CRIME AND VICE IN LONDON

Some Startling Facts Revealed in Rev. Dr. Griffin's Address.

WHAT MISSION WORK IS DOING

It is fighting criminality and viciousness in the most degraded quarters of the globe—something about the famous West and East Ends—To Conquer There is to Conquer Everywhere.

Some startling facts concerning vice, pauperism and degradation in London were revealed by Rev. Dr. Charles M. Griffin in his address on "The Forward Movement in London," Dr. Griffin on one of his visits to London made it his special purpose to study the mission work of the church and while observing it he gained information for many a lecture similar to the address delivered last night.

Americans who are more or less conversant with slum life and all its horrors in New York city, Chicago and other large American cities, do not even comprehend the wickedness and beastliness of London; they could not comprehend it without seeing it, though it were but half as bad as indicated by Dr. Griffin last night. London slum life, however, was not the real subject of the eloquent gentleman's talk, which was particularly to show the necessity of extending church or mission work rather, down to the depths where it was needed. He used the actual condition in London and the work there as a very forcible illustration and incentive. He closed and clinched his discourse by observing that the slum was the capital of the earth in all things, and surely the capital in vice, the mission work being done there will, if it conquers, prove that the whole globe can be won and carried for God.

DR. GIFFIN'S SERMON.

"Go forth," Exodus, vi, 15, was Dr. Griffin's text. One great fault of the church, he said, was its ease of entry and ease of egress. Churches were not asylums for drifting worldlings to enter and leave at will, but they should be aggressive and forward in all things, as in England, for instance, even where John Wesley was driven out of a certain church because he preached too forcibly the words of the text. But he went out and began a forward movement, the continuance of which it was the speaker's privilege to witness and a knowledge of which is especially apropos just now, a new army in America, meaning the Volunteers, has begun a similar work.

Of Westminster Abbey Dr. Griffin spoke most tenderly and with an impressive tone which spread to the auditor. He touched briefly upon the lives of the great men whose deeds and worth are recorded there and described the famous place as the "hall of death." A more appropriate place in connection with his subject was St. James hall, which he termed the "hall of the living," because there was being carried on the great work and theory of life, God's gospel. He described the method in which a large corps of missionaries labor in and about the large structure which is situated in London's West End.

NOT THE WORST END.

The West End, he said, was not the worst end of the city, but it was so vile, so low and so beastly that criminal quarters in other cities shied in comparison. It was a part of London which furnished one-third of the crime of all England. The city, as a whole, he remarked, offered the greatest field for religious effort of any city in the fully civilized universe because there abounds in addition to the ignorant evil-doer the so-called respectable sinner in tens of thousands, educated and esteemed, but infidels and unbelievers of the most hopeless type, who, with the lower element, appear in the Walters London missionary classification as follows: Political and diplomatic London, literary and artistic London, laboring London, oppressed London and criminal London.

Of New York city's vice and squalor, Dr. Griffin gave a graphic description, but remarked that London was so much worse than in the comparison the American city's pauper and viciousness would have to be multiplied and multiplied and multiplied. Still, the condition in London was the church's opportunity. The London section had 20,000 souls and but two Wesley chapels; in another section were 60,000 persons of whom but 2,000 had evangelized a church door. That was in the West End.

THE WHITECHAPEL DISTRICT.

The East End, where lies the Whitechapel district, was much worse, Dr. Griffin said. He told of "Mahogany Hall" and "Paddy's Goose," two one-time resorts of horrible iniquity, but now occupied as missions, where is preached God's word in the fumes and smoke of the memory of what were once living halls. The mission workers there were clerks, young mechanics, young men employed during the day at business vocations and who worked for God at night and had their living apartments in the district where they were respected and immune from harm by the hands of the lowest and most brutal type of criminals.

But what was Patcliffe highway, the most infamous thoroughfare on God's earth and where the lowest, vilest, most besotted and animal of miserable wretches stalked about at will where to enter a respectable person threw his life away, but where the speaker walked during the most dangerous hours of the night in safety because he was with Mr. Thompson, the head of the big mission station of that district. It was near that locality that fatigued and haggard women and mother's worked at piece-sewing for 72 cents for three days work and furnished their working material, light and fuel! The lot of a Russian peasant, he averred, was a happy one in comparison. Dr. Griffin remarked that in view of what he had disclosed none in the audience need feel urged to begin fashionable attire, but that there was need of "going forth" with the love of God in the heart. That the pauper and criminal sinner can become good Christians he had acquired positive and affirmative opinion after hearing the testimonies of many of them in the London mission meetings.

