That spirit of brotherly love seemed to dominate in every individual. No unpleasant personal feelings were engendered by the selieves to be right, for when Elder Intendent. "No, I think not," answered the mayor after a few moments of deliberation.

The indications are that the aspirants are doomed to another week on the Mayor Bailey absolutely refuses to commit himself for publication with regard to the appointments he contemplates making. Within the last few days a slate has several times appeared in print, which, it is said, he has de-cided upon. It gives Captain Robling the position of chief of police, promotes Patrolman John Moir to the office of captain, and puts Common Councilman P. J. Hickey in charge of the fire de-partment. These men may be appointpartment. These men may be appointed; and, in fact, it is the general impression now among the leading Democrats of the city that Robling is sure of the police department berth, but at the same time they are not betting any large amount of their coin on the entire slate mentioned above. If the mayor has decided upon his appointments, as many believe, it is only reasonable to suppose that he would call a meeting of the select council Thursday night and present his men for the consideration of the selectmen. That would end the agony he has been enduring since election. No appoint-ments will be made Thursday night, says the mayor, and from this the conclusion is drawn that he is not yet ready to speak his mind in the matter. In the meantime the persistent sportsmen are getting more and more hungry with each succeeding day, but many men who used to spend hours each day in their back yards learning how to swing a policeman's club with ease and grace, have become disgusted and are returning to the ordinary vocations of life, where the lime light of publicity does not so eagerly search a man out
