WILLIAMS' COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT

Interesting Exercises That Took Place in the Frothingham.

BANQUET WAS AT THE WYOMING

T. V. Powderly's Was the Chief Address at the Theatre—Large Class Was Presented Diplomas—Banquet Featured by a Number of Appropriate Toasts.

A memorable episode of the school year just closed at Williams' Business college was the commencement of the class of '96 last night in the Frothingham, and the banquet which followed at the Wyoming house.

The exercises at the theater included an address by T. V. Powderly, music by Bauer's orchestra, class singing conducted by Hayden Evans, the presentation of diplomas in which Mr. Powderly, Revs. A. F. Chaffee and Thomas Bell and the faculty assisted, and a complete programme of class graduation addresses.

The class speakers were William C. Simmons, of Great Bend, salutatorian; Miss Winifred Francis Haggerty, of Scranton, prophetess; Miss Eliza H. Beall, of Wheeling, W. Va., biographer; Miss Essie M. Will, of Scranton, historian; Miss Elizabeth Coyne, essayist; and C. H. Little, of Parkville, Pa., valedictorian.

Following are the officers of the class: Henry A. Clark, Birchardville, Pa., president; Miss Katie Grady, of Scranton, vice-president; William A. Lynnott, of Scranton, treasurer; Charles S. Williams, of Rochester, secretary.

Each of the class speakers acquitted himself or herself very creditably, and in a manner which showed that the college faculty in equipping the pupils, especially for the commercial world, had not neglected to cultivate their minds and thought in a general way.

Mr. Powderly's topic was "Education and Labor." The concluding number on the programme was "A Word to Patrons and Others," by President O. F. Williams, of the college.

The introductory prayer and the benediction were respectively by Revs. Thomas Bell and George Ball. The songs by the class, "Dawn of Day" and "Merry Songsters," and orchestral music interspersed the programme.

Diplomas were awarded the graduates in groups as follows: Group A, by President O. F. Williams—H. A. Clark, John Gibby, John Boland, Thomas McNamara, Gilon Keller, George E. Moore, A. F. McDonnell, Thomas Carwardine, D. J. Hughes, Edward Sallay, Arthur Warner, Porter Mithelland, Philip Handigles.

Group B, and C, by Rev. A. F. Chaffee—Edward York, L. C. Taylor, Lizzie Alicia Coyne, Rosa Ryke, Mary Ruanes, John Thomas, H. H. Layman, Feida E. L. Miller, Jennie Miller, Mame McGowan, Katie Gibbride, Lydia B. Palmer, Mattina Thompson, Theodore Hass, A. Wark, George Struckart, J. Keichum, John J. Corcoran, Harry Sprouts, William A. Lynnott, William C. Simmons, William H. Windowfield, Charles S. Williams.

Group D, by Rev. Thomas Bell—Thomas Gavin, J. B. Siles, N. A. Stone, W. J. Hehl, Kate Reilly, Albert Kern, Katie Walsh, A. A. Wood, W. E. Kunkle, Joseph J. Jander, Cora B. Keeserling, Mame Healey, Kate McHugh, Anna H. Kennedy.

Group E, by Professor W. J. Trainer—Sadie Heinefeld, Helinda Messert, Lizzie Hannon, Anna G. Hutton, Maggie Farrey, Katharine Hutton, M. J. Hanrahan, Maxie Thomas, Lydia Lindsay, Alice T. Murray, Mary E. Gallagher, Elizabeth Davis.

Group F, and G, by T. V. Powderly—John Charville, Sydney Wong, John St. Coons, Mame A. Riley, Anna Millen, Mame Flynn, Samuel Silverstone, Celia Walsh, Rose Levey, William Hallin, Florence Hestridge, Sarah L. Melhale, Harry Koltow, Rose H. Ford, Nellie H. Kelly, John O'Brien, Essie Will, Lila Beall, Maimie L. Lawless, Joseph Melvin.