CONFIRMATION AT DUNMORE.

Sacrament Conferred on 411 Children by Rt. Rev. Bishop O'Hara.

The sacrament of confirmation was conferred by Right Reverend Bishop O'Hara on 411 children at St. Mary's church, Dunmore, yesterday afternoon. Of this number 35 were Italian children. The bishop was assisted by Rev. D. J. MacGouldrick, president of St. Thomas' college; Rev. M. B. Donlan, pastor of the church; Rev. George J. Lucan, D. D., also of St. Mary's; Rev. J. R. Feeley, of the cathedral; Rev. J. J. Dunn, of Green Ridge; Rev. John J. O'Toole, of Providence; Rev. J. J. McCabe, of Avoca; Rev. H. P. Burke, of the South Side; Rev. Domine Landro, of the cathedral.

The bishop gave instruction to the children before and after the sacrament was conferred, and each child was presented with a beautiful medal blessed by the bishop. At 10:30 a solemn mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Donlan. Dr. Lucas was deacon; Rev. Father Dunn was sub-deacon, and Rev. Father Feeley was master of ceremonies. Rev. Father MacGouldrick preached the sermon in his usual edifying and eloquent style. The text was "A certain man made a great supper and invited many." St. Luke, xiv:16. He spoke in part as follows: "We are in the season when the church commemorates the institution of our Lord of the sacrament of His precious body and blood. On the feast of Corpus Christi the portion of the gospel read at the mass was from the sixth chapter of the gospel of St. John, where our Lord shows in the simplest and most unadorned language that we should understand the sacrament of the Eucharist to be. But today the church makes use of the parable from St. Luke to remind us of the use that men have made of the treasures of the sacrament of God's love, and, if possible, by His grace, to respond with greater generosity in corresponding with God's grace, to greater ardor in returning God's love, to greater prudence and more sincerity in God's service.

"In the parable the invited guests are represented as unwilling to attend the banquet to which they were invited; one because of some need of looking after his farm; another he must needs secure himself in some business speculation in the purchase of oxen; and a third because of the absence of the banquet he made life upon which he had just entered. There is no one who will not content them for their lack of wisdom and of generosity, and of prudence, in their refusal to accept the invitation extended to them.

"The church does not ask us to attend to the merely literal sense of the parable; rather she asks us to leave the literal sense and to apply the words thereof to the condition of the Lord's institution of the divine banquet of the sacrament of the Eucharist. To His banquet is absolutely necessary means to attain to eternal happiness; and to our observance of the injunction which our Lord has placed upon us. For us today the banquet is the sacrament of the Eucharist—the body of Christ himself, and the invited guests are all those to whom He has said unless you eat the flesh of the son of man and drink his blood you shall not have life in you."

THEY IDENTIFIED THE THREE FIENDS

Scranton Tramps Complete the Chain of Evidence Against Them.

MRS. TOWNSEND THEIR VICTIM

They Entered Her Home at Conklin Center and Bound and Beat Her and Pulled Out Her Toe Nails One by One—Left Her Suffering the Most Intense Agony—Found by Neighbors.

The last link in the chain of evidence necessary to convince the Binghamton authorities that they have the perpetrators of the fiendish outrage at Conklin was supplied on Saturday by four Scranton tramps. One week ago Saturday night three tramps broke into the house of Mrs. Martha Townsend, a widow aged 67 years, who lived alone in an isolated house near Conklin Center, and in order to compel her to make known the hiding place of her supposed wealth they bound and beat her and finally pulled out her toe nails one by one. They then threw a mattress over her, pulled a cot and some chairs on top of that and left her suffering the intense agony until the next morning, when she was discovered and released by neighbors.

WERE SEEN AT CONKLIN.

Three tramps were seen about Conklin the day before and suspicion at once fell upon them. A description of them was sent to Binghamton and telegrams conveying the description were forwarded in all directions. Tramps were arrested by the wholesale during the week but it remained for the Elmira police to capture the right ones. Three pronounced specimens of the tribe answering well the description of the two wanted were sent on to Binghamton and after a week's work the detectives have wound a chain of circumstantial evidence about them that will be hard for them to unravel. They were easily traced from Binghamton to Elmira and readily identified by the several railroad men on the train which they took out of Binghamton. That they came into Binghamton on Conductor Case's train was also learned about the yards and when Conductor Case's crew next came up from Scranton, it was discovered as was conjectured that three tramps had boarded their train at Home's switch near Conklin about 10 o'clock Saturday night. It was running at the time and they sought the shelter and heat of the engine, which fact led to their complete identification.

