Widow of the Well-Known Journalist, Who Died April 10th, Wedded to Walter L. Leinau.

New York, June 14.-Mrs. Lenora. erill, the well-known newspaper man, who died in Cairo on April 19, was married on Thursday night to Walter Louis Lienau, an employe of the silk firm of The marriage took place in Hoboken, The couple drove up to police headquarters shortly before midnight Thursday night, and asked Justice of the Peace Louis R. McCullough where they could find some one to perform a marriage ceremony.

"I guess I can fill the bill," remarked McCullough, and he led the couple into his office. Everything went well until that part of the service was reached which reads:

"And do you promise to love, honor,

Mrs. Cockerill made strenuous objections to this, and the ceremony was gone over again, the objectionable word 'obey" being left out. At the conclusion of the ceremony the couple re-entered their carriage and were driven to the ferry, where they crossed to New York. Both parties gave their right names to the justice, but not until yesterday did it come out that the bride was the widow of John A. Cockerill. The bridegroom is a son of the late

Rudolph Lienau, who was for many years president of the Germania bank in Brooklyn. He is twenty-six years social circles in Brooklyn. When seen at his place of business he admitted the marriage, and said that it was the intention of his wife and himself to live in Englewood, where he recently built a house. He declined to talk of the marriage further than to say that he had known Mrs. Cockerill for a year. It is understood that Mr. Lienau met Colonel and Mrs. Cockerill in Yokohama about a year and a half ago. He was there buying goods for his firm, and became quite intimate with his present wife and her husband. Mrs. Lienau, when seen at her home, 150 West Eighty-fourth street, was more willing to talk than her husband

"I did not want the news of my marriage to come out so quickly," she said. but I suppose it might as well be known now as at any time. In truth, it was most unexpected by both Mr. Lienau and myself. I had invited a few friends to dinner on Thursday night, and I expected among my guests Captain Junst of the North German Lloyd line. He did not appear, and during the evening Mr. Lienau, who was one of my guests, drove over to Hoboken with me to see about his absence. On the way back he suggested that we get married, and I said I was willing if he could find anybody to marry us. We found Justice of the Peace McCullough at police headquarters and he married us. I had the word 'obey' stricken out at the ceremony because it is customary with Episcopalians to omit it." Mrs. Lienau further said that she supposed she would be criticised for the marriage, particularly by her husband's family, who were anxious for him to marry a Brooklyn heiress. She didn't care, however, she said, as her marriage was purely one of love, and both she and her husband were satisfied.

Verein in Moscow upon the occasion of the festivities in connection with the coronation of the czar, causing Prince Henry of Prussia, brother of the em peror, and his majesty's representative at the coronation, to leave the banquet hall, has raised a great Particularist storm throughout all the southern states of the German empire. The origin of the trouble was in the fact that at the banquet given to Prince Henry and the other visiting German princes the chairman. In teasting the guests, alluded to the minor German princes as members of Prince Henry's suite, whereupon Prince Ludwig of Bavaria arose in a rage before the chairman's speech was finished, and, pounding the table with his fist, declared: "We are not a part of Prince Henry's suite; nor are we vassals of the German empire. We are the emperor's allies; otherwise I am an independent representative of Bavaria." All southern Germany is exercised over the affair, and the Prussian newspapers are filled with articles on the subject, lamenting the indiscretion of the chairman or condemning the hasty actions of Princes Henry and Ludwig. The incident created so much public excitement that it naturally led to a demand upon the part of the kaiser that the two princes should explain the matter in detail, and this, it is understood, has been done. According to the North German Gazette, Prince Ludwig anticipated the emperor's request for an explanation, and took the initiative in a communication laying before his majesty the exact words of the president of the banquet in proposing the toast to Prince Henry. Against this Prince Ludwig protested to the kalser, explaining, as he had declared to the chairman of the banquet, that he and the other princes referred to were not vassals, but allies of the kaiser. All Germans, Prince Ludwig added, besides fulfilling their duty to the fatherland, ought not to forget the duties they owed to their own particular countries

LUDWIG'S PERSONALITY.

Prince Ludwig is 50 years of age, and apart from the fact that he is the future king of Bavaria, he is of a much weightler presence than Prince Henry. Upon the occasion of his declaration at the banquet he is said to have spoken with great impressiveness and in a manner wherein his meaning could not be misconstrued. In concluding its article upon the subject the North German Gazette curtly states that "the incident is

The speech made by Prince Alexander von Hohenlohe, son of the imperial chancellor, in the Reichstag last Monday, in which he attacked the clause of old, good looking, and is well known in the government trades bill forbidding commercial travellers to transact retail business, has found support in a remarkable address delivered by the minister of finance of the grand duchy of Baden, Dr. Bushenberger, to the Baden chamber of deputies a few days ago. The minister said in the course of his remarks: "We live politically and economically in a period of transition and we are not yet able to accomodate ourselves to the new order of things; hence so many outcries for more laws and new laws are bad and make people believe in the magical effects of legislation. ENGLAND S EGYPTIAN POLICY.

Salisbury's Announcement That Khartoum Is Its Object Criticised. London, June 14.-The question asked in the house of lords by ex-Prime Min-ister Rosebery, who desired to know if Lord Salisbury would explain the extent and object of the Anglo-Egyptian campaign in the Soudan, brought forth the first ministerial declaration that the complete reconquest of the Soudan was contemplated by the British and Egyptian governments. After explaining that the expedition had finally been decided upon when it was known that the dervishes were threatening Kassala, and that Dongola was the present ob-jective of the expedition, Lord Salis-Berlin, June 14.—The incident which occurred at the banquet of the Deutsche bury said: "We shall not have placed Egypt in a position of safety until the Egyptian flag floats over Khartoum, which is the present seat of the dervish This declaration by the Prime Minister will lend strength to the attack of the Liberals on the government for committing the country to unknown, but vast expenditures, besides adding energy to the French and Russian hostility to Great Britain's action in Egypt. Conservative opinion, as expressed in the lobby of the House of Commons last night, was that Lord Salisbury had been unusually indiscreet, and that he should have limited his explanation to the statement that for the present entry into the Soudan beyond Dongola was not contemplated. It is, however, an open secret, which must be known in continental as well as in British offi-tions pointed to a campaign beyond Khartoum, including Kordofan, Darfur, and the whole Nile country to the Bahrel-Gazel province.

It is the belief of the war office authorities that the expedition will be at Khartoum by Christmas, and that by the end of next spring it will be at Egypt's southern boundary on the White Nile. The late victory of the Egyptian troops over the dervishes at Firket increases the expectation of the English military circle, the members of cial circles, that the military prepara-

They do not approve of an advance being made beyond Dongola. The recent decision of the penditure of moneys for the purposes of the expedition by the commission of the public debt has excited considerable uncasiness. The decision will be appealed from, but the fact remains that the financial aspect of the campaign threatens to make trouble in the British cabinet, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, chancellor of the exchequer, is opposed to the

JOINT ACTION IN COREA.

Russia and Japan Will Act Together in the Protectorate.

London, June 14 .- It is stated that the negotiations between Russia and Japan that the agreement arrived at is tantamount to a joint protectorate over Corea. Field Marshal Yamagata, who went to Russia as the representative get out of this most elastic enterprise of the mikado at the coronation of the czar, has exchanged contracting notes with the Russian government, agreeing that Russia and Japan shall act together in the maintainence of order in Corea, and that each power shall keep a small force of 500 troops in Seoul, the capital. This force is not to be increased except by mutual consent, unless in the case of the landing of men from war ships of the contracting powers in the event of sudden necessity.
