MODEL BANKING ROOM.

It has been fitted up by the Traders' Bank.

Only a few finishing touches have yet to be placed on the fixtures and furnishings of the banking room of the Traders' National bank in its new building at Wyoming avenue and Spruce street and then the public will be permitted to see one of the finest apartments of the kind in the country. Next Monday the bank will begin to do business in the new building. The preparations for the removal of the books and other paraphernalia to be taken to the new building from the present stand on Lackawanna avenue are under way and all will be ready to transfer the business of the institution to the new building on that day.

The outside of the building presents a most pleasing aspect, but it does not prepare one for what meets the eye on entering the banking room. The outer, central business office is in the shape of a rotunda, about twenty-five feet across, which forms a circle on three sides around a huge column of polished Alpine green marble supporting a handsome octagonal desk for the patrons of the bank to arrange checks and other papers before presenting them at the windows.

To the right on entering is the directors' room and on the left a waiting room for ladies and around the circles are rooms for the cashier, bookkeeper, teller and clerks. The circular desk is surmounted by a bronze railing with the regulation gates opening in and above each of the lettering designates the official or employe engaged inside. The woodwork is superb. The ceiling is laid out in massive panels conforming to the general style of the surroundings and finished in cream tint and light green. The lighting fixtures are of heavy silver, provided with electric globes and gas tips, so that either illumination can be used.

One important feature of the building is the vault. It is situated to the rear of the circular desk, almost opposite the main entrance from Wyoming avenue, and is said to be one of the most substantial in the state. Anything entrusted to the care of the Traders people will be well guarded behind that mass of iron and steel. On Friday and Saturday the public is invited to call and examine the bank's apartments.

COMMITTEE IS DIVIDED.

Has Not Agreed on a Report on Citizens' Railway Ordinance.

There is said to be a split in the railway committee of select council on the question of granting the citizens' railway franchise. Just how the members stand could not be learned positively, as they refuse to divulge their standing on the subject. Following is the list of last night's meeting: It is said, however, upon good authority that the members stand two to two, with the fifth undecided.

This fifth man is Mr. Ross. He was out of town last night and his sentiments were not made known to his colleagues. Messrs. Fenner, Burns, Schroeder and Robinson, the other members of the committee, went into secret session for about ten minutes, but what they did is known only to themselves.

To the reporters they stated that they had not framed any report and would have another meeting tonight. Just prior to the council meeting, when it is expected Mr. Ross will be present, and a conclusion arrived at. It may be possible that the committee will hang off a little longer and no report will be made until the next meeting, two weeks hence.

On Tuesday the committee went over the proposed routes and on an informal ballot after the jaunt stood two in favor and two against the new ordinance.

BRILLIANT ARRAY OF JUNE BRIDES

Marriage of Miss Bertha Louise Jenkins to Attorney David J. Davis.

OUTPOURING OF SOCIETY FOLK

It was the leading social event of the year on the West Side—Nichols-Perkins Wedding at the Bride's Home at Clark's Summit—Other Marriages Solemnized Yesterday.

The wedding of Miss Bertha Louise Jenkins to Attorney David J. Davis last evening in the Washburn street Presbyterian church was the leading event of its kind on the West Side this year. The services at the church were notable for their pretty arrangement of detail and the comfortable reception which followed at the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. George W. Jenkins, of South Hyde Park avenue was in keeping with the other features of the wedding.

At 8.30 o'clock, the time announced for the wedding, the spacious auditorium of the Washburn street Presbyterian church was comfortably filled with representative society folk of the West Side and it was necessary to throw open the large doors leading to the lecture room. In a short time this and the circular gallery were seated to their full capacity. The church had been tastefully decorated under the direction of Miss J. J. Davis, florist, and on the wide pulpit platform and choir gallery potted palms were arranged in artistic contrast to a profusion of June roses.

