Prospects That the Men in Twin Shaft Will Soon Be Reached.

GOOD PROGRESS YESTERDAY

Rescue Crews Are Now Going Down had the Slope Near the Bottom of Which It Is Thought Some of the Men Are-Incidents of the Day's Work-What the Officials Say.

Another day-the third-has passed, and still there is no pronounced change in the situation at the Twin shaft, Pittston.

The settling has ceased to such an extent as to give sanguine hope that the bodies will be recovered and that with the greatest good luck the scene of the fall will be reached in time to rescue any of the entombed men who may have, by some miracle, escaped instant death. .

It is not doubted by the expert miners but that air is coming quite freely through the debris of the cave-in, and that if any of the men are imprisoned alive in some cavity, they are not necessarily in danger of suffocation. The mine is not flooded; that is quite certain; and if any of the men escaped death from the fall, the main danger lies in their not being reached in time.

The officials strive, and very wisely, too, to tone down the rumors of the men being possibly rescued alive, for in the cold, practical view of the matter, there is no glimmer of hope of such a result, and it is not a charity, but a cruelty, to the sorrowing relatives to raise their hopes when it is almost a positive certainty that they will be dashed down again.

It is a fact, though, that the pros-they have been at any time since the terrible occurrence Sunday morning. The "settling" had almost entirely ceased as compared with the previous day, and the rescuers have pushed for Men's Wear down into the slope about a quarter of the distance, or 250 feet. Mine Inspector McDonald stated last evening that at the rate of progress they were then Tan shades. All sizes. The qual- making they might be able to reach the foot of the slope and begin digging into the buried workings at 7 o'clock this morning. Some of the men may be close to the edge of the fall, others, and undoubtedly the main body of them, are hundreds of feet beyond. presumably 800 or 1,000 feet. No one can tell or hardly conjecture how long the work will require, as no one knows the conditions that have to be met. Exploring parties who pushed down the duits carrying the current from circumstances were quite favorable as far as they went. Ten feet further it may be just the opposite. Everything is in doubt, and the most the best informed can do is to conjecture.

The crowds continue to flock about the shaft every hour of the day and particularly during the evening. The wives and mothers and other relatives of the unfortunate men continue to make frequent trips to the mouth of the shaft and the heartrending scenes are repeated hour after hour as they come and go. No one stares at them. All keep silence when they pass by. Various styles 'Crown' make sus-penders, the American favorite at it is such as man is seldom called upon to bear, for the anxiety and the harrowing thoughts conjectured about the beloved ones below are peculiar to the terrible occasion of this nature. Twenty-seven widows and ninety-six orphans are among the bereaved. There may be more than this as the full list of the victims is still unknown. The company yesterday gave out an official list which contained 58 names and which it claimed is the full number of unfortunates. This may be and may not be right. It will be som time before a positively accurate list can be made up. PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHTENING.

Every Hope That the Bodies at Least

Will Be Recovered. When the 3 o'clock shift went on yesterday afternoon the prospects were brighter that at any time since the calamity occurred. It was then felt that there was every probability of the bodies being reached and a possibility of some of the men being recovered

The disturbances had entirely ce about the foot of the shaft and had al-entire mine. The squeezing constantly continues but is not to be compared at all with yesterday. The rescuers reported most encouraging progress and be lieving that the violent settling has subsided for good hope to push ahead at a far more rapid rate than they have been going.

At one o'clock yesterday morning there was another bad squeeze which threatened to block the tunnel, but it subsided without doing any great amount of damage. At 4 o'clock there was another squeeze which was so violent that the men ran for their lives to the foot of the shaft, fearing that the threatened general cave-in was coming. This abated gradually and in an hour's time the rescuers' fears were allayed and they resumed work. The subsidence continued and at 10 o'clock in the morning the mine was quieter than it had been at any time since the cave-in. At nightfall the quaking had so far disappeared that hope began to dawn that the threatened cave-in had been averted and that no more violent squeees will occur. The fearful rumblings and sharp pillars were heard only at rare intervals during the morning and in the afternoon the "working" had become so subdued that the noises caused but little uneasiness. Despite their many mishaps the night shift succeeded in reaching the angle of No. 3 slope and when the morning shift went on at 7 o'clock they began the descent into the workings where the imprisoned men are. Their work is ginia; Senator-elect Money, of Mississnecessarily ardous and slow because they are entering upon the main fall and as a consequence they had gained only about thirty-five feet at 3 o'clock when they were relieved. Exploring parties, however, pushed ahead another hundred feet and reached a point about 750 feet from where Langan was last seen which was in the shanty at the foot of the slope. They could have gone farther but thought it unwise to venture too far from the protected part of the

