Griff. R. Roberts, general superintendent for the Lehigh and Wilkes-Barre Coal company, in the Hazleton region, was found along the railroad near the Lehigh Valley shops at Hazleton, about 10.30 Thursday evening, with his skull crushed and in an unconscious condition. He was removed to the Hazleton hospital where he died at 10 o'clock yesterday morning.

Hazleton hospital where he died at 10 o'clock yesterday morning.

The man was discovered by the engineer of a passenger train running into Hazleton at the time mentioned. He lay along the outside of the track, and the train was topped when within a few feet of his body. It was first thought that the man had been struck by a prayious train, but later investiby a previous train, but later investi-gation leads to the belief that he wa foully dealt with. ### FIGHT DECLARED OFF.

Judge Scems Afraid to Meet Hayden in the Ring.

Sporting men are disappointed be-cause of the fact that the great fight announced to take place between Hayden, of this city, and Judge, of New York, has been declared off. Judge has been in training at Scranton and Hay-den at the Luzerne house, Pittston. Judge sent word to Hayden that he had Judge sent word to Hayden that he had been injured by Verner, his trainer, and that he would be unable to fight at the proper time. Hayden's backers were suspicious and called upon Judge, whom they found with his leg done up in a plaster cast. Judge said he had been struck by Verner and felled against a piece of furniture. Hayden's backers do not believe the story, but backers do not believe the story, but assert that it is only a ruse to avert fighting. They are trying to arrange a fight with Vernon, whom Hayden seems anxious to meet,

LAWRENCEVILLE.

The extraordinary rapidity with which this picturesque place has increased and developed during the past few years, together with its rich and opulent resources, has made it known, and that evidently as one of the prettiest environments of Scranton. A few years back there was seen but one shaft in the direct vicinity, which is now under the control of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western. But today there are five large and productive mines, are five large and productive mines, the breakers of which are towering their lofty peaks towards the blue concave of heaven and evincing the subterranean wealth which underlays them in con-nection with which thousands derive the means of livelihood.

This encouraging increase has added greatly to the serious responsibility of the Christian church as an institution that claims a superhuman affinity by which the incorporeal needs of man can be amply supplied. And by the present order of things we see that the church has responded most praise-worthily to the religious necessities of the neighborhood, for there are five strong religious communities represent-ed at the present day. According to the current report the number will perceptibly increase for the handsome basement which W. Boun is erecting is the foundation of the Congregational edifice. This branche has been since its organization, which was solemnized a little over tweive months ago, holding divine service at school house No. 1 and as the fine eternalities are so evidently powerful in their attractions upon the superficial mind, little, very little, would we expect the development of this young plant to be.

But it seems this old school house, rough as it truly is, nas been a place of comfort, blessing and success to the young Congregational church. The site which they have chosen, or rather which was generously and uncondi-tionally donated to the church by our admirable fellow-citizen, William Con-nell, of Scranton, is one of attraction and conveniece, and as such it is hoped the new edifice will facilitate and pre-cipitate the realization of the desired end to crown the indefatigable effort of the good and earnest people who com-pose it with strength and influence. The masonry work, which is now an The masonry work, which is now an object of observation to the passers by, beautifully and substantially done, and that with a very precious green stone, which, I am told, was quarried in this valley, and those who are better posted than the writer in geology, speak laudibly of its superior qualities.

Next Monday, May 25, will be a memorable day in the history of this church, for then this fine foundation will be pronounced ready to receive upon it the ecclesiastical structure. which will, when completed, be an exquisitely fine edifice. THE WRONG BOTTLE. And the Giddy Young Man Wished He Had Not Been Quite So Smart.

From Pearson's Weekly. In a Pullman car on the Manchester Sheffield and Lincoinshire Railway the other week a young traveler noticed an old, white-bearded gentleman trying an old, white-bearded gentleman rying to get into a light dust coat. The young man rushed to his assistance, and in helping him with the garment noticed a good-sized whiskey flask protruding from one of his pockets. Being of a waggish nature he appropriated the bottle, helped the stranger on with his coat, and then pulling out the flask said: "Will you take a dink?" aid: "Will you take a drink?"
The old man did not recognize the bottle, and drawing himself up remarked severely:

"No, sir; I never drink."
"It won't hurt you," insisted the wag; "it's the best."
"Young man," said the old gentle-nan, speaking loud enough for all in the carriage to hear, "if you persist in drinking whisky you will be a ruined man at 40. It is the curse of the land. When I was a boy my mother died, and the last thing she did was to call match the best leading and any." To he promise the recommendation of the last thing she did was to call match the best leading and say. "To he promise the production of the last thing she did was to call match the best leading and say." To he promise the last thing she did was to call match the last thing she did was to call match the last thing she was the last thing she did was to call match the last thing she did was to call match the last thing she was the last thing she did was to call the last thing she was the last thi and the last thing she did was to call me to her bedside and say: "John, promise me that you will never touch a drop of liquor."

"Oh, well, in that case," said the joker, "I must drink it myself," whereupon, suiting the action to the words, he pulled the cork out and took a good drink.

A moment later he dropped the bottle good drink.

A moment later he dropped the bottle with an exclamation which certainly didn't saund like a blessing and yelled out: "Ught ugh! my mouth's all raw!"

Then it was the old gentleman discovered his loss, and to the smaller ment of the other passengers, said: "Ah, young man, you will be careful in the future before you take other people's property. I am Dr. — and that bittle contained some quinine and iron for one of my patients."

The young man got out at the next station.

Her Sympathetic Heart.

It was the woman who will stop a horse car twice inside of twenty feet to keep from walking the small extra distance and who will let a man with both arms full of bundles stand up rather than move over half afoot to let him sit down.

"The doctor says that we must boil our water," she said to a friend.
"Yes," was the reply. "It isn't much trouble."
"No. But I hate to do it. It does seem such a horrible death for those poor little microbes and things!"—Washington Star.
