President Schurman of Cornell Gives a Valuable Definition of Education. From the Buffalo Enquirer.

President Schurman gave utterance to a striking epigram when he said to the Cornell graduates: "What shall it profit a man to know the secrets of the university if his own domicile is to be the almshouse?" He was speaking of the relation of knowledge to the various professions and pursuits by which mer earn their livings and he declared: "Collegs and universities were not founded for the increase of the dependent classes," These generally accepted truths are put in a striking way and there is occasion for impressing them upon the mind of the graduate. Now and then perhaps, the race is benefited by some ardent spirit who is so absorbed in the pursuit of knowledge for itself-so eager to grasp some new truth-that providing for his own support becomes an entirely secondary consideration But with the great majority it is perfectly legitimate to make the question of obtaining a livelihood of prime importance. As the president of Cornell pute it: "America, which is another for universal opportunity, makes it the first duty of the educated man to achieve economic independence." This is in line with the spirit which has from the first pervaded the teaching of Cornell university and guided the administration of the institution. Some comment has been made upor the recent action of Cornell in deciding to give the B. A. degree for satisfactory graduation in any of the courses of the Academic department. Cornell University now consists of seven special faculties and a general or university fac ulty. The latter is composed of all the professors and assistant professors in the university; its function is to consider questions of general educational policy; and it will have immediate charge of all students in the graduate department. Outside of the graduate department the university comprehends seven divisions, which will be hereafter designated the Academic department (or Department of Arts and Sciences) the College of Law, the College of Civil Engineering, the Sibley College of Mechanical Engineering and Mechanic Arts, the College of Architecture, the College of Agriculture, and the State Veterinary College. The students in the Academic department and in each of the six professional colleges are put under the immediate charge of a faculty made up of the professors, assistant professors, and instructors belonging to that division of the university Heretofore in the Academic department different digrees have been given. It has been decided that, beginnig with the first class graduating in the twentleth century, the B. A. degree shall be conferred upon every student in the Academic department who satisfactorily completes four years of study. whether the subjects studied be the sciences of nature, or of both together. Speaking of this new departure of the institution, President Schurman, in his address, said: 'It is folly to suppose that some parts of human knowledge are liberalizing, and others neutral or negative; or that some institutions yield culture, and others merely science The real difference is in the nature of the outlook which the several studies yield. One reveals the constitution and order of nature, the procession of the heavenly bodies, the elements of the earth, the mechanism and functions of living beings. The students of this objective sphere are the scientists par excellence. The other study tells of man. of his doings and sufferings, of the arts he has invented, and the institutions he has established, of the whole form and content of human history in its largest sense. The votaries of this study are the humanists. The humanities and the science par excellence. The other sciences together exhausted (theology apart) the materials of knowledge. Our extensive ideal of the educated man is the scholar who reaches out for them all; our intensive ideal is the specialist who has mastered one. Both ideals have their value; neither excludes the other. In practice we strike a compromise. We do not want a scientist who is altogether ignorant of the scienceses. That one science is as educativ as another all the colleges agree. And in the twentieth century it will also be recognized that English and German literature, history and politics, meta physics and ethics are as truly liberalizing and educative for the minds of young men and women as the ancient classical humanities, though I am sure that Greece and Rome and Jerusalem, as the fountain heads of human civilization, will always hold a place of honor and be an object of homage in every institution of learning which nourishes the liberal arts and sciences or cares for those ideal goods of truth, beauty, justice and righteousness wherein consists the true glory of human life on earth."

Great prepartions are being made for the sixth international convention of the Baptist Young People's Union of America at Milwaukee, July 16 to 19. Accommodations have already been provided for 15,000 visitors, and the churches, hotels and citizens are making every effort to have the city in readiness for their reception. The convention wil be held in the great Industrial Exposition building at Milwaukee, capable of seating 12,000 people, and said to be the finest convention hall in the ancient or the modern languages, his- United tates. Fully 3,000 visitors are tory or philosophy, mathematics, physics, or biolgy, or, indeed, any combination of the humanities or the 3,000 outside of Milwaukee; Indiana, 2,000; and other states in proportion to their distance. Canada wil send from 2,000 to 3,000 visitors and delegates More than one thousand people are at work on the various committees making preparations for the convention, Daniel Protheroe will be the conductor of the convention chorus of 600 trained voices. After the work of the convention is over the delegates and visitors will make excursions to Lake Winnebago, Devil's Lake, Dells of the Wisconsin, Epworth League Grove at Ludington, Mich.: Racine, Wis.; and Chicago. One fare excursion rates have been secured on all railroads. The Baptist Young People's Union of America was organized in Chicago July 7, 1891. It now numbers over 100,000 members. The national officers are as follows: President, John H. Chapman, Chicago; vice-presidents, Philip F. Botzong, Jersey City, N. J.: J. N. Shenstone, Toronto, Ont.; George B. Taylor, D. D., West Appomattox, Va.; secretary, Rev. H. W. Reed, Waukegan, Ill : treasurer, Frank Moody, Milwaukee; chairman board of managers, Rev. L. L. Henson, Baltimore; executive committee, Jesse A. Baldwin, William M. Lawrence, D. D., John H. Chapman, P. S. Henson, D. D., N. G. Ludington, Arthur D. Dana, all of Chicago, and H. W. Reed, of Waukegan, Ill. The Seventh Day Adventists will make their advent into local religious circles tomorrow, when missionary meetings will be held in a tent on South Main avenue, West Side. The meetings will continue for several weeks. J. K. Schilling, a student from the Denomination school at Lancaster; Elder K. C. Russell, an evangelist sent out by the Adventists, of Pennsylvania; and W. H. Smith, of Welslboro, Pa., are in charge of the work. The tent is seated with circular pews and the capacity reaches several hundred. Gospel meetings will be conducted at which the denomination doctrinals will be exponded by the evangelists. The meetings will begin omorrow afternoon.