During the morning they encountered trip of three cars wedged in by the fallen rock. Not one of them was crushed. It was with difficulty, however, that they were extricated as the rocks on either side of them bound them tightly. This obstacle is accountable in a great measure for the short distance covered by the morning shift. As they go along half the gang is engaged in clearing a passage and the other half in timbering it behind them. The boulders are broken with immense sledges and loded into cars which are taken back and emptled at the first convenient place and then run to the foot to be loaded with props. Four mules were used during the morning, but as the day wore on and it became possible to make better progress mother team was sent down The exploring parties which went ahead report that the tunnelling will be much easier farther on and that possibly when the main fall is reached they will not have to tunnel at all, simply climb over the fall, which being heavier left the roof higher and virtually of itself forms an unbroken pasage The men who came up at 3 o'clock felt that the afternoon and night shifts ought to be able to cover the temaining 150 feet of the slope and that the gang that goes in at 7 o'clock this morning be enabled to commence digging will for the entombed men.

The air is excellent, the current being so strong that it is claimed a naked tamp would be extinguished by its There are two pir bridges crossforce: ing the main road, and both are holding out most encouragingly. main road to the atr shaft. Should these be crushed the whole air system would be so disarranged that it would probably cause all operations to cease. They are protected as securely as possible, and men are stationed at each ready to report the slightest accident to them. As a precaution against blocking and possibly changing the urrent in the gangway, the drivers have binding instructions that when they come to these bridges they must whip their mules into a gallep and get on the other side of them as quickly as possible. The fear of the mine being flooded from the river is abating, now that no signs of it appear. It is reasoned that if the cracks extend under the bed of the river and down through to the workings the water would have made itself felt long before this. There is the danger, however, of the fisaures extending, and if they do extend to any great

SILVER AGITATION OUT AT CHICAGO

Various Democratic Leaders Are Still at Sea for Plans of Action.

NOT A RAY OF HOPE FOR GOLD BUGS

A Reported Alliance of Illinois and Committee.

Chicago, June 30.-A week in advance of the day set for the opening of the Democratic national convention, the leaders of the silver element have donned their armor and girded themselves for the coming affray. Today the Sherman house, where the white metal headquarters have been located, resounded with the shouts and yells of its advocates, resplendent in 16 to 1 badges, buttons and other insignia, while its register bore more distinguished names than have been inscribed in the book of the hostelry for a quarter of a century. So far none of the prominent adsilver people have undisputed possess-

From tomorrow, however, the former wil begin to be in evidence, and from new phase of a battle between the majority and the earnest, aggressive and unconquerable minority,

The conspicuous features of the opening of the war today were the conference between the bi-metallic Democratic national committee and the outside silver men; the meeting between Governors Stone, of Missouri, and Altof the Illinois delegation in favor of the abrogation of the two thirds rule. In order to be on the safe side, however, it was finally determined to appoint a committee of five to wait upon the executive committee of the national committee, and as the resulution diplomatically put it, "to confer government who were pledged to curre with that body in reference to all questions and matters affecting the temporery organization and proceedings," This committee, as designated by Senator Harris, who presided over the concommittee at the Palmer house after dinner, but were informed by Secretary Sheerin that Chairman Harrity would not arrive until tomorrow morning and that a meeting of the executive com-

STONE-ALTGELD CONFERENCE. The conference between Governors Stone, the leader of the Bland forces, and Altgeld was held behind double closed doors in the latter's quarters at the Sherman house; Colonel Charles H. Jones, of St. Louis, being the only outsider present or within a hundred yards of earshot. The conference was evidently pre-arranged as Governor Stone went direct to the Sherman house after registering at the Auditorium. Nearly an hour was consumed in the confer ence, and at its conclusion not one of those presnt would say a word or breathe a suggestion concerning its import. Governor Stone, however, appeared to be in particularly exhuberant spirits and insisted that Bland could not keep out of the nomination. Sixteen to one, he said, meant Bland; Bland meant 16 to 1, both meant free silver and that was the issue of the day. Th news of the conference spread quickly around town and it was at once taken for granted that the Bland leaders had made some kind of an alliance with Governor Altgeld at whose word the 48 votes of Illinois will be cast as he wills, and as a unite on all questions. Governor Altgeld was asked point blank whether such an alliance had been affected, but he merely smiled and answered that the time to talk had not ar Chicago, June 30.-Consternation

For three-quarters f an hour, ending at noon, Governors Altgeld and Stone were in conference in an ante-room leading off from the private parlor occupied by the former, both the communicating and main doors being locked. The only other person present was Colonel Charles H. Jones, of St. Louis, and who was there presumably as a witness of what might be said or done. All three were approached in turn by the United Press representative, but returned the stereo typed answer that it had been agreed that, for the present, not one word should be said concerning the object of the conference or its result. Only one construction was placed upon the conference between the two executives, and this is that an alliance of some nature or another had been agreed upon between Governor Altgeld, who carries the forty-eight votes of Illinois in his pocket, and Governor Stone, who is here as a recognized leader of the Bland forces.
