MANY NOTED MEN WILL ATTEND

An Elaborate Banquet and Possibly a Two-Day Programme -- Advocated by the Board's Most Prominent Members -- Arrangements Soon to Be Started.

No new building in this section of the state was given the elaborate "open-ing" that will attend the christening Made Against Dr. E. J. Among the leading spirits on the board and among its most substantial members the proposed opening has been considered for some On the oath of Nora McGlynn, a 19-year-old Avoca girl, District Attorney John R. It is not the intention to throw open the doors, decorate the structure, listen to a speaker and let all that be the chening. Something on a much more elaborate scale is contemplated. The plan is to make the event last one whole day and possibly two and to include in the programme a banquet, the magnificence and completeness of which was never before given in Scranton and to have here as guests some of the best known men in the country.

At last week's session of the grand jury a true bill was returned against Samuel Mahady, of Minooka, the girl's betrayer, and the one who induced her to undergo the operation. It was the intention of the district attorney to have Dr. Longshore's case before the grand bury Monday morning, but the Such a big project could not be car-ried out without the weighty support of the city's most prominent and in-fluential business and financial ele-ment, nor could it be done on behalf of a commonplace object. AWFUL PLUNGE OF A SOUTH SIDE MAN

George Fuchs, of Cedar Avenue, Fell

DISTANCE HE WENT WAS SIXTY FEET

He Had a Brood of Chickens in a Building Erected Over the Entrance to the Vault and Was Feeding Them When the Floor Gave Way-Several Feet of Slimy Water Saved His Life.

George Fuchs, of 412 Cedar avenue, evidently was not born to be drowned, nor killed by falling a great height, for in an awful experience yesterday morning death was presented to him in both of these shapes, but yet he escaped with slight bruises. He fell into an abandoned beer vault, sixty feet deen, in which there is several feet of deep, in which there is several feet of slimy water. In the rear of Mr. Fuch's saloon at the number given above, is a bowling alley, extending back almost to the bank of the Roaring Brook stream, and underneath the saloon and alley is the vault, the dimensions of which are ap-proimately 40 by 150 by 60 feet. Mrs. M. Robinson owns the property rented to Mr. Fuchs, and ten or twelve years ago this cavity was used for storing beer in vats. The vats were filled at the brewery.

two blocks away, and carted on wagons to the vault. There was an entrance on Cedar avenue, under the sidewalk. and through it the vats were let down an incline plane and kept on ice until occasion required their use.

When the vats were taken out, it was done at the other end of the vault, on the bank of the brook, where a story and a half structure was fitted up with a hoisting apparatus. The sides of the vault at this end are perpendicular and from the floor of the building to the floor below, the distance is fully sixty feet.

A RELIC OF THE PAST. With the advent of the ice machine and compressed air refrigerators, the manner of preserving beer by storing it underground on ice was done away with, and for the past decade this par-ticular vault has been a relic of the past, and has fallen into abandonment. The building was boarded up, so that there might be no danger of any per-son falling into the vault. Fuchs had a broad of chickens that he wanted to a brood of chickens that he wanted to isolate for a few weeks and he kept them in the building. He went in yes-terday morning with feed for then, and the floor gave way beneath nim. Down he went feet foremost, his wits scared out of him, and he struck on the water, going down over his head; but he rose and floundered around until he perched on some of the flooring that came tumbling down after him. This happened to him about 9 o'clock, and he spent over an hour in his watery position, shouting and screaming at top of his voice for help. CHILDREN HEAR HIM.

At last some little children heard hin and communicated the news to old Mrs Fuchs. The neighbors got around and by the aid of ropes the prisoner was rescued. His head was cut painfully by being struck with the flooring as it dropped down after him, but aside from that and the terrible nervous shock, he was all right. He took a little stimu-lants and an hour after being taken out he was able to walk about. The vauls is a sort of private sewer for the premises and there is an outlet from it to the Roaring Brock, but the water flows in faster than it flows out, and there is always between 6 and 8 feet of slimy water in it