No definite reply has been received from Rev. Dr. Joseph K. Dixon, of Philadelphia, to the call tendered him by the Penn Avenue Baptist church to ome its pastor. The time by which Dr. Dixon intimated he would give his answer has expired, however, and the officers of the church expect to receive it at any time. From a reliable source The Tribune is informed that Dr. Dixon's answer will be one of acceptance, though he has not officially made any such intention known. A telegram was received from Dr. Dixon yesterday stating that he has been ill. which probably accounts for the failure to receive a letter from him, giving his answer to the call.

RELIGIOUS NOTES.

Rev. David Jones, of the First Congregational church will preach tomorrow at the Congregational church at Audenried. His pulpit will be filled by Rev. John Elias, of Wales, who will oreach in Welsh at the morning service, beginnig at 10 o'clock, and in English at the evening service, beginning at six

Professor Rhys R. Lloyd, of the Pacific theological seminary, will preach at the Tabernacle Congregational church tomorrow evening at 6 p. m. Professor Lloyd is the man who was at one time a worker in the coal mines, but by perserverance he has become one of the brightest scholars of the Pacific coast. He is now on his way home from a sojourn in Europe. Rev. J. W. Williams, of Wales, has sent a letter to the Jackson Street Baptist church in which he gives no decisive response to their call extended to him several weeks ago. The letter was not made public, but at Sunday evening's after-service session of the Jackson Street church the members were told of its receipt. The contents pertained to the conditions of the pastorate The Plymouth Congregational Calvenistic Episcopal society has elected the following as its officers: Miss Jennie Lewis, president; Miss Nellie Morgan, vice-president; Miss Margaret

Harris, recorder: Gomer Reese, treasur er; Miss Edna Evans, organist. At the First Welsh Baptist church Wednesday evening Professor and Mrs. L. J. Richards, teachers of elocution. gave a humorous and dramatic recital. They were assisted by M. J. Lloyd, musician.

ARCHBALD.

Mr. John B. Lack wil spend the Fourth at his cottage in Asbury Park. A number of the residents of this place were in Carbondale vesterday to witness the reception in St. Rose's convent at which Miss Tessie Sweeney received the first vell and Miss Aggle Brodrick the second. Both young ladies formerly lived here.

Miss Anna May Barrett, of Scranton, called on friends here Thursday even-

Great preparations have been made here for the celebration of the day and It promises to surpass any former offorts in magnitude. In the morning there will be a grand street parade in which nearly all the societies in town will take part. Captain P. J. McAndrew will be murshal of the societies, which wil form on Church street near St. Thomas' church. After parading on the principal streets the procession will disperse at Sylvan Park where appropriate exercises be held. In the afternoon St. Thomas' congregation will picale in the same grove and arrangements on an elaborate scale have been made for the accommodation of a large crowd. The usual features and many new ones will be introduced at today's picnic and it will undoubtedly be the best place in this neighborhood to spend the day.

TAYLOR. The Reds of this place and the W. S. A. club, of Hyde Park, played an interesting game of base ball yesterday afternoon on the school house grounds which ended in a victory for the Reds. by the score of 13 to 5. The features of the game were the pitching of Schields and the running bowl catch of Haves, both of the Reds. Mrs E. Y. Evans is seriously ill at her home on Grove street. The subject of Rev. J. M. Lloyd for tomorrow morning will be "The Christian's Riches;" evening, "The Burning Billows. Mrs. J. Milford Morgan and children are home after a few weeks' stay at

A WOBBLE SONG.

Wooble, wobble, wobble, Would often steal away on her wheel, Wobble, wobble, wobble, And she wobbled left and she wobbled Wobble, wobble, wobble, But she wobbled ahead with all her migh And she went wobblind on.

A malden fair, with tresses rare,

She met a man who stopped to gaze, Wobble, wobble, wobble And he stood and watched her devious ways, Wobble, wobble, wobble, n amazement he was completely lost, Wobble, wobble, wobble, And he found that his eyes became hope lessly crossed, As he watched her wobble on. -Washington Times.
