforded great help to the London council, and we can commend this volume to the careful study of those who are inter-ested in the matter of providing model tenements. As this is a subject which every populous center, our concerns author's investigations and the views of his contributing monographists will make this volume of world-wide interest and value.

It is, however, absolutely startling, when running over some of Mr. Booth's unromantic but appailing figures, to find that in the lower classes there is an aggregate of 2,259,000 who cook, eat, sleep, wash, etc., in a single room; that ther are 1,000 persons living with more than eight in a room; that 6,000 dwell with seven in a room, and 5,700 with five in a room. These data carry their own lesson; they set every friend of humanity reflecting on such a social state in the chief city of Christendom; and they already have awakened renewed interest in the subject of this volume and will make imperative on moral and sanitary grounds the breaking up of this sort of promiscuous herding.

ed to move an endorsement of Senator Quay for president, but the senator would not have it at that time. He adjourned the committee while Abrams was trying to be heard, until 1 o'clock this afternoon. The committee re-convened at 2 o'clock and heard the report of the committee on the contest from Alle-nheny county. The report favored seat-ing the contestants. Senator Flynn presented a minority report and made a vigorous speech in defense of his po-sition. He said the committee would establish a dangerous precendent if it unseated the men who held credentials from the regular election officers. But the majority report prevailed, yeas 57, nays 22. A delegate from the Fourth district of Luzerne county said the district had elected two delegates, but Chairman Quay ruled that the district was entitled to but one, and each dele-gate was accorded haif a vote by the committee.