Group H, by Professor A. L. McClosky—Mame Harriet Trainor, Nellie Hanrahan, Christian H. Little, Winifred Frances Haggerty, M. P. Murray, J. Nelson Tompkins, Katharine Grady, Charlotte Hawks.

Immediately following the close of the exercises in the theater, the class and faculty and those who were to receive toasts, repaired to the Wyoming house, where a delectable banquet was enjoyed. President Williams presided over the period of toasting speeches.

The "Clergy" was responded to by Rev. P. G. O'Malley. The toast, "Education and Business," was to have been by William Connell, but his attendance was unavoidably prevented, and a letter from him was read by Professor Williams. "Our Crusty Old Bachelor" was the toast of Miss Kathryn Haggerty, of the shorthand department. Professor W. J. Trainer's toast was "Our Blessed Old Maids." "Our Goodly City," which was assigned Mayor Bailey, was very creditably treated by the mayor's secretary, Richard J. Beamish. John E. Kern represented Congressman J. A. Scranton, who was to have responded to the toast, "Journalism." "Amenities of Pedagogy" was the topic of Professor A. L. McClosky, while the concluding toast, "The Best of Everything is Good Enough for Us," was by President Williams.

THE BIG EXCURSION.

Will Go to Lake Ariel on the Fourth of July.

The indications are that the excursion to Lake Ariel on the Fourth of July will be the biggest of the season. It will be under the auspices of St. Mary's Catholic congregation, Dunmore, and the arrangements are of such a character that a large proportion of the residents of the valley can be accommodated.

A special schedule has been arranged for the day. From 6 o'clock a. m. until 11 p. m. trains will run every hour and fully 10,000 people can be comfortably cared for if so many come. There will be no lack of refreshments and amusements at the lake.

CYCLERS AND ELEPHANTS.

Attraction at the Driving Park on July 4, Afternoon and Evening.

The management of the Scranton Driving park has outdone itself in securing meritorious attractions for the amusement of Scrantonians and their brethren for July 4, afternoon and evening. The cycle carnival and races in the afternoon and evening promise to be the greatest event known in this section for years. The All-Champion Lady Bicycle Riders, consisting of all the female scorches of the country, and several of the speedy males cracks combined, will make up an interesting bicycle program and exhibition.

In addition to the bicycle riders, the management has secured Liekhardt's famous performing herd of elephants, the greatest novelty before the public today. The price of admission is 25 cents.

The street parade on Friday evening, July 3, at 8:30 p. m., will be an immense affair. The line of the street parade is as follows: Wyoming avenue to Linden, to Franklin, to Lackawanna, to Bridge, counter-march to Washington, to Gibson, to Jefferson, to Spruce, to Washington, to Linden, to Adams, to Washington, to Lackawanna, to Penn, to Spruce, to Franklin, to Wyoming, to Hotel and disband.

IT WAS A BAD DAY

conclusion is left for the reader to draw.

When Tuesday night's shift came up at 11 o'clock, two of the men reported that they had heard rattlings. Immediately all kinds of reports were in circulation and the sensation mongers scattered broadcast through the county the delusion that the entombed miners were alive. The fact that the others of the gang had heard no noises but what could be accounted for by the "working" of the roof and that no rattlings have been reported since shows beyond peradventure that the two men were deceived.

About midnight there was another bad squeeze which drove the men to the retreat at the foot of the shaft and delayed operations for an hour, but when the "working" had ceased, little damage was found to have resulted to the tunnel.

When the day shift came to the surface at 3 o'clock this afternoon they brought with them a dinner bucket which they came across about noon and which had evidently been blown up the slope when the concussion occurred. While it was being scrutinized about the head of the slope an old gray headed man, John Hart, suddenly grasped it exclaiming "It's Danny's. It's my boy's can. Danny, Danny." He gazed at it and fondly patted it as if it was the child he mourned and then as if maddened at the inanimate thing because it came out and left its owner behind he gave it a blow that must have caused intense pain to his aged and shriveled hand. Then he hurried with it to his grief stricken home that the others of the bereaved household might see the sad reminder of the beloved one.

