COMMENCEMENT OF ST. PAUL'S SCHOOL

Most Interesting and Varied Programme of Exercises.

FIVE GIRLS RECEIVE DIPLOMAS

Father McManus' Pupils Make a Very Creditable Showing Before Their Parents and Friends, the Bishop and a Number of the Clergy—The Audience Edified and Entertained.

The fourth annual commencement exercises of St. Paul's school, Green Ridge, took place last night in the school hall in the presence of large throngs, which included Rt. Rev. Bishop O'Hara, Rev. D. J. MacGoidrick, Rev. J. J. Dunn, Rev. M. B. Dunlan, Dunmore; Rev. James A. Moffitt, South Side, and Rev. J. C. Cannon, of Paphos, Ireland.

Rev. Father McManus and the sisters of St. Paul's, evidently believed in entertaining well those who came to encourage their pupils. The programme was the most varied and one of the most interesting that has been carried out at any commencement held so far this season. There was a drama, a comedy, a pantomime, pretty marches, fancy dancing, calisthenics and "tableaux vivants," more commonly called Delsartean poses, besides the ordinary musical and literary numbers.

The whole school numbering 225 pupils, each carrying a small flag, took part in the entrance march, executing some picturesque and intricate movements, and then joining in a grand chorus of greeting, composed for the occasion. The march music was played on two pianos by the Misses Anna O'Malley, Madeline Tallman, Nora Cadden and Helen Smith. The accompaniment to the song was played by the Misses Anna O'Malley and Nora Cadden. Miss Ellen Loftus delivered the address of welcome with marked grace and ease, displaying eloquent ability of no ordinary merit.

PRESENTING THE CERTIFICATES.

The presentation of certificates by Bishop O'Hara then occurred. In the course of eloquent addresses Miss Margaret Langan, Elizabeth Cadden and Alice Kearns received diplomas, and these three together with Miss Nellie Walsh were given certificates of competency in book-keeping.

Then fifty of the juniors marched on the stage and set the audience in rows with a motion song "Catch the Little Bean Bag." The accompaniment to which was played by Miss Florence Smith. A novel and taking feature of the programme was the fancy dancing of Master George Gaugan and Miss Nora Cadden. They first executed a sailor's hornpipe and in response to a hearty encore gave a Highland fling. Miss Nellie Walsh furnished the music.

A classic drama, "The Chieftain's Daughter," was ably presented. Misses Agnes McTague, Mary Bushnell and Angela Blewitt very cleverly sustained the leading roles, and the minor parts were creditably filled by two cute little tots, Genevieve Kelly and Charlotte Schroeder, and the Misses Nora Cadden, Anna O'Malley and Margaret Ruddy. The presentation evidenced careful training and was received with many bursts of applause.

The girls having displayed their histrionic ability, the boys came on and showed what they could do in the line of acting. Comedy they took to be their strong point and if the laughter and applause of the audience can be taken as a criterion they were not mistaken in their estimate. Peter Gonnese, Peter Grimes, Harry Grattan, Francis Grattan, James O'Hara, Francis McTague and Joseph Kelly formed the cast. The title of the play was "The Enchanted Violin."

CHILDREN'S PANTOMIME.

The smaller boys and girls then entertained with a pantomime depicting the lamentable story of "Little Red Riding Hood." It was the cutest thing of the evening and caused the bishop to enthusiastically applaud.

The junior girls gave a pretty calisthenic exercise called "tambourine fantasias," and thirteen of the senior students, boys and girls, sang in excellent voice and time the delightful chorus "We are away on the billow." The junior boys next came on with a laughable motion song "Ten Little Injuns" which was warmly received.

Thirteen pretty and graceful girls then presented the "tableau vivants." It was a very good night chorus and the retiring march closed the exercises. Misses Helen Smith and Agnes McTague were among the accompanists of the evening and Misses Julia Halligan, Madeline Tallman, Anna Rowley, Eugenia Smith, Anna Smith and Florence Smith played the concluding march.

THOUGHT IT WAS BARGAIN DAY.

Mrs. O'Loughlin Fixed Her Own Price on a Purchase.

Bridget O'Loughlin, a West Side woman who is supposed to be slightly demented, went into the Globe store, yesterday morning, and procured a $2 piece of muslin for which she tendered a five dollar bill in payment. The clerk refused to make any such discount whereupon the woman told him he would have to be satisfied with what he was offered, and left the store taking the $2 worth of muslin with her.

Patrolman Hawkes was called and took her into custody. She still refused to give up the additional dollar or return the goods, so she was locked up. Alderman Howe gave her a hearing and seeing that the woman was not wholly responsible for the act allowed her to go after the goods were taken away from her.
