On Elk mountain, near Herrick, there s said to be an extraordinary lot of wild honey. The hive is located in a ift, which panetrates the rock probably to a depth of 160 feet. The orifice is thirty feet long and seventeen feet wide. The rift was discovered to be the abid-ing place of a huge swarm of bees, which flies in a close column, one foot n diameter. Many persons have tried to get to the honey stored by the bees, but were invariably driven back. One but were invariably driven back. One han, three years ago, nearly lost his life in the attempt. Others have built a scaffold 125 feet high in the hope of reaching a place where they vainly tried to run a tube into the hoard of sweets and extract a little. Within four years the bees have added probably not less than fifteen feet of honey to their treasuries. It is thought that there are several tons of honey in the rock. A man named Duncan, who lives in a cabin, not far from the spot, each summer ob-tains from the rock, by the sun's heat, more than enough for his family. All through that region, the second highest point in Pennsylvania, wild honey is found in the cracks of the rocks.

* In Diphtheria

is Bovinine, as has been attested by thousands of physicians. One of the many testimonials we have received is one from Dr. Arthur P. Ginn of Omaha, which reads, "I used Bovinine in several cases of diphtheria, and was successful with the cases. This to me is sufficient evidence of its value, no other food being used during treatment, except the milk used as vehicle for its administration."

Bovinine

being a food product, made by a special cold process from lean beef, is easy to take, quickly assimilated, speedy in its lifepromoting properties, is invaluable as a life-giver when it is necessary to maintain strength to carry a patient over the crisis of a disease. In diphtheria and other throat troubles where it has become impossible to take nourishment by the mouth, Bovinine has sustained life for weeks, administered as an injection.
