ROBBED OF TWENTY DOLLARS

John Ennis, while in a State of Exhilaration, Loses Cash. The other day John E. Ennis, of South Scranton, had occasion to visit this place. After indulging freely in something stronger than ice water, he went to bed, or to be more accurate was put to bed in a room at Hotel Antracite. On awakening in the morning he found his pocket book was missing. He at once went to an alderman where he had warrants for the arrest of Frederick Lorig and Frank McDonald sworn out. He suspected these men of having something to do with his cash. Lorig had left the town however, and as no evidence was brought against McDonald he was discharged. Thomas Walsh and Patrick Healey, two witnesses said that Lorig had tried to get Ennis drunk. Walsh said that Ennis then took eleven dollars out of which he paid for a drink. Ennis, however, claims it was $20. After Ennis was too drunk to walk he was taken by the arm by McDonald and Hotel Antracite. Thomas Martin an attaché of the hotel says Ennis was placed in the card room some time before he was arrested. McDonald addressed him, and then gave the key of the door to the clerk. McDonald will be a witness for the commonwealth in case of Lorig's arrest.

THE WATER CUT OFF.

The Hospital Obligated to Use Fall Brook Water. There is much dissatisfaction among the members of the staff of physicians at Emergency hospital since the institution has been in operation. It has been receiving water from the Crystal Lake company, but they have now been cut off from this supply and put in the Fallbrook mains.

The water from this source is not so pure or free from impurities as that from the Crystal Lake company's mains. The water has to be filtered before using and an operation could not be attempted with this water to use the water from Fallbrook is always black after a rain. The directors will probably take some action in regard to the matter.

JERMYN.

Word has been received from our townsmen, who left for Alaska's gold fields some time ago. They report having had a very stormy voyage but all arrived sound and safely at their destination. The party were eye witnesses to several papers reported as the one on which they had taken passage. Other reports will soon be received when these men are wishing to go will know whether it is for the best or not.

Thomas Solomon and Doctor S. E. Moyer rode their wheels to Scranton on Thursday and where they saw the Scranton-Providence clubs play.

A full house greeted the Brownson Dramatic club in Enterprise hall last evening when they gave the three-act drama entitled "Nevada or the Lost Mine." This is their first attempt in this direction and the result was highly gratifying to all. Tonight the club will give the people of Jermyn and vicinity another chance to hear the play.

Kennedy, M. W. Bliss, J. P. Sherman. They organized by electing A. B. Cowles president; S. S. Kennedy, secretary, and J. A. Case, treasurer.

First-class work at Martin Bold's barbershop.

Rev. S. S. Kennedy, of Waverly, Pa., is descended from a Scotch-Irish Protestant family who settled in the Wyoming valley in 1775 and were driven away by Indians at the time of the cruel massacre in 1778. His grandparents were John and Elizabeth Kennedy, near Wiley. They located in Menallen township, Adams county, and left a numerous posterity. S. S. Kennedy was born in Cumberland county, Pennsylvania, six miles south of Carlisle, Nov. 20, 1825, and is now in his seventy-third year. His parents were Moses and Louisa Kennedy, who had five sons and five daughters. Samuel was the sixth child. He was educated at the Dickinson Grammar school, Carlisle, and at the Wyoming seminary, Kingstons. In 1852 he united with the Wyoming conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, and was appointed assistant pastor at Scranton. The next year he was elected the Northumberland preacher, and the year following he was made pastor in Kingston. Here he suffered an attack of clergyman's sore throat, from which he never entirely recovered. In 1856 he became a distributing agent of the Pennsylvania Bible society, at which employment he has worked steadily during forty years.

In October, 1857, he was married to Miss Caroline Miller, daughter of Rev. Benjamin Miller, of Waverly, and purchased a house in the village, from which he has never removed. He is industrious, frugal and prosperous, and has identified himself with every interest connected with the religious and educational prosperity of the community, in which he gladly and contentedly resides.

