One of the Most Pamous Welsh Preachers of His Time.

DIES IN HIS NINETIETH YEAR

Extraordinary Rage for Amusements Which line Broken Out in Several Large Towns in Wales.

All the North Wales papers contain opious notices of the death of the Rev. Robert Jones, Baptist minister, of Lianllyfni, Carnarvonshire, at the old age of 90. "Jones, Lianllyfni," was familiarly called, belonged to the old race of preachers who made their mark in the early part of the century. He was an original and eccentric character—rough-hewn, but true and honest. He was a strong man physically and intellectually, and called spade a spade. Although he had no educational advantages, he was a dili-gent reader of the Puritan divines. It is said that he sold a cow in order to buy Dr. Owen's works. His fondness for reading when a boy led his mother to remark: "All the children are liketo remark: "All the children are likely to get on, but Robert, I fear, will end his days in the poorhouse!" He spent from twelve to fifteen hours a day in his library, which grew into large proportions. He was also the author of several works, chiefly of a theological character. Many anecdotes are told of him which strongly illustrate his character. He was traveling one Saturday. acter. He was traveling one Saturday hight by what is known at Carnarvon as the "drunken train." He was so shocked with the noise and foul lan-guage of the quarrymen that he rose, and, with stretched arms, said, "I thank my God that He has prepared a hell for such as you," which had a magical effect upon them. He hated Tories and episcopalian clergymen, and prayed thus at a great meeting at Portmadoc when Lord Beaconsfield was premier of England: "O Lord! Kill that great and wicked Jew in London. Thou canst kill him without danger. If we killed him, we would be hanged for it, but they cannot hang Thee." He was invited by the vicar of the parish one day to see the church. He admired the building, and offered to exchange pulpits with the parson. The vicar. e when Lord Beaconsfield pulpits with the parson. The vicar said he was afraid the bishop would not allow it, but he entered the pulpit, opened the Bible, and said: "I am not going to preach, but will only read the text; then, "This day is salvation come to this house."

AMUSEMENTS AT CARNARVON. AMUSEMENTS AT CARNARVON.

The extraordinary rage for amusement which has broken out at Carnarvon during the last three months is a femarkable proof of the loss of the hold of the rising generation by the Nonconformists. Such a demonstration has not happened in Wales since the rise of Puritan Nonconformity. The leaders of the different sects have complained for some years of the neglect of the rising generation of the services of the chapels, but they do not appear of the chapels, but they do not appear hitherto to have realized the serious-ness of affairs. They have abandoned moral means to influence the people, and have resorted to physical force to obtain their ends. It appears that six thousand pounds was spent at the pa-vilion in three months, and the min-isters and deacons have formed a pristers and deacons have formed a private committee for the purpose of checking the spread of amusements. The newspapers devote considerable space to the discussion of the subject. The Banner publishes two columns of the official report of the private meeting, but makes no editorial comment. The Genedi states that "the aristocracy and a large number of the clergy behave that amusements are the panages. The social ills of society. Instead of the color of the clergy behave that amusements are the panages.

Some attention is now being paid to Weish literature by Roman Catholics, especially by the Society of St. Tello, whose headquarters appear to be located in Cardiff. Up to recently no great efforts have been made to convert the Cymry. It is true that two of our earliest printed Weish works were written by Roman Catholics. These were "Yr Athrawiaeth Gristionogawi" and "Allwedd Paradwys." A cony of the latter is in the cathedral copy of the latter is in the cathedral

In the beautiful vale of Clwyd two Jesuit priests have been engaged in delivering a series of early church history lectures, and churchmen and Nonconformists attended in heaven numbers.

No one can read the dully papers without being seriously impressed with the fact that a large number of people in the present age have within their system the evidence of apopiexy. This is seen and felt often in a trembling and uncertainty of the limbs, and frequently in an unpleasant dizziness and lightness of the head. Dr. Liewelyn Bevan, of Melhourne, Austrella, and formerly of the Brick church, New York city, who acted as one of the first vice presidents of the first International Congregational council, in America. Dr. Bevan is one of the most genial and brotherly of men, and he is certain to receive an enthusiastic welcome, and will be one of the attractions of the May meeting season. Two of his sons are to enter Cambridge university this year.

We know of no remedy that has been so remarkably successful in this particu-lar as Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart. Primarily it is a Heart Cure, but it is equally effective in what is to some extent a parallel disease, apoplectic symptoms.
