Charles Weber Arrested for Standing on a Street Corner---Claims He Was Waiting for a Car.

Loafing on the street corners received a check last evening when Police Officer Martin Gurrell escorted Charles Weber to the station, where he is detained on a charge of resisting an officer and blocking the sidewalk. Weber is a 19year-old youth whose home is on Penn avenue in the Green Ridge part of the city. The officer journey-ed along moving the knots of idlers from their stationary position. When he reached Weber and pals the officer gave them the order. All moved except Weber. He asked by what right was he 'Never mind the right, move on," said the bluecoat.

Still Weber refused. Then the officer used force and Weber resisted. The end was that he was escorted to the lockup. Weber claims he was waiting for a street car and that he challenges the right of the officer to move him in such a case Before Alderman Blair last night Weber was given a hearing in the police station. He was fined $2, which was presented.

Monsignor Wallker was the guest of Rev. John Loughran yesterday and celebrated the 10 o'clock mass. He spoke on the history of Ireland and explained the needs of the church. The old one was built at a time when Ireland was emerging from the penal persecutions and its construction was devoid of any regard for the requirements of modern architecture. Parts of the roof had fallen in, and the wall had to be propped up with buttresses. Those who were qualified to judge warned Bishop O'Donnell that it ing nothing with which to cover the was no longer safe to use it for cathe-
