Wilkes-Barre at Scranton, rain.

Providence was the only club to win two Decoration Day games, and Springfield was the Gray's victim. Consequently, as Scranton won from Wilkes-Barre Saturday, McDermott's men have a chance to crawl out of last place today.

HATS OFF TO HARPER.

He Wasn't Rattled by Field Errors. Scrantons Had on Batting Cloves and Wilkes-Barre Couldn't Win.

Farmer Harper's coolness in the box under circumstances which would make most pitchers lie down in the diamond and die, and Scranton's heavy hitting won the morning Decoration Day game at Wilkes-Barre. Scranton made six clean hits and seven errors and Horn in addition misjudged two long hits and contributed what was worse than errors, while the Wilkes-Barre men made eleven hits, only nine of which ought to be recorded, and two errors. Harper did not even make one pitching error.

Maybe 200 Scranton rooters saw the game and had opportunity to make their presence felt from the beginning. Not until the last of the ninth inning did the home crowd have a chance to use its tin horns and lungs. It then yelled and blew itself into a froth which with noise and five runs in one inning, scored a single, Eagan's error and another single brought in two runs. It yelled and blew again when Latham was hit for the second time. Latham was hit for the second time when Maguire pitched high in the air for Earl's frisky liner and got to second in time to make a double play unassisted and end the game.

Three thousand spectators were present.

LATHAM'S COACHING.

Latham was for the first time seen by hundreds of eyes in this region and he proved himself to be the great attraction claimed. In throwing he is not what a third baseman ought to be but he fields fast and sure and gets and by his coaching does much toward pulling out a victory. His coaching cannot be reproduced in type. It is too casual and novel and must be seen and heard to be appreciated. The bleachers cannot suppress him; he mimics players, umpire and audience and will never let a game die by his side. His continued jabbering materially assisted Harper in two of his strike outs. Maguire easily carried off the fielding honors of the game by his fast and brilliant work, while Meany made two hard running catches one of which caused him to take a rapid second base, and Batterly caught a sure and steady game. Eagan, Ward and Hutchinson did some timely hitting.

Horn's two misjudged flies in right field and his error were responsible for three Wilkes-Barre runs.

DOUBLE LOSS OF CONFIDENCE.

His Dog a Poor Fighter and He a Worse Judge of Dogs.

From the Detroit Free Press.

One day as we lay in camp on the Republican fork of the Arkansas river one of the boys caught a big Jackrabbit in a snare and made a cage of willows to keep him for a pet. Three days later a tenderfoot came along with a hunter's outfit and accompanied by a canine which looked to be a cross between a hound and a bulldog. He said he had brought the dog the day before of a teamster, and that the animal was a match for any three mountain wolves.

"What d'ye think of him yourself?" asked the corporal.

"He looks to me like a fighter," was the reply.

"How much did you pay for him?"

"Fifteen dollars."

"I don't think he's a fighter," observed the corporal in a careless way. "He looks to me more like a runner."

"Have you anything which can run him?" asked the tenderfoot as he looked up.

"Yes, I think I have. We captured a hog the other day, and I think he can run that dog."

"Who's your hog?"

"Sort of a prairie wolf. There isn't much fight in 'em, but there's less than your canine. I'll bet $5 he runs your dog out of the country."

"If he does, I'll give you $10; should the stranger, who was nettled over the way the boys were winking and grinning."

The dog was placed out on the level beyond camp, and the corporal went after his rabbit. Before bringing him out he tied his ears over his head with a strip of handkerchief and other strips were made fast to his body. He was the oddest looking creature any one ever saw outside of a museum when the corporal's dog dashed high out in front of the dog. We were gathered in two lines, and the rabbit had to run for the dog to get clear of us. The dog was apparently ready for a row with one of his eyes shut, but when his curiosity came for him he dropped his tail and started off at full speed. The jack rabbit took him for an old pard of his, for he followed close at his heels and humped him for all he was worth. The dog made two complete circuits of the camp, yelping at every jump, and then finding the rabbit crouched at his heels, he jumped into the river and swam across and thus got away. The stranger looked on without a word, and when the fair was over he handed down a $20 bill.

"How's this?" asked the corporal.

"Why?" replied the man. "One ten is for my dog being a blamed coward and the other for me being a bluffed fool."

IT IS ALWAYS THUS.

That the Husband Should Be Ready Before His Wife Is Not to Be Wondered at.

From the Detroit Free Press.

Mr. and Mrs. Baxter were going out together the other evening, and he said as he sat with his cigar in his mouth reading the evening paper:

"Now we must be a husband and wife, I'm about ready, but will you just brush my hat a little?"

"Yes, dear—as soon as I get the baby to sleep."

"All right. And will you just sponge that spot out of my vest—something I got on it at dinner."

"Yes, after I attend the baby."

"And will you lay out a clean collar for me, and my evening necktie?"

"Yes, dear, and when she brings the collar he says:

"Just fasten it on in the back, please. I want to finish this account of that murder trial. Put on my tie for me too, won't you?"

When this is done he says: "Just put a clean handkerchief in the pocket of my coat, won't you. And, oh, I forgot, but I will get off my overcoat today. The button is in one of the pockets. Can't you see it on before?"

"It takes nearly ten minutes for her to find needle, thread, scissors and the missing button, and while she is sewing on the button he says:

"Won't you please put the sleeve-buttons in my clean cuffs?"

"I can't find but one button, Henry?"

"No, both, things are always getting lost in this house. Look around and I guess you'll find it."

She is down on her knees peering under the various articles of furniture for the button, when he says:

"Oh, here it is. I forgot and slipped it into my pocket. Now, if you'll—Great Scott! Look at that clock, Maria!"
