After revolving the facis in the case in his mind for two days the solemn funny man of the Republican grew positively hibrious Saturday over the fact that a slip of the pen or of the linotype man's hand caused what a captious critic might construe into a trifling error to creep into the columns of The Tribune Thursday. The genius whose burst of humor on Saturday made luminous the ponderous editorial page of the Republican is no doubt the same aspirant for the laurel wreath of fame who would "inaugurate" bock beer and who is wont to use such choice expressions as "the well-known stranger," "the near distance," "some party who wanted a bicycle," a "fine point of law" and "considerable excitement." With the ear marks of such learning and culture evident it is probably only just to also give him credit for the effort to heap new honors on Shakespeare by dazing the public with the information that the immortal William wrote "Richelieu." His pursuers were told to go their way and he was directed to make no more arrests unless he had a war-

One of the prisoners stated that Yerg-man accused them of stealing $150 from the trunk of John Grishka who is in the county jail awaiting trial for the mur-der of John Mickus.
