Prayer Services Over the Remains Mrs. Gwennie Reynolds at Her Late Home on Jackson Street.

Prayer services over the remains of the late Mrs. Gwennie Reynolds were held last evening at hr late home, 1716 Jackson street. Rev. D. P. Jones, pastor of the Tabernacle Congregational church, of which Mrs. Reynolds was a member, preached a sermon upon the Christian qualities of the deceased. Rev. T. Bell, of the Plymouth Congre-gational church, also spoke in a com-forting way to the remaining relatives. forting way to the remaining relatives. There were present many of the neighbors and other friends of the deceased. Mrs. Reynolds was born in Bryn Coch, near Neath, in South Wales, June 5, 1826. She came to America when 13 years of age and with her parents residence was taken up in Schuylkill county and afterward in Carbon county. Since then Mrs. Reynolds has lived at Clifford and on the West Side.

The remains will be taken at 8 o'clock this morning to Clifford where inter-ment will be made. Revs. Bell and Jones will officiate at the interment

ALFRED GODSHALL'S CONDITION. Though hopes of recovery are ban-ished yet the condition of Alfred God-shall remains unchanged for better or for worse. The doctors in attendance marvel at the physical strength of the unfortunate man. They say that with a less rugged constitution the dreadful stroke of paralysis would have caused sudden death. But Mr. Godshall brave-ly struggles on. As from the first he is speechless and semi-unconscious. No one but the medical men and attendants are allowed to see him.

HOSPITAL MEN MEET.

The West Side Hospital Association met last evening and talked over the site, which is yet not in sight. The di-rectors still think that the Freeman house is the best adapted for the in-stitution. Though the West Side would be undoubtedly benefited by the insti-tution yet the site objectors are more in evidence than the projectors. Last night's meeting was in the directors' room of the West Side bank. Nothing definite was reported.

discussing them was assigned, and I heartily concur in what he has said. By a line of conduct unparalleled, I am almost compelled to say, in the annals of the professions the respondent has justly landed himself beyond its pale. In the course of a simple case for damages for alleged personal injuries to his client, such as we encounter in the courts almost every day, he has managed as attorney to traduce and libel in the most outrageous fashion and libel in the most outrageous fashlon every one from high to low, having the slightest connection with it, and some who positively have had none.

ABUSE LONG PERSISTED IN. "Beginning with Mr. Amerman, the attorney of the sheriff who served and returned the original summons, he has gone on in his unarrested career of abuse until it has included not only the abuse until it has included not only the opposing counsel in the case whom he accuses of attempting to fabricate evidence, but the very judges by chance called upon to hear and dispose of it all according to his reiterated statements have been engaged in a common conspiracy to defeat and defraud his client and prevent the ends o justice. This accusation has been applied not only to Mr. Burns and Mr. Warren, counsel for the defendant company, but to Mr. and Mr. Burns and Mr. Warren, counsel for the defendant company, but to Mr. and now Judge Willard, who was merely Mr. Warren's partner, and to Mr. Pryor, the prothonotary, simply because he was the principal of Mr. Kasson, his deputy, whom the defendant charges with having packed the jury.

"Judge Connolly, who first tried the case, is charged with the same corrupt purpose because he saw fit to set aside purpose because he saw fit to set aside a verdict for the plaintiff which he re-garded as a perversion of justice and notwithstanding his death and the common respect due to this circumstance the respondent continues with malevothe respondent continues with malevo-lent persistency to asperse and blacken his memory. Last of all he has extend-ed his attack to the writer, denouncing him on the record of this and of the Supreme court and to his face in open court, as participating in and favoring the same as aforesaid. Twice has Mr. Smith been called upon to substantiate one and another of his reckless charges and each time he has utterly failed to produce even a scintilla of proof and yet he continues to scatter them broad cast as before.

"It is out of these investigations and

"Assign this to a diseased imagina-tion or an unbalanced mind as you will there is no room for either in the ranks of the profession.

"We must abide together as those we must able together as those who are pursuing a high and honorable calling or not at all, and one who so far forgets himself or is so lost to the sense of his official obligation to his brethren of the bar as well as to the judges, has not only lost his usefulness, but forfeited his official sta-tion. The law cannot be so maligned in the versons of those who represent it, and both bench and bar are en-titled to be protected against such act. There is no fidelity to client that will justify or exterminate them. Justice is not attained by such methods and we do not propose that they shall be any longer pursued in this court. They have been giready too long put up with and endured. The respondent should have been debarred three years ago, when he made his attack on Judge Connolly and the counsel in the case. The leniency then exercised towards him has been misrepresented and be-come the basis of renewed and contin-ued abuse, and it is time that it should be brought to an end.

Wall Street Review.

New York, June 1.—The stock mar-ket started off with every promise of increased activity and a higher range of prices. The bulls were greatly en-couraged by the receipt of better prices from London as well as a number of buying orders from that center. Cable advices were to the effect that the for-eigners were more disposed to take eigners were more disposed to take holders of Americans on account of the interview given by J. Pierpont Morgan in London on Friday, in which he gave assurances that whoever secured the presidential election would have to do so upon the gold standard. Our secur-ities were also benefitted, no doubt by the sharp rise in Consuls and Kaffirs, the result of President Kruger's elem-ency in the case of the South Africa prisoners. London according to competent authorities purchased fully 10,-600 shares of St. Paul, Louisville and Nashville and other stocks here today. A belief that congress will adjourn this week induced local operators to make new ventures on the bull side of the account. Another favorable factor was the small engagement of gold for shipment to Europe, only $600,000 having been ordered at the sub-treasury. The depository banks paid into the subtreasury today something like $2,000,000 on bond account. There still remains a balance of $4,500,000 with these banks. The good news led to a strong and confident opening, prices rising 42% per cent, right through the list. midday trading fell off materially and prices began to sag. In the early rise. Sugar, the Grangers, Internationals and Tennessee Coal and Iron were most prominent. In the afternoon dealings Tobacco van off about a point and the gain in the general list previously noted was partially large. The Grangers were firmer than the other railways on reports of a heavy corn movement. Sugar was not influenced by the reduction in the prices of refined of ½ cent per pound and closed firm in tone. Net changes show advances of ½ a ½ per cent. Tobacco, Manhattan, Missouri Pacific and bacco, Maninattan, Missouri Pacine and Northwest lost ¼a¾ per cent. In the inactive shares Minneapolis and St. Louis declined 2 to 17½. Total sales were 76,867 shares. Furnished by WILLIAM LINN, AL-LEN & CO., correspondents for A. P.
