RACE OF A MAD DOG.

A Rabid Animal Scatters Crowds in New York, but Bites Nobody.

New York, June 21 .- A small, yellow long-haired dog ran into Broadway from Thirty-eighth street an hour before noon yesterday. It was frothing at the mouth, and to all appearances was mad.

A fat man, who stood mopping the perspiration from his brow on the south east corner of Broadway and Thirty- tive to their action. They have no aseighth street, was the first one to notice the dog.

The man was looking toward Sixth avenue when he saw the dog coming directly toward him. One look was enugh for the big man. He started up Broadway as fast as his legs would carry him. Between puffs he velled. 'Mad dog!" When the dog reached Broadway it ran to the west side of the street and started south. The dog had members in their states and determine the street pretty much to itself for one block.