Betts, social committee; E. F. Callahan, Will Callahan, A. W. Thompson, trustees; E. E. Betts, color bearer. The board of managers consists of president, vice president, secretary, treasurer and three times.

MONTROSE.

Many exceedingly complimentary remarks were heard here on the "Our Woman's Fanner." The able and careful treatment of the different well chosen subjects certainly called for merited laudation.

Yesterday I asked Miller S. Allen if the Democrats of this county would hold a convention this year. "Certainly, in August," said that shrewd leader of the Democratic minority. "Yes, and let me add," said he in a manner showing he meant it for the press, "that it will be harmonious and regular and no back-biting snap mid-winter affair and we hold it more to satisfy some Republicans than anything else." He told the latter part of the joke to Editor Crusier, who will undoubtedly use it one of these hot days.

Edward Frink is a farmer living about one mile from Montrose, near Jones lake, and the Lackawanna and Montrose railroad runs through his land. Of late Mr. Frink's collie dog has been missing for hours every day and Mr. Frink's son followed him on Thursday and found the dog through his land. The dog was found in a game of hide and seek or follow the leader, with "Tigs" as a third member of the happy party. Repeated calling had no effect, and finally the reptiles were killed. The dog evidenced every sign of grief, howled and bayed and refused to be comforted. Mr. Frink's son left the spot, but "Tigs" refused to go and when the hour for the dog to go for the cows he was absent. This time both Mr. Frink and his son went to the bushes where the snakes had been. Mr. Frink said that he is in some way attempted to do something with the snakes and that enough life had been taken from the snakes and he had inserted the poisoned fang, for the body was badly bloated.

Attorney G. Smith Kinser has opened a law office in Tunkhannock. Board of John S. Niver returned to his home today after spending a few days with friends.

Great disappointment prevails with our baseball team. They would like to play a game so much. For two or three days they were laboring with the Young Men's Christian association team of Scranton, trying to persuade them to meet them on our home grounds Thursday. Failing in this they tried to find another kind of team that would play them at no purpose. It was too bad, as it had been publicly announced that there would be a game Thursday afternoon.

When you think of the Nickel Plate Road it brings to mind that delicious meal you had in the Dining Car, and the fine service and Low Rates, and you can't help but people will travel by any other line.

TRUE SOLDIER OF FORTUNE. Enrique Morgan Traveled Far and Died a Major General.

In Girardot, a little village on the eastern bank of the Magdalena river, in Colombia, South America, there died on December 3 last a true soldier of fortune, Enrique Morgan, a major general in the Colombian army, but a native of West Virginia.

During the war of secession in the United States he had been a favorite "orderly" with the Confederate general, Loring—one-armed Loring, as he was called—when the latter subsequently went to Egypt. Morgan followed him there, and became a captain in the Khedive's army. Tring of military instruction, he joined the army of Greek survivors in the Sudan, with whom he learned something of practical engineering, but, contracting smallpox and supposed to be the cause of his being abandoned by his companions.

Upon his recovery he found that the natives had robbed him of everything, and he became a "tramp" in Northern Africa and Southern Europe. Too proud to apply to diplomatic or consular officials for assistance, he walked to the coast, worked his way across the Mediterranean sea and thence through Italy and France to the port of St. Nazaire.

Seeing a ship advertised to sail for America, he offered to work his passage across the Atlantic, which offer was accepted. The vessel landed him penniless in Barranquilla, Colombia, where he enlisted as a soldier. By dint of hard work and close attention to his duties, he was successively promoted through all the grade of corporal, sergeant, lieutenant, captain, major and colonel, and finally was appointed brigadier general and chief of engineers. In this capacity he constructed, with the labor of troops, the greater part of the railway between Girardot and Juntas de Anulo, as well as the difficult cart road through the cordillera of quindio.

During the revolution of 1858 he captured the important place of Tunja, with its extensive armory, for which service he was made a major general. To every grade he possessed the confidence of the government. He took no part in its political affairs, and this lack of party affiliation, his unswerving loyalty and his well known disposition to obey all orders were qualities which endeared him to his superiors.