CHOWD WAS SMALL. At no time during the day was there what might be called a crowd. The relatives of the entombed men came and went singly and in small groups, the women as has been usual, coming at daybreak to see what the night had brought forth. The sightseers were very few and the place at times assumed a rather lonesome appearance.

When evening came on quite a crowd gathered but it disappeared as bed time approached leaving only the workers and watchers about the mouth of the shaft.

At 12 o'clock last night the situation had undergone no material change. According to the statement of W. G. Thomas, superintendent of the Alonquin mine, who was directing affairs last night, the 3 o'clock shift, which came to the surface at 11 o'clock, succeeded in gaining twelve feet, which is four feet better than the morning shift.

CORONER M'KEE ON THE SCENE.

Came to Consult with Mine Inspector McDonald.

Dr. F. L. McKee, coroner of Luzerne county, made his first visit to the scene yesterday afternoon. He came to consult with Mine Inspector McDonald and the belief is that he was sent for, but not behind her grave it is not admitted. He only stayed for a few minutes, coming up on one train and going back on the next. In order to get an interview The Tribune man had to ride with him to the next station.

He said he had come to look over a few matters connected with the disaster and was not prepared yet to state what they were. If a body should be recovered, he said, he would immediately hold an inquest, but until such time as this occurs, he can not take any official action. Should the bodies never be recovered the inquest will, in his opinion, be called upon to make an inquest. As an evidence that he has been studying the matter from a legal point of view, he several times alluded to decisions and precedents in similar cases. The mine inspector's investigation he thought would supplant an inquest in case of the bodies never being recovered.

As the mine inspector himself may be called upon to defend his own connection with the case, it is a question as to whether or not a full and fair hearing be secured without a coroner's inquest.

TWO AGGRAVATING RUMORS.

One Denied, the Other a Falsity on the Face of It.

"As long as there is a possibility of recovering the bodies, and the company has a dollar or a man at its command this work will be continued," said General Manager John B. Law to a Tribune reporter, yesterday, when asked if he could explain what started the rumor that the company was considering the abandonment of the work because of the discouragements which the day had brought forth.

"This rumor," said he, "like many other wild ones emanates from idle conjectures. The work will not be abandoned. We have every hope of recovering the bodies and will do it if men and money can accomplish the undertaking."

Another rumor which is scarcely worth denying is that the company's store had refused supplies to the families of the victims. Astonishing as it may seem this most damnable lie gained such general circulation that children of the bereaved families have been sent to the store to ask if it was true.

NOTES OF THE DISASTER.

The official list of widows and orphans compiled by the company places the number at thirty widows and 101 orphans.

A week before the disaster, Joseph Zureth, one of the foreign victims, joined Branch 7, Slavonian Roman and Greek Catholic union, paying 50 cent initiation fee. He had a large family, and they will receive $50. Joseph Hoistervich, another of the victims, was treasurer of the branch and his family will also receive $50.

E. L. Fuller, secretary of the company, who was on the ground yesterday morning, announced that a prominent banker in New York city had decided to make a voluntary contribution. Just as soon as an organization is effected and the proper parties elected to receive this money he is ready to forward his check for $100. Mr. Fuller was of the opinion that just as soon as an organization was accomplished, other large subscriptions would follow. He thought a good plan would be to make it known that the money was not to be received at the several banks.

One of the striking cases of wifely devotion, where love and hope drive away despair, is that of Mrs. McCormick, wife of the brave fire boss. On departing on his perilous duty Saturday night Mr. McCormick told his wife not to be alarmed if she heard of a fall of rock or any other calamity, as he would be safe. The faithful wife's confidence in her husband's assurance that he would be safe, leads the poor woman to hope that her husband is still alive. The worst she can believe is