HEARING ON SATURDAY.

Saturday morning the hearing took place. After the accused trio had been recognized by witnesses of Conklin and railroads at Binghamton and Elmira the Scranton crew were brought to the scene and at once identified them as the men who had boarded their train at Home's switch on the night of the outrage. Engineer Mike O'Donnell and brakemen Ed. Doss and Frank Smoke could only identify them as their general appearance, but Fireman Ed. Franz, with whom they were a good part of the distance, positively recognized each one of them. The evidence against them is so complete that it is expected they will make a confession.

FELL DOWN A SHAFT.

Joseph Hallinan's Terrible Death in the Manville Shaft—Lost His Balance on the Carriage.

Joseph Hallinan, of 459 Phelps street, met a terrible death Saturday afternoon at the Manville shaft by falling from the car when it was about 150 feet from the bottom. He was being shown about the mine by his two brothers and about 2 o'clock began the ascent. Being unaccustomed to the mines he became dizzy and reeling backward toppled over the edge of the platform, before either of his brothers could grab him. He plunged headlong through the darkness, striking on the right side of his face, and right shoulder, crushing in his head and breaking his right arm. His brother had the carriage lowered as quickly as possible, but the man was extinct before they could reach him. The remains were taken to Cusick's undertaking establishment and afterwards to the family home on Phelps street from where the funeral will take place Tuesday. The deceased was 18 years of age and had been in this country but two weeks.

Extensive arrangements have been made to entertain this band of gallant soldiers who have been decorated by their country with this priceless medal. On the evening of June 16 at 8 p. m. in the parlors of the American house they will be welcomed by Governor Roger Wolcott, of Massachusetts, and Mayor Josiah Quincy, of Boston. An hour later a reception will be given to Major General Nelson A. Miles, commander of the United States army, who wears one of the medals.

At 9 o'clock the next morning the convention will be held and at noon, by courtesy of Mayor Quincy, the members of the legion will be taken on an excursion down Boston harbor. 'T WAS A LIVELY AFTERNOON.

Three Italians Cause a Big Disturbance at Pine Brook.

Three Italians who reside on Larch street, a revolver, razor and knife furnished an abundance of excitement at Pine Brook yesterday afternoon. The Italians were on the way to their homes about 4:30 somewhat under the influence of liquor and at the Delaware and Hudson Phelps street crossing became involved in a quarrel with a number of young men who were standing there.

So warm became the dispute that one of the Italians pulled out a razor and made a slash at one of the young men. This was the signal for a general move on the sons of sunny Italy, who started to run, pursued by the young men, who kept the retracers on the move by means of a shower of stones of all sizes.

Near the No. 9 school building the pursued ones made a stand and the battle of words was resumed. Finally the possessor of a razor, in answer to a taunt, ran towards the crowd which was lined up a short distance away. He had the open weapon in his hand and evidently meant to do a little carving. A shower of stones repelled his advance and again himself and companions retreated at the top of their speed across the open field and onto the plane west of Johnson's lake.

Here the member of the party who carried the revolver stumbled and fell. He was more intoxicated than his two companions and before he could arise to his feet a crowd of over three hundred persons bore down upon him. He was searched and the revolver found and thereupon he became the target for kicks and blows of all kinds. Fearing that he would be killed some of the cooler heads of the party forced their way to where the prostrate Italian lay and saved him from further punishment. In the meantime his companions had made good their escape.

The head and chest of the wounded man were a mass of cuts and bruises and it will be weeks before he will be fully recovered.

HIGH SCHOOL CLASS OF '96.

All of Its Thirty Members Found Worthy of Diplomas. The commencement of the class of '96 of the Scranton High school promises to be a great success. The class consists of thirty members, all of whom have shown themselves entitled to their diplomas. Some doubt at first appeared as to the division of the honors, but all is now settled.

Harold Watrous and Arthur Phillips were candidates for second place, Watrous winning by less than one-half of one per cent. The only other positions which were in doubt were the ninth and tenth. Miss Alta Hine gained the ninth and Miss Lizzie Robinson the tenth, with Joseph A. Wagner a close eleventh. Miss Hine and Miss Robinson have both refused to take part on the programme and therefore the class elected Miss Conger to recite. Mr. Wagner was previously elected class prophet. This position is not determined by class standing, but ability alone is taken into account.