The reserved seats for the fusc of the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting persons were designated with a trailing of smiles over each pew. Lohengrin's march, played by Professor Haydn Evans, first announced the approach of the bridal party. Ushers W. E. Thayer, Harry Decker, William Luce, W. S. Freeman, W. C. Williams and Arthur Benson moved in twos from the church lobby and onward through the central aisle to the chancel, where they were met by Rev. J. P. Moffatt, pastor of the church, who had entered the auditorium from the right. Following the ushers came the floral maids, Miss Alice Chappell and Margaret Davis, two little maidens whose white silk dresses and falling curls vied with their carnations and roses for the best effect.

The bridemaid, Miss Alice Evans, of the North End, came next. She was dressed in a bewitching costume of white organdie over pink silk. Then, leaning on the arm of her father, Miss Jenkins, the bride, came down the aisle. At the altar the groom, Mr. Davis, and his best man, George W. Williams, of Wilkes-Barre, as they approached from the right, met the bride and escort. The party stood in a semi-circle, the ushers on the extreme right and left, and Mr. Moffatt performed the ceremony in an impressive manner. After the final bow had been sealed with the customary wedding ring the party left the building in a formal way. The audience remained seated while the ushers escorted them individually to the exit.

At the reception tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Davis there was a brilliant gathering. The exterior of the house was illuminated by Chinese lanterns and in the adjoining dwelling, where Mr. and Mrs. Davis will reside, the guests inspected the handsome future home of the two popular young people.

Among the out of town attendants at the function were: Miss Susan Jenkins; Miss Florence Jenkins; Miss Irene Hartman, of Millville; Mrs. A. M. Biddleman, Columbus, Pa.; Mrs. John M. Geiger, Reading; Mrs. John W. Marey, Green, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Davis, and family, Knightville, Ind.; Hca. and family, Morgan B. Williams, of Wilkes-Barre; Miss Libbie Phillips, Wilkes-Barre; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Williams, Plymouth.

Among the costumes worn by the ladies were: The bride, white satin, with Duchess lace trimmings and white veil with a diamond clasp; Mrs. G. W. Jenkins, black silk, Dresden white silk trimmings; Mrs. Davis, black silk and Persian grey silk; Miss Florence Gibbs, pink organdie and chiffon; Miss Belle Lipond, organdie over yellow silk; Miss Della Penwarden, pearl silk; Mrs. John Walker, blue crepon; Miss Grace Walker, Persian figured organdie; Mrs. Robert Walker, pink swiss; Miss Anna Welles, white organdie and silk; Miss Margaret Gibbs, Nile green; Miss Mary Williams, dark green silk; Mrs. R. W. Luce, cream silk and green velvet; Mrs. Edith Richards, white organdie; Miss Margaret Edith Richards, white and pink satin ribbons; Miss Dolly Jenkins, white organdie.

Miss Jenkins is an exceedingly pretty young lady. Mr. Davis is assistant city solicitor and is a practitioner at the Lackawanna bar. They left on the 1 o'clock Delaware, Lackawanna and Western train for Buffalo, where was an extended wedding tour will be made of the eastern states. Mr. and Mrs. Davis will be "at home" in August.

NICHOLS-PERKINS.

At noon yesterday Miss Lydia M. Perkins, daughter of Mrs. E. A. Perkins, was married to Nelson W. Nichols at the Perkins' residence in Clark's Summit by Rev. F. W. Young.

The parlor in which the ceremony was performed were lavishly and artistically decorated for the occasion.

Just at noon the wedding party entered the parlor to the strains of a wedding march played by Miss Magdellin Nyhart, of Providence. Two little girls, Miss Hildan Nyhart and Miss Loraine Gold, led the way, carrying white and yellow pinnies and pink carnations. They also bore a silver plate containing the wedding ring. The little ones were charmingly attired in white organdies trimmed with lace. Following them came the bride and groom, the relatives and friends bringing up the rear.

The bride wore an exquisite gown of white brocade silk with pearl trimmings and carried a bouquet of orange blossoms. A wedding dinner was served after the marriage and at 4:41 Mr. and Mrs. Nichols left for Philadelphia and Washington on a wedding tour. Those present at the wedding were:

Scranton—Mrs. Carrington von Storch, Miss Ida von Storch, Miss Magdellin Nyhart, Miss Hildan Nyhart.

