Gold Prospector Will Sue Capitalists Who, He says, Found It.

New York, June 10 .- After 20 years spent in organizing and accompanying expeditions to the uninhabited island of Cocos, 400 miles southwest of Panama, where he believed he would find the tens of millions of treasure which the great pirate Morgan is said to have buried there, Richard W. Armstrong, of San Francisco, has now come east to sue wealthy New York and Boston men who, he says, stole his man and discovered the treasure. He brought excellent credentials.

in the forties, Armstrong says, his father met at a California mining camp an old Spanlard who was sick, poor and without friends. Armstrong's father provided for him until his death, and asa reward the old Spaniard confersed to him that he had been one of Morgan's band, told how they had buried their plunder on Cocos Island and gave Armstrong a drawing by which he said the treasure could be easily found.

Armstrong's father soon died, leaving to his son the map of Cocos Island, and instructions to seek the treasure. Two years ago he interested the New York and Boston men, whom he is now going to sue, and they backed an expedition of 12 men. Ten of the 12 died or were murdered. Armstrong and the other survivor returned.

While he was sick in San Francisco, Arinstrong says, an agent of the eastern syndicate stole from him the map which located the pirate trensure. Then the eastern men fitted out an expedition, went to Cocos and found the treasure, which was worth more than $20,-000.000.