Green Grove—Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Newton, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Newton, Ralph Newton.

Clark's Summit—Mr. and Mrs. George W. Myers, Mr. and Mrs. George Nichols, Ward B. Parker, Miss Lydia Rogers.

REV. J. K. DIXON, D. D., IS IN THE CITY

Conducted a Prayer Meeting Last Night in Penn Avenue Baptist Church.

HAS NOT YET ACCEPTED THE CALL.

Says That on His Return to Asbury Park He Will Make Known His Determination with Reference to the Baptist Congregation—His Remarks at the Meeting.

Rev. Joseph K. Dixon, D. D., of Philadelphia, who has been extended a call to the pastorate of the Penn Avenue Baptist church came to Scranton yesterday. He is accompanied by Mrs. Dixon and last night conducted the weekly prayer meeting in the church where he received a flattering reception by a congregation that filled the large auditorium.

Dr. Dixon has not intimated that he will accept or decline the call nor will he do so during his present visit which will last until tomorrow. He and Mrs. Dixon are being entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Hallstead on Millin avenue, where after last night's service they received socially the officers of the church and their wives.

At the conclusion of the prayer meeting Dr. Dixon referred briefly to his presence here. He said: "A minister's son was asked if his father had accepted the call to a certain church. The boy replied, 'No; pa's praying for light, but the trunks are packed.'" Dr. Dixon remarked that the story illustrated his case as far as the praying was concerned but he had not reached the point where it was necessary to pack the trunks.

To a Tribune reporter he said his reply to the call would not be made until after his return to Asbury Park where he and his family have lately been sojourning. He liked Scranton and its air in the middle of June.

While Dr. Dixon has not intimated what will be his decision the officers of the church feel sanguine that the ardent and unanimous feature of the call will have its effect and that Scranton will secure a young and active progressive preacher whose characteristics are fully in touch with the nature of the city.

M'HALE-SALAMON.

In St. Patrick's church, West Scranton, yesterday afternoon, Miss Mamie Salomon, daughter of Martin Salomon, of Twenty-first street, was married to George McHale. The bride, who was attired in a gown of cream silk, was attended by Miss Mary McGee and the bridesmaid, Miss John Kelly. A reception at the home of the bride followed the ceremony. Rev. D. A. Dunne performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. McHale have gone to Atlantic City to spend their honeymoon and upon their return they will reside on Grant avenue. Mr. McHale is a street car conductor employed by the Scranton Traction company.

HOWE-PHILLIPS.

Everett T. Howe, a young man well known in Green Ridge, where he is assistant agent at the Lackawanna freight depot and a prominent member of the Green Ridge wheelmen, was married in Jersey City yesterday to Miss Minnie Phillips, of Philadelphia. The bride formerly lived in Green Ridge. Her father was a member of the old confectionery firm of Northrup, Phillips & Co.

REPUBLICANS WILL CAUCUS.

Chances Are They Will Not Support the Fitzsimmons Appointment.

The Republicans of select council will caucus at 7 o'clock tonight to decide upon their course of action regarding the Fitzsimmons appointment, which will be reported from the police committee tonight.

They say that Fitzsimmons will either get all their votes or none, most likely the latter. They even go farther and say that the appointment will not receive an unanimous vote from the Democratic side of the house, as two of that party have given out that they will not support Fitzsimmons.

The Wilmots Made a Thieving Tour Before Leaving Hallstead.

It would appear from yesterday's developments that the Hallstead bicycle thieves, the Wilmot brothers, decided to take along about as much of their neighbor's property as they could conveniently carry when they made their midnight exit Tuesday night. A constable from Hallstead came here yesterday in response to Chief Robling's telegram and upon going to the station house found among the articles taken from the Wilmots, a revolving box of cartridges and such other which had been stolen from two different places Tuesday night. Other places were entered, it is supposed, by the brothers, but if they got anything they succeeded in disposing of it before reaching this city.

The two prisoners, the bicycles and the rest of the stolen property were taken back to Hallstead yesterday afternoon.
